MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Conner, a Princeton regular drafted by the Hills of the American Football League, has bypassed the offer to do postgraduate work at Montreal University and will play for the Redmen, this fall, it was announced Monday night. The six-foot-one, 217-pound native of Erie, Pa., started out at fullback with Princeton last season and wound up as a defensive afterstints at end and defensive linebacker.

Crackers Whip Leafs, Suns Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The league-leading Jacksonville Suns and Buffalo Bisons sprayed hits around in a three-hour struggle before the Suns came up with a 10-6 International League victory Sunday night. And who do you suppose was the Jacksonville hero in this batting show? Relief pitcher Ted Abernathy.

Abernathy fired 5 2-3 innings of shutout ball after the Bisons had routed Kit Lehman and Frank Smith. The submarining righthander also socked Jacksonville's only extra base hit, a two-run homer in a six-run Sun fifth. Tony Martinez stroked three singles for the Suns who had eight walks in addition to their 16 hits.

In other games, Atlanta Crackers whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 8-4, Richmond Virginians came from behind to nip Syracuse Chiefs 4-3 and Rochester Red Wings dumped Columbus Jets into the E. collar, 5-3.

Righthander Johnny Lewis, who was hitting .130 before Monday night, turned stopper and belted a pair of home runs for Atlanta. Four seventh-inning runs wrapped it up for the Crackers, who moved into a fourth-place tie with the Leafs. Bob Burda had three hits for Atlanta.

Richmond climbed out of the cellar when catcher Allan Hall delivered a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth to beat Syracuse. Hall's hit came after Mike Mortensen had tripled and Ron Matocsky and Bob Hale were walked intentionally to set up a possible double play.

The Rifle Signs With Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sonn Etcheverry, the 31-year-old former Canadian passing great, signed his 1962 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals Monday and was given a solid vote of confidence by the club's new coach Wally Lemm.

Lemm said he is convinced Etcheverry, a star for nine years with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, can do the job as a top-flight quarterback in the National League. Hampered by a sore arm in training last season, Etcheverry had his troubles but finished strong, leading the Cards to three straight victories to close the season.

The Cards also signed the No. 2 quarterback, Charlie Johnson and Lemm said he feels the 23-year-old New Mexico State grad has great potential.

Etcheverry hit 96 of 196 passes last season for 1,275 yards and 14 touchdowns. It was his first NFL season. In nine years with Montreal, Sonn completed 60 per cent of his passes for more than 30,000 yards and 183 touchdowns.

Both Clubs Real Threats

See Indian Rising, Giant Runaway

'Best Rookie Next Season'

By JOE MICHELER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The next two weeks play being heavy servers by three very pertinent questions hovered over the baseball horizon: 1. Is the rest of the American League, after years of being dominated by New York Yankees, without a pennant since 1964, really a threat?

2. Are the San Francisco Giants going to become the first National League Subway winner since the Dodgers, then in Brooklyn, waltzed to a pennant in 1955?

A couple of weeks ago, Gabe Paul, general manager of the Indians, boldly stated that the Yankees would be hard pressed to repeat as champions this year. Taken lightly was his assertion that other clubs, including his own, had built themselves up to the Yankees.

PAUL'S TATUS

Today, Paul's assertions have more meaning than they did two weeks ago, because of Cleveland's current position at the head of the league and the Indians' early dominance of the Yankees whom they've beaten five times in seven meetings. Further, the league standings show only 4½ games separating the first eight clubs.

Gabe has clearly revived the Indians of a year ago when they barely managed to squeeze into the first division, 30½ games behind the winning Yankees.

Gabe changed managers and replaced several of last year's regulars with eager newcomers. The new manager, youthful Mel McGaha "fashioned a club based on speed, pitching and defence.

Probably the biggest improvement has been in the club's bench, which has become one of the deepest and most maneuverable in the league.

The Indians open a two-game set against Kansas City Athletics in Cleveland tonight with Jim Perry going for his third victory. He hasn't been defeated.

MAY DISRUPT PATTERN

The Giants, combining a devastating batting attack with surprisingly strong pitching, threaten to disrupt the pattern which has produced a tight National League race in each of the last seven seasons.

The next two weeks may be the turning point. The Giants, with a four-game lead over their nearest rivals, will play 15 of their next 15 games at home. At the conclusion of a three-game series with St. Louis Cardinals starting tonight the Giants play Houston four times, Philadelphia and New York three each. The home stand will be interrupted by a two-game series at Los Angeles.

If the Giants fatten up on the tailenders and widen their present margin appreciably, there is little to stopping them. Even with Willie Mays in a batting slump, the Giants have sent the the showers all but two of the 32 starters they've faced.

Manager Alvin Dark of the Giants' big hope has been remarkable. Juan Marichal, the ace of the staff, has won six of eight decisions and Jack Sanford has a 6-2 record.

Monday was an off day in both leagues.

REACHES RECORD

TORONTO (CP) — Temperatures rose to a high of 86 degrees here Monday, equalling a 63-year-old record. Forecasters said the good weather will continue for the next day or so.

New Starting Times at Golf Club

New starting times have been set for lady, standard and junior golfers at the May 24 Quinte Country Club.

The new times were approved at a directors' meeting last night.

The ladies, according to the new schedule, will start play on Saturdays after 10 a.m. On Sundays and holidays the new starting time is after 11 a.m. On Wednesdays they will be able to play before twelve o'clock noon — and after two p.m.

Junior and student players will start play on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays after 11 a.m. On Wednesdays they will play before twelve o'clock noon and after three p.m.

Crack Crew For Canada

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A crew from the St. Catharines Rowing Club will represent Canada at an international eight-oared race July 4 on the Schuylkill River near Philadelphia.

The senior heavyweight crew will be competing against entries from Russia and United States universities.

The St. Catharines crew will be essentially the one that last year won the premier event at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta. The crew covered the one mile, 350-yard distance in 6:11 for a North American record.

It also will compete in the U.S. national championships in Buffalo, the Henley Regatta and the British Empire Games trials.

Vote Douglas A.H.L. Top Rearguard

NEW YORK (AP) — Kent Douglas, the American Hockey League's highest scoring defenceman last season, has been voted the Eddie Shore Award as the league's outstanding rearguard.

Douglas scored 18 goals and 41 assists for 59 points to lead the league's defencemen and set a Springfield record.

The Latest! Cleaned While You Wait

NEW YORK (AP) — Now they've got a way for you to have your shirt washed leaving your seat.

And looking into the future, you might be able to tap out at the corner grocery store.

The Electronic Laundries Corporation, with the assistance of a young lady, demonstrated a new system for bettting at race tracks Monday. It's as simple as operating a slot machine, with about the same results.

It eliminates standing in line, hopping from one window to another to place various size bets, and generally separates you from your bankroll with speed and dispatch.

Under the system, which president Robert Edwards of the company hopes to sell to race tracks, you buy a stack of cards at the start of the day, and when you want to make a bet you slip the card into one of the hundreds of handy slots and punch a couple of buttons and you're in.

An electronic computer takes care of the rest. If you have a stick low enough in another slot at the payoff window, the machine decides the payoff and flashes it on a screen only you can see.

Handy, huh? Just the money. There is no plan to eliminate him.

The company has been developing other electronic gadgets for stadiums and airplanes, but this is its first venture into the sporting world.

Jim O'Brien, 22, a tackle who failed to make the Lions squad in 1960, asked $100,000 in damages and $7,500 in contract pay in a suit filed in U.S. District Court Monday.

The $100,000 is to cover "defamation with slander" which prevented O'Brien from getting another job in football "commensurate with his ability," the suit says.

O'Brien charged the Lions dismissed him after he suffered a dislocated shoulder in an exhibition game with Cleveland Browns Aug. 13, 1960, before the start of the regular season that year.

Under NFL contracts players who are injured get paid until they have made the squad or the pre-regular season has begun.

O'Brien's lawyer, Victor G. Hanson, said the Lions to refer to the entire case.

O'Brien told him he had failed to "demonstrate sufficient skill and capacity."

"His defamed him to the extent that no other team wanted him whether the truth of the matter was that he was hurt and couldn't play," Hanson said.

Remember 'Big Red'?

By LAURENT CHASSON

MONTREAL (CP) — One significant pray of fight seems to have emerged from Montreal Canadiens' first-round exit from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

It was the performance of Gordon (Red) Berenson, 22-year-old of Norwegian descent who for the last two years was an all-American in hockey at the University of Michigan.

Berenson didn't play regularly in the six-game semi-final series against Chicago Black Hawks but the Canadiens brass thinks he showed enough to be earmarked as a potential National Hockey League star.

"He looks like money in the bank," said Frank Selke, Canadiens managing director. "I think he'll be the best rookie in the league next season."

Even Glenn Hall, Chicago goalie, had a few words of praise after the powerful 190-pound redhead beaten goals for the second time in the series.

LEAVE FROM COLLEGE

"He looks like a real comer with that wide sweep of his," said the Flin Flon Bomber. Glenn sighed.

Montreal signed Berenson to a pro contract right off the campus the day before the play-offs started. Red had been in their farm system for several years and the club had given him a four-game trial near the end of the regular season. But to participate in the playoffs, Berenson had to get leave from Michigan where he is to graduate in June with a business administration degree.

"I'm planning to make hockey a career," he says. "But it's nice to have something to fall back on when your playing days are over."

Berenson played most of his amateur hockey at centre but with Canadiens he is likely to see a good deal of action on the wing.

"I like playing centre but I also played left wing at Michigan this year. I think the results show I was more productive on the wing."

Jean Newman Chief Speaker At Liberal Rally

PICTON — "By the sum total of their actions, the government of Conservatives have shown during the past five years that they lack the 'know-how' of running our country", declared Mrs. Jean Newman in an address to 100 at a banquet sponsored by Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association in the Parish Hall here on Wednesday night.

"We must save Canada and restore it to its rightful place as the leading nation of the world; we must save it from the Conservatives who are guilty of a liberal government to Ottawa.

Referring to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar, Mrs. Newman said "If our economic situation does not pick up soon we will be no longer on a par with some of the banana republics of South America for our currency. What the Minister of Finance and the Conservatives have been doing over the years is weakening the sign world. Our economic life is in an economic grave at the present time and yet the P.M. does nothing but make speeches telling of the good times we are enjoying."

Mrs. Newman attacked the government on deficit financing, on unemployment and claiming the Conservatives have discouraged participation in the Commonwealth Plan.

"This is a time when bold and forward leadership is needed", said Mrs. Newman as she attacked the cancellation of the new arrow project.

Liberal Candidate Lloyd Woolsey said Conservatives and Liberal rallies indicated growing support and claimed the Conservatives had become frustrated". He declared that it was the policies between Europe and the Commonwealth by assurances that it will not have to be made.

"Yet it is vital that both British and Commonwealth people should face their choice and should define the alternatives", Mr. Sandys is merely soothing."

The booklet was brought out in time for Commonwealth Day, May 24, and copies are being sent to member countries, Com-

Casual Church Members Scored By Bishop

PICTON — "I do not fear what communists or communism may do to harm the church of the living God as much as I fear the casual and indifferent church members", declared the Bishop of Calgary, Rt. Rev. George Calvert at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, when he was speaking at a service of witness in connection with the 100th anniversary of the Diocese of Ontario.

"As to the church, either you should be 'in' or you should be 'out', he said while scoring the passive indifference of those who claim to be called "retired Christians". Many who formerly carried out their obligations now do not do so. He also scored those parents who are indifferent to the obligations of the newly-confirmed church members to partake of the sacraments. He had no commendation for those families who use every opportunity for a picnic or some outing as an excuse for absenting themselves from the living church.

While it's fatal to the church, it is fatal to the future the Bishop challenged. He urged continuance of service to the church and stressed the power of prayer.

Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario was present for the service which was in charge of the rector, Rev. R. B. DeBlois Wright. A capacity congregation was in attendance.

Britain's Commonwealth Views Outlined by Sandys

Sandys reaffirms the government's promise that, if forced into a decision, Britain would unquestionably choose the Commonwealth rather than Europe, He adds:

"But we do not believe our friends in Europe will confront us with that painful choice. For they know that they too have a fully recognize the value of the Commonwealth."

Britain's entry into Europe via the Common Market, he says, will not be fought "on the principle of destroying the long-established ties between us."

Sandys devotes four pages of the 32-page booklet, "The Commonwealth Today," to the progress of the Common Market and Commonwealth trade.

About 40 per cent of Britain's exports go to the Commonwealth and this, following recent years of expansion after the 1932 Ottawa agreement, may be on the decline.

CIRCUMSTANCES CHANGE

Many circumstances have changed, Sandys says. Britain has increased her production of home-grown foods and reduced her capacity to buy these things abroad. At the same time the higher yields in some Commonwealth markets have restricted British exports.

He stresses that the Common wealth is a child of change and the very looseness of the association plus different rates of evolution within it should be regarded as a kind of strength.

The Times says in an editorial that conscientiousness shines through Sandys' statements in the booklet but "somehow a sense of conviction does not."

The newspaper says Sandys has the right emphasis on Europe and the Commonwealth by assurances that it will not have to be made.

"Yet it is vital that both British and Commonwealth people should face that choice and should define the alternatives", Mr. Sandys is merely soothing."

The booklet was brought out in time for Commonwealth Day, May 24, and copies are being sent to member countries, Com-

Foreign Control Attacked by NDP Leader

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said here Monday night the federal government's patchwork economic policies have resulted in foreign control and domination of investment in some parts of Canada and have left other areas starving for development capital.

"The corporate elite . . . has perpetuated the top - sided patchwork mess," he told a federal election rally.

Mr. Douglas said the old line parties have failed to incorporate private investment into the national economic picture and allowed foreign investors to gain control of Canada's natural resources.

The former Saskatchewan premier said foreign companies in Canada control 97 per cent of the car-making industry, 98 per cent of the rubber industry, 75 per cent of the oil and gas industry and 61 per cent of the mining industry.

He said the NDP would oppose a federal development fund to help Canadians throw off this foreign control.

Prime Minister Attributes Stamina to Managed Diet, Ability to Take Quick Nap

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—"I can run harder than you can, anytime."

The words are the punch line of one of the lighter anecdotes about Prime Minister Diefenbaker as he tells about himself and his dog Happy.

They may have significance in the June 18 election campaign.

The story goes that Mr. Diefenbaker was out for a quiet stroll one Sunday morning with his half-grown golden Labrador when Happy spied a cat and took off in pursuit.

A passing motorist stopped his car at the sight of the prime minister chasing the dog chasing the cat and offered to help. Mr. Diefenbaker took one look at the volunteer's somewhat corpulent build and shouted:

"I can run harder than you can, anytime."

He told reporters later that he caught the dog easily enough but that he was sorry about the remark. He hadn't intended to comment on the physical condition of someone who so readily offered to help him.

The remark was not lost, however, on the seasoned political reporters returning to Ottawa with him from one of his flying engagements at the outset of the election campaign.

When it comes to campaigning, John Diefenbaker has always been one who can run harder than anyone else around him. He leaves reporters, campaign managers, personal staff, and even his wife breathless when they try to keep up with him.

Now 67, Mr. Diefenbaker is seeking his seventh victory as the polls personally, his third as national leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

He attributes his stamina to a carefully managed diet, rich in fresh fruit, milk and cheese. He says his recuperative powers arise from his ability to make good use of every spare campaign moment for a quick nap.

How does he throw off the problems of government and politics temporarily and drop off for a sleep so easily?

"I just clean my mind," he says.

His crinkly hair greyer now than when he became prime minister in June, 1957, and his weight apparently a few pounds more than in the days when he complained in opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker remains devoted to the old military principle that attack is the strongest defence.

He maintains that his fortifications are well built in that his government has carried out or acted upon 46 per cent of the party's 1957 and 1958 election promises. The others are in the legislative or administrative mill, waiting for the outcome of this election, or have been overtaken by passage of time, he says.

When he took office in 1957 with a minority administration—displacing the Liberals after 22 years—none of the ministers had ever had experience in government. Nine months later, on March 31, 1958, the new government won the biggest election sweep in Canada's history, 208 of 265 seats.

Those nine months and the ones that followed saw the government act cautiously and make some mistakes, as Mr. Diefenbaker admits. However, he has said frequently in speeches that while on occasion he may be wrong he has never been and never will be on the side of wrong.

This was the key to the Diefenbaker image built many years earlier when he practised law in Saskatchewan and sat as an opposition backbencher in the Commons.

His interests were with those who needed help in a legal tangle and with those who felt the barbs of racial and other forms of discrimination.

A native of Neustadt, Ont., who grew up in Saskatchewan, he studied law at the University of Saskatchewan after service in the Canadian Army in the First World War and being invalided home from a training camp in England. He started his practice in Wakaw, Sask., and moved later to Prince Albert.

Mr. Diefenbaker suffered political setbacks and almost gave up politics completely after several attempts to become mayor or a member of the legislature. He now says that if he had won even one of those elections, he might never have gone into federal politics.

WORKS LONG HOURS

His was Saskatchewan Conservative leader from 1936 to 1940 when he entered the Commons, sitting first for the old constituency of Lake Centre and since 1953 for Prince Albert. He was elected national party leader in December, 1956.

When Parliament is in session he works about 16 hours a day. He rises about 8 a.m., does an hour's paper-work before breakfast and then leaves for his East Block office on Parliament Hill.

He is an avid angler and reader, with a preference for history and biography.

His constant companion is the gracious and attractive Mrs. Diefenbaker, the former Mrs. Olive Freeman Palmer, a widow and former school teacher whom he married in 1953 and knew in his early Saskatchewan days. His first wife, the former Edna Brower, died in 1951. He has no children.

Astrological Forecast

For May 15
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Time to finish previous plans. "Bright" ideas had best be saved for future use. Do not push, press, demand. Not day to insist. Better take tactful way.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Time to see good business man; save or take personal account of, budget. Be realistic. Listen to one who has your best interests at heart. Do not permit pride to trap you.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Restlessness now could create situation which leads to ultimate embarrassment, regret. Best course is one of moderation. Resist over obligations to others, and yourself.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Tug of war within takes place. You must decide for yourself. Be an individual is true sense. Let no outside influence supercede your duties to work or family.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): You could be misled by person who invite you to "celebrate." You as a Leo are always willing, ready and able. But, today, think twice. There could be an ulterior motive.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Best now to take person at face value. If you try to analyze too much, you could swerve off track. Move ahead. Be truthful. Trust others to play "straight."

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You gain most by being independent and original. Not so good for following "crowd." If an associate expresses fantastic plan beware of "pipe dream."

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): There could be emotions which are deceiving. "Roll" with the punches. Understand that temporary melancholy is only temporary. No tragedy to be alone for a time.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Tendency today is to scatter your forces. You find your greatest asset is a smile, sense of humor. Worst mistake would be "bullying." Accept friendship if offered.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Facts stare you in the face and may be so "bright" you are tempted to turn away. Face them, attend to details, get house in order. Delay parties and celebrations.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Sparkling day and social evening if you wish to make it so. Excellent for romance, creative endeavors. Not time to retreat. Go forward, confident.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Practicality is key. If choice is between "long shot" and tested value, better stick with the tried-and-proven. You could gain much by listening to loved one.

If today is your birthday . . . you are more sensitive than even your closest friends might guess. There are two sides to your nature . . . the one you expose to the public, and your inner self. This could be one of most significant months for you.

• • •

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Virgo, Libra, Scorpio. Not day for any sign to "push." Delay, too high pressured and serious could cause loss.

Spring Training Starts at Camp Petawawa

Canadian Guards Prepare for Summer Pageantry

Bellowed commands chopped short with axe-like shortness, metal-tipped boots thudding asphalt with split-second timing, rifles carried with fence-post precision — this is the 2nd. Battalion, The Canadian Guards training for summertime ceremonies on Parliament Hill. While Ottawa driveways, 90 miles to the east, are coming ablaze with crocus and tulip, khaki-clad guardsmen in shore-sleeved shirts on the parade ground at Camp Petawawa are put through their paces in the bright spring sunshine. The regimental band, the battalion's pipes and drums, practise through the long daylight hours; officers and N.C.O.s supervise drill formations, regulate marching men with pace sticks, rehearse fine points of traditional Trooping the Colour and Changing the Guard ceremonies. After weeks of training and two final dress rehearsals on the Hill itself, the Guards will be ready to resume daily guard changing on June 30. Until the end of August the Guards, in dress uniforms bright with colour and shining brass, will thrill visitors come to watch the elite of Canada's combat infantry on parade in the nation's capital.

These guardsmen will soon be marching in scarlet tunics and bearskins before thousands of summer vacationers.

Eyes right as ranks practise march past in review order. Sailors at Dominion Day ceremony on Ottawa's Parliament Hill will be taken by Canada's Governor General, Major-General G. P. Vanier.

Man Married Over 25 With H.S. Education Has Best Chance Keeping Job

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—If you are married, over 25 and, with a high school education or better, you stand the best chance of keeping your job.

If you haven't finished primary school, you're seven times more likely to be out of work than if you have a full secondary school education.

Moreover, you'll have a better chance of staying out of the employment service office if you work in some industry other than forestry, fishing, trapping or construction. Last year unemployment rates in those industries ranged from 20 to 30 per cent.

The report, bristling with percentages, charts trends in unemployment and provides some of the main facts about the country's jobless — their sex, age, family status, where they live and what kind of industries they come from.

TREND IS UP

It finds a "fundamental long-run upward drift" in unemployment rates running through the up-and-down business cycles of the last 10 years.

In the five years 1951-55, an average 2.5 per cent of the labor force was unemployed. This rose to an average 5.7 per cent during 1956-60 and last year the jobless rate averaged 7.2 per cent.

Job opportunities haven't kept up with the growing labor force—the number of persons who have jobs or want them. Between 1951 and 1961 the number of employed persons rose by 952,000 to an average 6,040,000, a rise of 18.7 per cent. But the labor force increased 24.5 per cent, up by 1,295,000 to 6,518,000.

The report points up one fact of unemployment in a family: it doesn't necessarily mean an ending of the family's earned income.

Four special surveys last year found that in more than half of the families hit by unemployment—52.1 per cent of them—there were one or more other members with a job. In about 22 per cent of these families there were two or more wage earners.

EDUCATION IS FACTOR

On the other side of the coin, however, were the 44.9 per cent of families hit by unemployment in which there was no other wage earner. About one-third of these families had two or three members, another third were families with four or five members and the remaining third of the families had six or more members.

Last year, when unemployment averaged 469,000, just over 45 per cent of the jobless were heads of families. One-third of them were single sons or daughters living with their parents and 11 per cent of the unemployed were other relatives living in families. About nine per cent of the jobless didn't live with family.

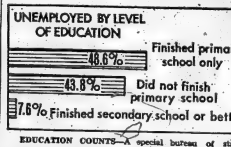
The report, while concentrating on cold statistics without going into the reasons behind them, indicates two main factors in unemployment rates—youth and lack of education.

A special survey in February, 1960, showed an unemployment rate of 18.7 per cent among persons who never finished primary school and only 2.7 per cent among those who finished secondary school or better. The jobless rate was eight per cent for those who had finished primary but not secondary schooling.

HIGHEST IN EAST

"The joint effect of youth and inadequate education is evidenced by the very high unemployment rate — about 20 per cent—for persons under 25 who did not finish primary school," the report says.

The special survey found that more than nine of every 10 joblless in February, 1960, hadn't finished secondary school.



The Atlantic provinces have consistently had the highest unemployment rates —an average 5.5 per cent during the five years 1951-55 and 11.1 per cent last year. Quebec was next highest with 4.5 per cent during 1951-55 and 9.3 per cent last year. Jobless rates in other regions for the same periods: Ontario, 2.7 per cent and 5.5 per cent; Prairie provinces, 2.2 per cent and 4.6 per cent; British Columbia, 4.0 per cent and 8.5 per cent.

Men have consistently had higher unemployment rates than women. Last year 8.4 per cent of the male labor force was unemployed compared with 3.7 per cent of the female labor force.

The average rate for men under 20 was 16.6 per cent, or just about twice the over-all rate for men.

BLUE-COLLAR JOBS HIT

The jobless rate for single men averaged 14.1 per cent last year, more than double the 6.6-per-cent rate for married men.

EDUCATION COUNTS—A special bureau of statistics survey on unemployment in February, 1960, indicated job opportunities and level of education are closely related.

Persons who had not finished primary school represented 21 per cent of the labor force but accounted for 43.8 per cent of the unemployed.

Graph shows more than 92 per cent of unemployed were persons who had not finished secondary school. (CP Newsmap.)

The same held true for women.

The type of occupation also is related to unemployment. Blue-collar workers had a jobless rate between four and five times that of white-collar workers. The blue-collar group includes manufacturing, mechanical, construction and unskilled labouring jobs. Classed as white-collar are those in professional, managerial, clerical, commercial and financial jobs.

Last year the unemployment rate for blue - collar workers averaged 12 per cent compared with 2.6 per cent for white-collar. Blue-collar workers represented only 29 per cent of the labor force but accounted for 52 per cent of unemployment.

Forestry, fishing and trapping industries, as a group, had a jobless rate of 29.3 per cent and the construction industry had a rate of 21.1 per cent. Rates in other industries: mining, quarrying and oil wells, 9.3 per cent; manufacturing, 8.7 per cent; transportation and other utilities, 6.6 per cent; trade, finance and service, 4.1 per cent.

Justice Asks Politicians To Let Him Do Job

Crime Probe Retreads A Lot of Old Ground

TORONTO (CP) — Politicians of more than one party are using the royal commission on crime as a political football, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, suggested today.

Following a rebuke Tuesday to New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. MacDonald he directed a thrust today at another speaker whom he did not identify.

"I think the commission is being used as a political football. In the words of Ontario Appeal Court justice said, and he called on politicians to 'leave me to do the job as best I can,'" and reserve public comments until the report on the investigation has been completed.

His statement was a sequel to Mr. MacDonald Tuesday in which he referred sharply to an earlier one by Mr. MacDonald who was critical of the behavior of Attorney - General Leslie Rob-ert and Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common in connection with the enquiry.

At the opening of today's session NDP counsel Andrew Brewin said Mr. MacDonald had asked him to make clear that the NDP has no request for the commission but that as a member of the legislature he reserves the right to comment as he sees fit on the behavior of public officials.

Mr. Justice Roach replied he does not consider he has said he had made his position clear.

SAYS HE'S DISTRESSING

"It is just a bit distressing to me," he said, "to read that from one political platform the statement is made to the effect that I am engaged in something resembling a whitewash, that obstacles are being placed before me . . . likely to affect the result of the investigation.

"... And that from another political platform it is suggested I should not be here at all, that this is not the way to conduct it, that I should have risen to the commission."

Mr. Justice Roach said his was what had given rise to his view that the commission was being used as a political football. "Such observations are, to put it mildly, distressing to me," he said.

Attorney-General Roberts in the legislature week said he believed in normal judicial procedure there is no right to separate system which permits punishment on suspicion or belief." Mr. Justice Roach said this was an attack on the commission.

Mr. Brewin expressed the hope that the commissioner's observation would be conveyed to those to whom they applied.

In a letter to the statement Tuesday on a statement made Monday by Ontario New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. MacDonald, he asked to be allowed to "deal" without any slanted references by those whose field is in the political arena.

Deputy Attorney - General W. B. Common also offered to the subject up during Tuesday's Health Estimates. Mr. MacDonald's statement had reflected on his "ethical position" and "in connection with attacking the way of confidential legal advice to the government document got into the

Secret Army's Mortars Shell Algiers Casbah

CP from Reuters-AP

ALGIERS — European terrorists fired 10 mortar shells into the Casbah of Algiers today, killing at least one person and wounding 18.

The firing into the old Moslem district of the city followed a rash of separate killings in Algiers which by noon totalled 17, all but two of them Moslems.

In the western Algerian port city of Oran, Europeans in retaliation gunmen had by lunchtime killed six Moslems, including a woman.

One of the slain Europeans was a priest, Abbe Baudet, of the European suburb of Hussein-Dey, a radical bullet hit him in the head at the door of his garage. A European woman was shot to death in her shop.

Today's incidents followed gun and bomb attacks yesterday that produced a toll of 37 dead and 43 wounded throughout this North African territory.

It was one of the worst days of violence since the cease-fire March 19. Eight-one of the dead and most of the wounded were Moslems.

48,400 More Canadians Get Jobless Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—An average of 626,600 persons a week received unemployment insurance benefits during March, the bureau of statistics said in Ottawa today.

This number was 48,400 more than the 580,000 who received benefits in February.

Payments for the March receipts totalled $68,600,000, $10,000,000 more than in February but well below the record monthly payment of $85,000,000 in March, 1961.

At March 30 there were 987,500 persons claiming unemployment insurance: This was 31,000 fewer than at the end of February and 150,000 fewer than a year earlier.

Wide Dragnet Out for Three Men, Woman

ORMSTOWN, Que. (CP)—Police spread out a wide dragnet today for two men and a woman who held up a bank here, touched off a wild gun fight, and escaped with more than $7,000.

The gunfight, masked and heavily armed, escaped in a car that later broke down due to gunshot hits. Then they switched to a stolen truck, kidnapping the driver, and later set off on foot.

Quebec Provincial Police said every available officer in this area of flat, wooded farmlands southwest of Montreal is taking part in the manhunt. All roads are blocked.

The gang held up a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here, firing shotgun blasts in an attempt to smash open the bank's safe, Brodie Britain, the bank manager, and Jean-Paul Beaudry, his assistant, were both hit in the hand by ricocheting slugs.

EUROPEAN UNION ISSUE DIVIDES FRENCH CABINET

5 Quit to Protest De Gaulle's Policy

PARIS—President de Gaulle's government split apart on the issue of European union today as all five cabinet ministers belonging to the Popular Republican Party abruptly resigned.

Pierre Pflimlin, national chairman of the Catholic Movement Republicain Populaire said a staunch advocate of close European union, led the MRP ministers out of the cabinet headed by Premier Georges Pompidou in protest against de Gaulle's European policies as expressed by the French president at his press conference Tuesday.

A joint statement from the MRP ministers said a caucus Tuesday night decided to ask Pompidou to transmit their resignations to de Gaulle.

The surprise move was severe slap at de Gaulle. It came on the eve of a four-day trip through central France which de Gaulle has scheduled.

EQUALS DEPUTY PREMIER

Pflimlin was state minister, a rank which makes him vice premier, in charge of co-operation with the Common Market.

The five ministers called on de Gaulle this morning in addition to the MRP caucus decision. They met with the president for half an hour to submit him of their decision, then left the Elysee Palace without announcing the cabinet meeting.

Under such a supranational system, he declared, a European union would be taken by majority vote of the member nations. But he said he told his press conference Europe's nations would never should learn to live together in a loose confederation and later tighten their relationship.

IS FIRST CRACK

The MRP decision was the first crack in the government formed just a month ago by Pompidou. It forced many difficulties for Pompidou in the National Assembly, many of whose members oppose him as premier because he is not a member of the assembly.

In his press conference de Gaulle said world conditions favored the possibility of negotiation with Russia on the German problem and declared that the future of Europe depends on close ties between France and West Germany.

He also reaffirmed that France will continue to create an independent nuclear striking force and said the 13-year-old NATO alliance needed some changes.

Leaders of Main Political Parties Exchange Potshots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson took shortrange potshots at each other Tuesday during their first head - to - neck election campaign clash into the Maritimes.

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberal chief of "gunboat philosophy" in pledging a 15-mile territorial limit on the Canadian coasts. Such talk was "too dangerous a sport even for a political candidate."

Mr. Pearson described as "not true" the government claim that its budget deficits resulted from increased payments to provinces. They happened unintentionally because the government mismanaged the finances."

Both the major party leaders were touring New Brunswick, the prime minister in the south and his Liberal opponent in northerly sectors. Today in Nova Scotia they are due to miss meeting at New Glasgow by only half an hour. Monday both were in Quebec.

Meanwhile, leaders of the other two parties entering the June 18 vote were about as far apart as their political philosophies.

At Shawville, Que., Robert Thompson of the right - wing Social Credit party said Canada cannot grow properly on bureaucracy, welfare measures and subsidies.

T. C. Douglas of the left-winging New Democrats was in British Columbia. During a Vancouver interview he said the NDP campaign "is growing every day and is going much better than we planned."

Dutch Marines Are Landed In Northern New Guinea

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Fighting has broken out between Indonesian guerrillas and Dutch marines on the north coast of disputed West New Guinea, reports reaching here said today.

The reports, from Indonesia's "New Guinea Theatre Command" at Macassar in the Celebes, said four or five Dutch marines were wounded.

Today's reports of clashes between the Indonesians — claimed Dutch-ruled territory followed the landing of Indonesian paratroopers in the southwestern part of New Guinea early Tuesday. The Dutch high command said it would send reinforcements "to destroy them."

In The Hague a communique announced that Dutch marines had made an amphibious landing and apply counter-attacked 40 Indonesian paratroops dropped near Fak-Fak in southwest Dutch New Guinea Tuesday. The communique also said the Dutch naval patrol had captured 20 armed Indonesian sailors while trying a seaborne infiltration near Fak-Fak.

Meanwhile, The Netherlands has faced with new pressure from Indonesia made by Foreign Minister Subandrio. He told an international students congress Tuesday night that Indonesia is ready to go to war with The Netherlands over the disputed territory.

He said Indonesia wants a peaceful solution to the dispute but the Dutch prefer violence. "will go to war."

MAJOR PLATT'S STATEMENT IS ADMITTED

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj. William Allan Platt, 46, facing a court martial charge of smuggling gold in Indochina, acknowledged three such shipments in a statement admitted Tuesday as evidence.

The chairman was an Indian official called Sen.

Labor Party Serves Ultimatum On Russell Over Moscow Meeting

LONDON (CP) — The Labor party, growing increasingly wary of Communists seeking to damage the party from within, has decided to crack down on the membership of various disarmament groups and its socialist peace movement.

The party's organization committee Tuesday night also recommended that an ultimatum be issued to three prominent party members to disassociate themselves from a world disarmament congress in Moscow this summer or face expulsion.

The three: listed as sponsors of the congress, are: Earl Russell, chairman of the Disarmament Committees of 100; Canon Collins, leader of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, and Labor peer Lord Chorley.

The Moscow session is sponsored by the World Peace Council which was prescribed by the Labor party in 1953. If the three do not give assurance that they will terminate membership the committee will propose the party cancel their memberships.

Of the three, probably Somerville Hastings will be least disturbed by the threat. Hastings, a former Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell of "disgraceful and hypocritical" party members by disorderly clear tests.

There has been no suggestion of Communists at the top of the CND movement, but it has been apparent for some time that there are elements within the ranks hostile to the party. It has been urged in some quarters that the CND be proscribed—that membership in it be made incompatible with party membership.

Father of 8 Slays Wife, Wounds 3, Then Kills Self

TORONTO (CP)—Leo T. Finucane, 43, a father of eight, ran amok with a hammer early today, killed his wife and seriously wounded three daughters before he was overpowered by two teen-age sons.

Finucan's wife, Alice, 43, died in hospital of multiple brain injuries three hours after being bludgeoned.

The two other girls, Mary Lou, 20, and Joanne, 12, suffered severe head injuries.

Police said they knew of no apparent motive for the attacks. They said he had suffered five heart attacks in the last five years.

Police said Mrs. Finucan had been asleep in a downstairs bedroom of the two-storey home. Adele was in the room next to hers.

Say U.S. Tried to Ram Berlin Plan Down Throats of West Germans

WASHINGTON (CP)—A European diplomatic source says the United States in effect tried to ram its 13-country Berlin access authority proposals down West German throats at the Adenauer government refused to accept them.

This informant, amplifying on information provided by American sources, said the U.S. approval was sent to the Bonn administration Friday after a demand that it be endorsed by April 12."

He said the American request came as a shock to the West Germans because they believed their previous objections would have killed the proposal which Chancellor Adenauer considered unacceptable and unworkable.

The irony of the German-American diplomatic wrangling is that Russia has given no indication it would accept the plan under which the West Berlin access authority be administered by representatives of five West, five Communist and three neutral states.

Since the Western and Communist governments initially would oppose each other, Adenauer maintains the futility of the vital routes would be left in the hands of three neutrals — Austria, Sweden and Switzerland.

The issue pushed German and American diplomatic tempers to a boil when the confidential American proposal somehow became widely known in reports in Bonn and State Secretary Rusk called Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroder of West Germany last month accusing

U.S. Forces Begin Landing In Thailand

Urgent Meet of SEATO Council Will Be Held

CP from AP-Reuters

BANGKOK — A dozen U.S. Air Force jet fighter - bombers flew into Bangkok today as the spearhead of a new U.S. Southeast Asian command to help defend Thailand from any Communist thrust from Laos.

U.S. officials announced that the jets had begun landing in this pro - Western country as three ships carrying U.S. marines steamed up the Gulf of Siam toward Bangkok. The marines will bolster American troops already in Thailand.

As the swift super Sabres, each carrying four 20 - millimetre, landed at Bangkok's airport, U.S. military sources reported that Laotian troops had moved back into Houei Sai, the Laotian river town they abandoned last Friday before a Communist offensive.

FADE BACK

U.S. sources said the main body of the Pro - Communist Pathet Lao and its North Vietnamese supporters apparently had faded back 50 miles from Houei Sai. This force was reported at Vien Phou Kha, 50 miles south of Nam Tha, provincial capital of Northwest Laos, a week ago and 100 miles ago at the start of the Red drive in Northern Laos.

About 300 Laotian troops who fled across the Mekong River into Thailand from Houei Sai and set up a defence perimeter 19 miles southeast of town authoritative sources said.

Word came from the three-nation International Control Commission chairman, Avtar Singh of India, that the capitulation of leftist factions in Laos were willing to enter into negotiations for a coalition government with the rightists without conditions.

Expected later today were eight more B-26s and a squadron of A4D Skyhawks, slower but able to hit hard with a load of 6,000 pounds of bombs.

They were to be followed at dawn Thursday by 1,800 marines to be landed at a Thai naval base 80 miles southeast.

Military sources said C-130 transport planes would be flown into Bangkok from Manila's airport to airlift the marines to Thailand's northeast border with Laos.

HOLD SEATO MEETING

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand said an urgent meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) council would be held in Bangkok today to discuss what he called the threat to Southeast Asian security from Laos. He said he expected a spicy penetration of Laos.

Today, 1,000 more marines were joining more than 1,000 troops of the U.S. 27th Infantry Regiment from Hawaii who arrived by air for a recent SEATO exercise. They joined the Thai northeast Thailand because of the Laotian situation.

The marines will be total U.S. forces in Thailand will be built up to 5,000 men under instructions to remain in this country "until further orders."

E. Colebourne Gives Talk to Distributors

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Ernest Colebourne of Belleville, retiring president of the Periodical Distributors of Canada, said Tuesday "the Russians may be on their way to becoming the most literate nation on earth."

He told the group's biennial convention the Russians have 137,401 public libraries containing 783,000,000 books. The figures, he said, came from UNESCO.

The United States has 200,000,000 books in 7,971 libraries and Canada has 12,000,000 books in 873 libraries.

"We all know that our bookstores needs revamping in the kind of merchandise we sell, but keep in mind that an unfavorable image of our product by the public is going to damage our sales volume," Mr. Colebourne said.

Thailand. But it also was considered that the move deepened U.S. determination to help Laos from falling under complete Communist rule.

Besides Thailand and the U.S., the eight-nation defence alliance embraces Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Pakistan.

REPORT HALT ADVANCE

Reports Tuesday said pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops had stopped their advance in northern Laos but there was nothing. This advance began last week with the help of forces of the rightist Vientiane government from the northern Laotian seaport of Savannakhet.

Many of the fleeing rightist forces appeared into northern Thailand instead of carrying out a plan to regroup at the Laotian royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The town was almost completely evacuated of civilians from the fighting. No opposition was ever entered it, Monday night. Soldiers were reported returning to the capital.

But, reports from Radio Thailand said Pathet Lao forces were striking south toward the Thai frontier and warned that the advance could only mean that they intended to extend their influence beyond Laos.

The United States and the Soviet Union announced agreement in Washington for the need of an effective cease-fire and a peaceful political settlement in Laos.

The announcement, following a meeting of State Secretary Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, did not specify whether leftist Lao forces would return to the old cease-fire line in effect before the recent Communist sweep.

Even before announcement of the U.S. landings requested by Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat, I.C. there were signs the Pathet Lao in northwest Laos was beginning to pull back from Thailand's border.

The Royal Laotian government said in a communique from Vientiane that six leftist battalions had withdrawn from the border area around Houei Sai toward the Red Chinese frontier.

'Air Transport' Talk at E.I.C. Trenton Meet

Members of the Belleville Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada attended the meeting, Picton, Trenton, on Monday evening to hear an address by Wing Commander C. H. A. Thompson, Senior Technical Staff Officer of Air Transport Command and Board Member on the operations of RCAF Air Transport Command.

W/C C. H. A. Thompson welcomed members and guests of the E.I.C. to Air Transport Command briefing room where he gave an informative talk on the general requirements and support required to operate an organization such as Air Transport Command efficiently. It was most interesting to note that A.T.C. operated flights to various points connected with the RCAF, NATO and the United Nations is practically all areas of the free world and, as a result of these flights were on a regularly scheduled basis.

To understand how such an organization could operate efficiently it was necessary to know some of the functions, duties or supporting organizations within Air Transport Command such as construction, engineering, aeronautical engineering, telecommunications and engineering and logistic support. All of these areas were well described by the Officers in charge of each section and these supporting talks, together with W/C Thompson's main address, gave all engineers in the audience a good appreciation of the problems involved in operating Air Transport command running smoothly and efficiently.

At the conclusion of an interesting question period W/C H. A. Thompson and all officers who contributed to the success of the evening were thanked by A. C. Tooth M.E.I.C.

Brass Posts and Railings In BCI Auditorium Will Be Replaced by Glass

Those frustrating brass posts and railings along the front of the auditorium in Belleville District Collegiate Institute Auditorium are going to be replaced with glass, it was learned.

The brass railing has been a measure of frustration for those who have attended events in the building was erected 30 years ago have been trying to peer around the brass posts to watch stage performances.

The Bay of Quinte Board will advise the Stirling-Sidney High School Board that it does not feel it should be responsible for payment of tuition and transportation costs for Sidney students attending the Stirling School.

It was noted that a few high school students in the Bay of Quinte area have indicated a preference to attend school at Stirling although they are in the Bay of Quinte area.

TWO RESIGNED

The resignations of two teachers, Miss Beryl Campbell, history department at Quinte Secondary School, and Mrs. Marie Bowerman, Consecon School, were accepted by the board.

A delegate from the Bay of Quinte board will attend the merit rating seminar to be held at York University in Toronto. During the seminar the policy of paying teachers on merit basis as opposed to paying for experience, will be discussed.

Miss Mechanics instructor at Moira Secondary School, Mr. Norman Hartleman, was authorized to attend the provincial advisory committee on motor mechanics meeting.

Use of the Moira School grounds by the Belleville Hockey creation Committee for tract and field competition, was granted by the board.

NO BALL GAMES

A proviso will be that there will be no use of the school ball games.

The use of the Quinte school grounds was not approved by the board as re-seeding will be done during the summer months.

The Moira Schuster Company was awarded the contract for the supply of coal and water-oil for heating of the three high schools. Cities Service will supply the furnace oil for the board administration building on College Street.

And a letter of commendation from the board will go to Miss Marita Sneffella, student at Quinte who won a Unilateral Nations contest and will take a trip to the United Nations and to Washington.

LEADERS OF

Mr. Thompson has a speaking engagement in Belleville, Monday evening.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada could not go along with Mr. Pearson's policy of increasing the present three-mile limit to 12 miles without international agreement. The government was trying to obtain such an agreement although it doesn't look too hopeful now."

The new trade development board would be set up by the government and the Diefenbaker said he hoped the Economic Canal, proposed as a seaway linking across Ontario joining New Brunswick and Nova Scotia will be the first project undertaken.

WOULD STUDY TIDES

"Fullest consideration' would be given to the proposal of mayor of the Bay of Funky tides for a Fundy Tidal Power Project, Diefenbaker assured his audience of 1,100 in a 1,400-seat auditorium in Saint John. He spoke earlier to 300 indoors at Moncton.

Mr. Pearson, whistle-stopping his way to Dalhousie, assured Nova Scotians that the Liberal party would not "sell out to Ottawa."

Hitting at the government contention that the deficits are due to provincial payments, he said the government has entirely failed to deal fairly among the provinces."

The Liberal regime would provide equalization payments to ensure that no province would receive equal per capita shares of the tax fields shared with Ottawa.

ATTACKS PC POLICIES

"This is the only way the provinces can maintain decent standards of service for their people," he said.

He blamed government policies for unemployment and contended that real income is lower and taxes higher after nine five years of Conservative rule. Prices would rise further as a result of the "panic and unplanned devaluation" of the Canadian dollar exchange rate.

"The Tories say that things are fine for Canadians today. I say that if they think things are fine their standards are too low for Canadians," said Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Thompson spent his day in the Okanagan Valley area, stopping at Pembroke, Ont., and the small farming village of Bryson and Shawville on the Quebec side where two speeches drew a total audience of about 125.

The Social Credit leader said there is so little difference between the two old-line parties that they should be called the "PearsonBaker p a r t y." Both the Conservative and Liberals had failed to meet their responsibilities.

He said Mr. Pearson was trying to buy votes by promising higher old age pensions and the prime minister was wooing Prairie farmers with "charity" in the form of acreage payments.

Social Credit would strengthen Canada without sacrificing freedom to the "backward socialism" of the old parties or the "forward socialism" of the NDP.

Mr. Douglas said the Columbia River power treaty with the United States should be renegotiated, no matter what party forms the next government. It had been changed to please Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. and "I, for one, don't like it."

The NDP chieftain labelled as "complete nonsense" statements that his party's campaign was falling off.

E. Colebourne Gives Talk to Distributors

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ernest Colebourne of Belleville, retiring president of the Periodical Distributors of Canada, said Tuesday "the Russians may be on their way to becoming the most literate nation on earth."

He told the group's biennial convention the Russians have 137,801 public libraries containing 783,000,000 books. The figures, he said, came from UNESCO.

The United States has 300,000,000 books in 7,971 libraries and Canada has 12,000,000 books in 873 libraries.

"We all know that our business needs revamping in the kind of merchandise we sell, but keep in mind that an unfavorable image of our product by the public is going to damage our ultimate volume," Mr. Colebourne said.

Oral Polio Vaccine

What is it?

This is a vaccine introduced by Dr. Albert B. Sabin to be taken by mouth. It is composed of three very much weakened strains of polio virus.

Sabin type vaccine has been widely used for several years in many countries of the world. During this time, millions of doses have been given. The vaccine being given is produced by the Connaught Medical Laboratories of Toronto.

How should take it?

It is stressed that all members of a family unit, young and old, should be given this pleasant tasting liquid. The Sabin or Oral Vaccine should be taken in addition to the injection type, it should be taken whether or not it is received first. Vaccine has been received.

By every member of the community receiving this dose within the next few weeks or days, it is hoped to eliminate polio in this area completely.

How is it given?

It is considered that two doses are all that is required. One dose should be given at once and the other one month later. The second dose should not be given before six to eight weeks. In school children it will be given in September or October.

The local dates will be announced later.

Thailand. But it also was considered that the move displayed U.S. determination to keep Laos from falling under complete Communist control.

The "saddlebacks" of the 27th Infantry are now located at Korat in northeastern Thailand.

Besides Thailand and the Philippines, the eight-nation SEATO alliance embraces Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Pakistan.

REPORT HALT ADVANCE

Reports Tuesday said pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops had stopped their advance in Laos, but not before they had forced a neutralist government to withdraw from Nong Khang.

Many of the fleeing rightist forces crossed into northern Thailand instead of carrying out a plan to regroup at the Mekong River in the Nam Tha area.

The town was almost completely evacuated of civilians but the Pathet Lao apparently never entered it. Monday night rightist soldiers were reported returning to it from Thailand.

But, reports from Radio Thailand said the Pathet Lao forces were striking south from the Plaine Des Jarres and warned that the advance would only mean that they intended to extend their influence beyond Laos.

The United States and the Soviet Union announced agreement in Washington for the need of an effective cease-fire and a peaceful political settlement in Laos.

The announcement, following a meeting of State Secretary Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, did not specify whether Neutralist Laotian forces would return to the old cease-fire line in effect before the recent Communist sweep.

Even before announcement of the U.S. landings requested by Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat, there were signs the Pathet Lao in northwest Laos was beginning to pull back from Thailand's border.

The Royal Laotian government said in a communique that from Vientiane that six leftist battalions had withdrawn from the border area around Houei Sai toward the Red Chinese frontier.

Brass Posts and Railings In BCI Auditorium Will Be Replaced by Glass

Those frustrating brass posts and railings along the front of the auditorium at the Collegiate Auditorium are going to be replaced with glass by the board.

The brass railing had been a measure of frustration for the caretaking staff ever since the building was erected 30 years ago. Despite the best of polishing efforts the brass posts to match stage performances.

The Bay of Quinte Board also ordered the Sterling-Rawdon High School Board that it does not feel it should be responsible for payment of telephone and transportation costs for Sidney students attending on the shorter day.

It was noted that a few high school students in the Sidney area have been active in sports and a preference school authority although they are in the Bay of Quinte area.

TWO RESIGNED

The resignations of two teachers, Miss Beryl Campbell, history department head at Bayside Secondary School, and Mrs. Marion Drury, Moira Secondary School, were accepted by the board.

Mr. K. C. Walker was named head of the Quinte history department. During the absence of Miss Campbell, Ronald Robertson was named acting head of the language department at B.C.I., replacing Mrs. Ruth Boyce who is leaving.

A delegate from the Bay of Quinte board will attend the north zone meeting to be held at York University in Toronto. During the meeting the policy of paying teachers on a merit basis as opposed to paying by experience, will be discussed.

Auto mechanics instructor at Moira Secondary School, Mr. Bruce Hartleman, was authorized to attend the provincial advisory committee on motor vehicle repairs.

Use of the Moira School grounds by the Belleville Recreation Commission for track and field competition, was granted by the board.

NO BALL GAMES

A proviso will be that there will be no use of the school building and that there be no ball games.

Use of the Quinte school grounds was not approved by the board as requested will be decided at a future date in two months.

The Moira Scrubber Company was awarded the contract for the supply of coal and bunker oil. Tenders for the new high schools, Cliffs Service will supply the furnace oil and the board administration building on Pinnacle Street.

The board again this year will sponsor buses to Kingston for those students wishing to attend the summer course either to get their year or to upgrade their standing.

A letter of appreciation will go out to the library club of Moira school in appreciation of the supply of curtains for the school library.

The new technical and vocational school addition at Moira school is rapidly being completed and the board last night authorized the purchase of furniture for the addition, which will go into the school.

The Bay of Quinte Secondary School Association are expected to be receiving a charter.

And a letter of commendation from the board will go to Miss Martta Soetjella, student at Quinte who has won a Unilever Scholarship and will take a trip to the United States and to Washington.

Mr. Thompson has a speaking engagement in Timmins, Ont., on May 24th.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada could not go along with Mr. Pearson's plan for developing the present three-mile limit to 12 miles without international agreement. "The government was trying to obtain such an agreement, unlike Liberals who took too hopeful view."

An Ontario development board would be set up by the government and Mr. Diefenbaker said he had asked Premier Robarts of Ontario to consult Canada, proposed as a member of the board. Premiers of provinces joining New Brunswick and Nova Scotia will be the other members of B.C.I.

WOULD STUDY TIDES

"Fullest consideration" would be given to the proposal of Premier of the Bay of Fundy tides for power purposes, Mr. Diefenbaker assured his audience of 1,100 in a 1,450-seat sound-shell auditorium at Saint John. He spoke earlier to 300 lodoors at St. Stephen.

Mr. Pearson, whistle-stopping his way to Dalhousie, assured Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick and Chatham that the province was getting "a square deal" and start strengthening the economy "so that we can give more help to those who want to work."

Youth Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud at his side, Mr. Pearson told his Dalhousie audience of more than 400 the province' share of tax revenue has been more closely under the Conservatives than it did under the previous Liberal administration.

Hitting at the government contention that deficits are due to provincial payments, he said the government "has created hardly anything but fairly among the provinces."

A new Liberal regime would provide equalization payments to ensure that all provinces would receive equal per capita shares of the tax fields shared with Ottawa.

ATTACKS PC POLICIES

"This is the only way the provinces can maintain similar standards of service for their people," he said.

He blamed government policies for unemployment and condemned Ottawa's real income is lower and taxes higher after after five years of Conservative rule. Prices would rise further as a result of the "panic and unplanned devaluation" of the Canadian dollar exchange rate.

"The Tories . . . say that things are fine for Canadians today. I say that if they think things are fine their standards are far too low for Canadians," said Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Thompson spent his day in the Ottawa Valley area, stopping at Pembroke, Ont., and the small farming village of Bryson and Shawville on the Quebec side where two speeches drew a total audience of about 125.

The Social Credit leader said there is so little difference between the two old-line parties that they should be called the "PearsonBaker party." Both the Conservatives and Liberals had failed to meet their responsibilities.

He said Mr. Pearson was trying to buy votes by promising higher old age pensions and the pensa minister was wooing Prairie farmers with subsidy in the form of acreage payments.

Social Credit would strengthen Canada without sacrificing freedom to the "Roosevelt social-ism" of the old parties or the "forward socialism" of the NDP.

Mr. Douglas said the Columbia River power treaty with the United States should be renegotiated, no matter what party forms the next government. It had been changed to please Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. and "I, for one, don't like it."

The NDP chieftain labelled as "complete nonsense" statements that his party's campaign was falling off.

The informant said Schroeder at first had been "cocksure" of victory" reply denying his government "would" the proposals to the press. But this was followed by a second Schroeder message, apparently sent to Adenauer, who complained bitterly of the "unfair harshness of the Bank language.

Authorities close to Rusk, in Washington, said the cable was public, said it was neither harsh nor abusive and if it appeared so, it must have been through some error in translating it from German to German.

These authorities maintain the proposal should have been of no surprise to the Germans since it was first introduced to a meeting of foreign Western ambassadors here last November.

BRIDGE WOULDN'T OPEN

Navigation on the Trent waterways was off to a flying start yesterday. Well, not exactly to a flying start. The Bonita II from Sarnia steamed up to the recently repaired Goodrich bridge in the Division Street area, and booted for the bridge to open. The bridgemaster pulled the lever — well, in the course of the repairs, something had got pulled down or bolted down. Anyhow, the bridge wouldn't budge. Several attempts were made but it seemed best to call in Ted Gerow, the bridge engineer. He could continue on her way.

Two Statements Inadmissible Says Magistrate

TRENTON —A case against Thomas Alan McMeekan, 17, of Trenton, was dismissed by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton court yesterday, when the magistrate found two statements, signed by the accused, inadmissible.

McMeekan had been charged with stealing two car door locks.

Ralph Graham, defending the accused, argued that the statements taken from the defendant were inadmissible because the police officer taking the statements had made remarks which might be construed as "enlightening" to the accused.

The officer, Constable S. Vickers, admitted that he might have advised the accused to "make a clean breast of it," but insisted that if he had said this, he had added, "if you have anything to say."

Constable Vickers denied that he had told the accused "tomorrow is my day off. If I have to work on this on my day off it won't be the first time, but if I do, it'll go harder with you."

Magistrate Wills said that he could not believe that an officer of Constable Vickers' experience would make such a statement as the one, but ruled the statements inadmissible on the strength of the possibility that the officer had made the first statement attributed to him.

Case Enlarged Until After The Election

TRENTON—In magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday, Robert Simpson, of Trenton, was remanded on bail until June 19.

Mr. Simpson is being defended on the charge by Robert Paul and Bradley.

A representative from Mr. Temple's office told Magistrate T. Y. Wills that Mr. Temple would like the case enlarged.

"I want to be there!" enquired the magistrate.

"Yes," June 19.

The court smiled.

(June 18 has been set as the date for the federal election. Mr. Temple is Liberal candidate in Hastings-Frontenac.)

"I can assure you that I'm not going to enlarge cases wholesale in order to be here June," said the magistrate.

Mr. Russell Brown Mr. Temple's office assured the magistrate that such would not be the case.

Paul and Bradley were surprised by what they described as groans and a thumping noise.

Paul said he thought the man was an intruder and tackled him while Bradley turned on the light.

When the boy realized it was his father he let him go. The father turned on the boy, but Bradley went to the rescue and they subdued him.

As the boys took him into the kitchen, Flinnie told them: "I'm okay now."

Paul went to get his father a drink of water while Bradley turned on the light in the kitchen.

Flinnie grabbed at a butcher knife and slashed it across his throat. He died within seconds.

Quinte Area Praised for Social Set-Up

TRENTON — Rev. Hector Beach of Frankford, speaking at this week's meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club said he felt it would lend the "spirit of Canadian progress" if each "visitor of the men of town" to make Canada the country it could be. "Canada is a big country," he said, in fact, to meet the needs of the new world. And the patriotism must be forgotten.

Mr. Beach told the club members that living in the Quinte area, they were living in an "ideal social set-up." He said that almost nowhere else in Canada could one find the "best" of an industrial centre one minute an din the wonderland of nature, the next.

Mr. Beach compared the efforts of the pioneers to carve a civilization out of the wilderness with the tremendous task of building of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

He said that the old saw that "every day in every way, things are getting better and better", did not apply now-a-days and that we must be "intentional" about progress; that progress was not inevitable.

"The world must learn to live as a unit", said the speaker, "We can't live a 'nations!' life and live in the world that's coming."

Mr. Beach was introduced by Rotarian Ted Blewett, and thanked by Roy Cornish.

Miss J. Moyer, Head of VON, Resigns Post

TRENTON — Miss Joan Moyer, head of VON nursing service in Trenton for the past two years, has resigned to head up nursing service with St. Peter-borough VON unit, and will be leaving Trenton in July.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Finkle, Clare Finkle. Mr. Finkle is the immediate past president of the Trenton branch.

A replacement for Miss Moyer has been suggested by the local Trenton VON office.

Vice-president George Greer conducted the meeting in the absence of Trenton VON president Mrs. Ralph Fox. Mr. Greer asked that letters of thanks be sent to everyone who contributed to the success of the VON tea in April. He suggested that cards for sick people be sent out by the Trenton Legion branch in the use of the Legion hall for the tea.

Miss Moyer reported that the nursing staff had made 176 home visits in April. Four of these were to Shannonville and 19 to Middleport Park. Miss Moyer said that there had been fewer calls for nursing care last month but that there had been an increased need for post-natal and baby care.

Miss Moyer said that she had spent much of her time visiting to separate schools last month testing vision, but that she had found that there was no need for glasses in most cases.

Mrs. Jean Mowbray, who will convene the VON tag days, May 20-21-22, reported that more taggers were needed. Each tagger will be asked to devote an hour to the tag day. The hours are 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, May 20th, and from 8.30 on Saturday, May 21st.

Mr. Finkle, as a member of the Trenton Kiwanis Club of governors, will attend the national convention in Ottawa, June 12 and 13. He will be presented to Queen Mother Elizabeth at one function. Mrs. Finkle and Mr. and Mrs. Barlow may attend the convention also.

Lieutenant Governor Award Presented to Kiwanis Club

The Belleville Kiwanis Club was presented with the Lieutenant Governor Award, at their noon luncheon meeting today, by the Lt.-Gov. Ewan Black of Kingston.

The award was accepted on behalf of the Belleville Club by Kiwanis President Jim Reid, for the first quarter of 1952.

The Lt.-Gov. meets with each club four times a year, and this was his third official visit to the Belleville club.

In his closing remarks Lt. Black said he was looking forward to being able to return to the Belleville club with another award.

In addressing the club, Mr. Black pointed out two clubs in the division which were problem clubs. He said the Kenmore club was a very poor club and since their new president was elected he has boosted the club up to meet the Kiwanis requirements.

With only six active members of this Cobourg club, they are unable to keep enough men in it's why larger interclub meetings are needed. "They have," said Lt.-Gov. Black, "one of the most active key clubs in this division. This is the high school Kiwanis Club and it is very embarrassing to the Kiwanians.

This club has lost its president and immediately after the vice-president was elected into office he was admitted to the hospital.

"I always think of Kiwanis as a family," Mr. Black said, "and I think this club should be helped and we can do this by increasing the interclub visits."

NEED MORE MEMBERS

Lt. Gov. Black said he was much pleased with this division but said their biggest problem here, was membership.

He told the club that the Bath-Millhaven Club, which had been meeting in a small hall at Bath, had moved their headquarters to the new Bay, to Club 33.

Mr. Black said he always looked to the Belleville Kiwanis Club as the no problem club. "This club has been very active, with the scouts and the various drives which are put on.

In closing Mr. Black said, "I think that Kiwanis should not be forgotten, and that is why the wonderful fellowship you always get out of Kiwanis."

Some 50 members were in attendance.

Next week, a round table will be held at the Kiwanis centre on Tuesday with a tour on Wednesday which will take the club to Trenton, where they will be taken on a tour of RCAF Station, Trenton, commencing at 2.00 p.m.

A special sing-song was rendered by members who acted as an inter-club to Syracuse last week.

A Club group from Kingston was in attendance at Tuesday's meeting.

The New Puritans

The current issue of "Editor and Publisher," U.S. trade magazine for newspapermen, carries the text of an address which was given April 18 to the Amherst Society of Newspaper Editors by Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa Tribune.

His speech was entitled "How About Raising Hell?" For most of his address Mr. Jones raised hell with the present state of education, morals and motivation in the U.S. Much of what he said applies equally well to Canada. But, having an American, he could not resist the temptation to relate these woes to the Cold War.

"Do you know what scares me about the communists?" he said. "It's not their political system, which is primitive and savage. It's not their economic system which works so badly that progress in a few directions is purchased at the price of progress in all the rest. It is their puritanism."

Now we suspect that there will be many ardent anti-communists who have never regarded the Reds as puritans, but in the sense which Mr. Jones uses the word he obviously without any reference to religious convictions, his view of them is easily documented. We have only to recall Khrushchev's disgust when he witnessed the can-can dance during his Hollywood visit—one of the moves published through admittedly least important samples of this puritanism. Of course, disliking the can-can does not make one a puritan but when strait-laced views are accompanied by a readiness to impose similar standards on everyone, then the label of puritanism, in the sense Mr. Jones used it, is justified.

Many of the moves which have incensed the communists' puritanism have, like Mr. Jones, been greatly alarmed by it—but not all for the same reasons as those which apparently prompt concern in Mr. Jones. He seems to be worried because the Russians are puritans and the Americans are not—feeling that it would be much more appropriate if the roles were reversed. There are others who are alarmed at Russian puritanism because they fear all puritanism and regard is as doubly dangerous when associated with a political creed which is abruptly fanatical and ruthless. Still others find it dangerous by the existence of the puritan's "confidence that they are morally superior."

Foes of puritanism always face the danger of being labelled lovers of evil, because so many puritans have admirable qualities. As Mr. Jones says, "our Americanized puritan ancestors . . . were a tremendous people." They had energy, they had courage, they had high moral standards. Mr. Jones will grant that they were "hag-ridden and guilt-ridden and theirs was a repressed, a neurotic society." But he fails to mention the unhappy fact that characteristic of all puritans—they were cruel. They burned witches. Those who possess a conviction of moral superiority are always woefully severe with sinners. And, to the puritan, much that comes naturally is a sin.

Puritanism is held in such high esteem by so many people in the western world that they, if they recognize the puritanism of communists at all, tend to consider that communists are cruel in spite of their puritanism, rather than because of it. It is easier to ignore puritanism's existence. Then one can distort the propaganda those virtues which puritanism produces —a willingness to work long and hard and to sacrifice for others or for the future, an eagerness to pay one's way so that Russian children, as Mr. Jones reports, tear off their Young Pioneer badges to give in exchange for new Lincoln pennies rather than accept a gift.

But when Mr. Jones says that "Russian literature may be corny, but it's clean," we think he goes too far. This may be true of the potboiler and the propaganda book. But the best of modern Russian literature today is in the best tradition of the nation and language, introspective, emotional about the soft beauties of bird and flower found in a hard land, yet harsh as a Russian winter when it serves the writer's purpose, realistic in a way that is certainly not corny to anyone and is clean only to the non-puritan.

Russia will be cured of her puritanism. It sits ill with her history. It would be unfortunate if the pendulum swung so that Americans, really a lusty, bawdy people at the best traditions of Elizabethan England, should embrace a creed for which their present polygot racial background and their adventurous past has long since made them unfit.

Perhaps they should take a tip from yet another Harvard man and, reading the lone venture into fiction of the philosopher George Santayana, "The Last Puritan," should realize that others besides the puritans can be virtuous —though the task may be more difficult when one embraces virtue for love of it, rather than from a sense of duty.

Booming Sale Of Books on Animal Life

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In times of stress, such as ours, the human animal invariably turns away from itself to the contemplation of other animals. Somehow, life among the "lower orders" seems highly more satisfactory, and more satisfactory, than our own.

Nothing else would account for the free rush of best-selling books about animal life of all kinds. And this is not a purely American phenomenon: a new issue of "The Boob-bellies," published in England, lists a dozen and more books about dogs, cats, and assorted exotic creatures.

There is, "Timmy, the Story of a Sparrow," by Clare Kipps — and not a children's book, so one might imagine. There is a serious study called "Man and Dolphin," by John C. Lilly, which will also definitely comes to second.

Right titles in an "Animals of Britain" series are now ready — including the habits and antics of badgers, horseshoe bats, hedgehogs, water voles (whatever they are), grey squirrels, red squirrels, otters and otherwise.

People are apparently tired of reading about people. How else account for "The Story of a Goldfish" by Roger Mayne, translated, of course, from the French? Or "Penguin Summer," by Eleanor Pettingill, an ornithologist's wife who lived on the Falkland Islands when her husband was studying penguins for Walt Disney?

The trend began, I suppose, a few years ago with that rather charming book about a lioness cub, called "Born Free." It did so well that a British publisher is now bringing out "Return to Born Free," by Joy Adamson, the French? Or "Penguin Summer," by Eleanor Pettingill, an ornithologist's wife who lived on the Falkland Islands when her husband was studying penguins for Walt Disney?

The trend began, I suppose, a few years ago with that rather charming book about a lioness cub, called "Born Free." Recent gasoline restrictions have led to the limiting of the weekly milk run and each one may cruise. Today it was revealed Corporation Milk Inspector Hall had been removed from service by order of the Transit Controller at Ottawa. One last concern that had operated four cars in the past, was informed that no taxi cab would be all that would be allowed in the future.

Last night the Dairy Products Board ordered that cheese purchased on and after Tuesday for export to Britain, be purchased from the factory of manufacture on the basis of nineteen and 5-8 cents per pound F.O.B. Montreal for first grade cheese.

Eggs are selling on the market at 11 cents to 13 cents per dozen; the market is fairly filled with them. Butter is bringing 20 cents to 23 cents per pound; and young chickens sell at 60 cents to $1.25 each; potatoes sell at 35 cents per peck.

At two o'clock this afternoon the thermometer registered eighty degrees in the shade which is a record for this time of the year. Yesterday's temperatures were 73 high and 50 low.

Litter Costs Are Enormous

Oshawa Times

The Ontario Department of Highways has spent well over $100,000 to clear litter and repair the damage of highway vandalism, according to Minister of highways in the Oshawa-Barrie-Oshawa triangle. Add to that the amounts spent on street-cleaning by the municipalities in the province, and $1,000,000 by the city of Toronto alone in 1960, and you have taxpayers representing no mean sum.

It is the taxpayers, of course, who do the littering, although it is likely that much of the litter is dumped by a minority and the majority must pay for the filthy habits of the inconsiderate few.

The Ontario Forestry Association has launched a campaign for "good outdoor manners" — and if it is good manners to keep a place clean. We wish the campaign well in its effort to persuade people not to take their garbage, bottles and other garbage along the country roads and superhighways. We fear, however, that much of the association's membership will be among those already the converted. We should like to see more of a big stick to deal with the litterbug.

It is agreed that more police patrols are needed on the highways. Stepped-up patrols could watch for litter-bugs as well as traffic offenders. And if that is the penalties, in addition to the prescribed fine, should well be the sentencing of an offender to a highway clean-up. He could be assigned, for example, to picking up every bottle, empty cigarette pack and candy bar wrapper along a mile or so of highway. This punishment has been tried in some parts of the United States and has proved to be a fair effective deterrent.

New Spring Shades

Port Elgin Times

The fashion world has created some new names for the colors of its spring styles, such as maple sugar brown, violette green, regency red, venetian blue, and Renaissance purple. The husbands who foot the bills for these fashions have some new colors also to describe red, overdrawn or tight money purple and bankrupt blue.

Older Driver Given Advice

Welland Tribune

Most safety proposals are directed at the teen-aged driver. But there is also a problem with the driver of the 50s, 60s and 70s, and that has to do with the older driver.

A young driver's condition is given as open, bitter and reckless. The older driver in Ontario who continues to drive cars. The latter is by F. R. Hall, general manager of the Ontario Safety League.

Most of the advice given in this letter could well apply to drivers of all ages.

"Let's consider frankly their basic realities," says the writer. "Firstly, your perception is declining; you just don't see and hear as well now. Secondly, your judgment is slowing down; you can't recognize traffic situations as quickly. Thirdly, your reflexes are failing; you can't react quickly enough. Fourthly, your physical condition is declining; you just haven't quite the speed and vigor in an emergency. Finally, you are becoming more susceptible to injury and death; what might have been a minor accident ten years ago could have serious consequences now.

"Your family and friends of the same age are making some adjustments to help meet these adverse realities — some quite unconsciously. You try to avoid driving when you're tired or upset. You are driving more slowly. Wives is good — up to a point. But your driving habits are also changing in less desirable ways. For instance:

"You don't yield the right-of-way enough. Or perhaps you are not sufficiently familiar with the rules of the road? Or do you have poor hearing?

"You are making too many lane-proper turns. Turning from or into the wrong lane is your most frequent error. Perhaps you forgotten the proper procedure?

"You are disregarding many signals; the reason is probably that you don't see them clearly.

"Driving isn't nearly as much pleasure as it used to be. Other drivers spoil things because of their lack of tact and courtesy, and the symbolism of the car have reached the end of the road.

"You age far from being the scapegoat for traffic accidents. Nobody wants you to give up completely your privilege to drive. But I do urge you to be realistic about your ability to compensate for your faults. Have periodic examinations — you could save your driving licence. Keep up to date on the rules of the road. Take some brushing-up lessons from a driving instructor.

"Witness face with dignity the reality that one day you'll have to give up the wheel. With great sincerity I say that I hope you will not delay until you have run over a child, or been involved in a accident ward, or facing the charge of killing a man on the falling light."

Sea Water Found Inland

(By F. W. Luce in the Christian Science Monitor)

A fragment of sea water, about 12,000 years old, is found in a mine in Canada, and Dr. H. Heath is the geologist in charge of the deep basin in Powell Lake, near the town of Powell River, in British Columbia, where the mine is situated. Powell Lake is 400 feet above sea level.

This is only the second time such a thing has been found inland in the world. Some years ago a similar discovery was covered in Scandinavia, but this was comparatively new. It was found by accident.

Dr. George Pickard, physicist at the Pacific Oceanographic Department of the University of British Columbia; Dr. William Ricker, biologist, and Dr. Peter Williams, chemist, are the scientists who made the latest discovery. Dr. Pickard gives details in these words:

"Tens of thousands of years ago this area was covered by the sea. During the ice age the water froze, and when it melted this melted the land bulged and formed a barrier to the present Gulf of Georgia. A lake water was trapped in this basin, and as the lake received fresh water over the years from creeks and streams the salt water, being heavier than fresh water, gradually sank to the bottom and did not much evaporate.

"The sea water was drawn up in a tube sent down 1,200 feet, and sealed at that depth. It is amber in color, bubbles when shaken, and has a distinctive smell. It contains hydrogen sulphide, which produces a dangerous gas. It has no oxygen."

To Your Good Health

Mother Nature Demands Proper Amount of Sleep

A sergeant at an army post writes: "We were arguing on the subject of whether a person can get too much sleep. I say the human body is made so it won't let us get too much. Am I right? — Set. W.W.

Friend sergeant, if there's any money riding on your argument, I suggest calling it a draw. There are various theories about the causation of sleep. While we can measure changes in the body quite accurately, we still don't wholly understand sleep.

For practical purposes, you are pretty much right. When we have had enough sleep, we wake up refreshed. Some people who "don't get up until noon" on Sundays aren't really sleeping — just drowsing and being lazy.

Other times they may really be sleeping, catching up on what they've missed earlier in the week. It doesn't hurt a person to sleep for prolonged periods of ten or even 24 hours at a stretch, if he or she is tired enough to need it.

My guess, from casual observation, is that most people get about 20 hours a day, an adult about 8, give or take a little. Most of us seem to be a routine of one sort or another, depending on when we have to get to school, or to work, or when we have something we want to do. Bored people probably get a lot longer.

People like Thomas A. Edison used to claim that a very brief nightly sleep was enough, but in this way I fear they managed to grab cat-naps in idle moments of the day when no one saw them.

There is, to be sure, a disorder called narcolepsy, A victim can fall asleep standing hanging in a subway! But I'm sure that is not part of the question. It's strictly abnormal.

Enough normal sleep is necessary for us to restore our cells, tissues, muscles, retas, metabolism, to keep the heart slowed down, all of the body rests.

Over-sleeping, on the other hand, probably does no physical harm except that people lose a little edge, and many of us generally get out of condition.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to speed up healing of cloth where a person has repeatedly picked off scabs? She has red blotches all over. We have had that said to us: It's cause them to disappear. A — Mrs. B.G.

A scab is "nature's bandage," formed of dried juices from the blood and flesh. If a scab is picked off before it is ready to be, new tissues may not grow as forms, and requires sufficient time to harden, then loosen and fall. This picking is a habit and a complete healing, and may let infection get in, which is a waste still more time. No, there's no way to hurry it.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes infectious mononucleosis? Is there a cure? — Mrs. B.G.

Probably a virus. There is no "cure" in the sense of a treatment that puts an end to the disease, just as there is no "cure" for a cold. But both are self-limiting diseases which cure themselves. Mono, however, takes longer — often a month or more, and the lassitude and tiredness may run out of proportion to the rather mild elevation of temperature, mild sore throats, other such-like annoyances.

You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHIPS OR ARGUMENTS

When David Livingstone, the African explorer and missionary, was beginning his work, he had some difficulty in making converts among the natives of a certain village. The native chief, who liked Livingstone, offered to assist the missionary. "I'll send for my head man," he said, "and we'll beat the people with rhinoceros-hide whips until they are all converted."

Naturally Dr. Livingstone declined this chief's other and continued to teach the people and cure the sick day by day. After he had lived in the village some time, he began to make many converts to Christ. The natives had learned what a splendid, helpful man Living stone was, and they believed in him. The result was simple.

The native chief had not discovered a great truth which Livingstone already knew, that good example is a better teacher than force. Moreover, people around us at work and at home who remind us of the old chief — they try to force their ideas on their associates by shouting, bullying, loud arguments, and a great deal of talk. But it is easier to shout people down than to convince them inwardly. More often the truly influential are the quiet, helpful people who inspire us to accept their ideas by the example of their own actions.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"What we should have done," said an old sportsman friend of mine, "was keep our big mouths shut."

He was referring to the fact that as young men, forty years ago, we helped sportsmen's associations and clubs and stood up to speak eloquently about the joys of fishing. What is more, we urged friends to join. And both of us being newspapermen, we seized every opportunity to go into print with relatives about rod and line and the well-nigh indescribable delights of lake and stream.

"What a fool thing that was," said an old sportsman friend of mine, "was keep our big mouths shut."

He was referring to the fact that as young men, forty years ago, we helped sportsmen's associations and clubs and stood up to speak eloquently about the joys of fishing. What is more, we urged friends to join. And both of us being newspapermen, we seized every opportunity to go into print with relatives about rod and line and the well-nigh indescribable delights of lake and stream.

"Last weekend," said a wry friend, "I was up to the Pixi River and spent a day and two nights in a tent. I had to fish all day up and down two miles of secret water, and never saw another angler. I won't believe me when I tell you that there was a fisherman — or a fisherwoman! — every twenty feet up and down every yard of those two miles, cars parked bumper to bumper along the riverside and dozens of them in the farmers' fields. Never saw anything like anything!" I asked wistfully.

"No," said my old friend, smugly.

JUSTICE ASKS

hands of counsel for gamblers. Mr. MacDonald also attacked Attorney - General Kelso Roberts.

The commissioner said the temporarily stormy episode of the document last week had been satisfactorily disposed of at the time.

TOUCHES WIDE AREA

On the investigation side, the commission wavered back and forth over a wide area—sometimes retreading old ground—and from a variety of witnesses, picked up such bits and pieces of evidence as:

1. That Harry Ramsbottom, Chatham, said he had been somewhat shocked in 1957 when James Bartlett, now deputy commissioner, sought secret information in connection with a planned gambling club raid near Windsor. Bartlett has previously denied another witness' testimony that he asked for the identity of an undercover police informant.

2. Jack Laffrade of Toronto, longtime associate of gamblers Joseph McDermott and Wilfred Feeley, told a highly - sceptical commission that he amassed $30,000 cash as a $75-a-week beer truck driver with the help of his father's income-tax rationing. At one point, Mr. Justice Roach told him he didn't believe him and warned him of perjury.

3. Police Chief W. Jack Shrubb of Peterborough and Crown Attorney John Bradshaw of the latter city gave contradicting testimony about circumstances involving the attorney-general's department in the 1957 prosecution of a gambling place there.

4. McDermott and Feeley used the telephone number of Helen Costello of nearby Port Credit to charge up long distance telephone calls. They invested the OPP, though she claimed she knew only that she had authorized its use through Laffrade, for a bookie called "Stanley."

5. Maureen Davidson, a former phone company employee, testified McDermott told her he used the Costello phone, among several, for business. But from the OPP and she also said the subscriber told her she had made the arrangement with McDermott.

6. Laffrade denied a statement in earlier evidence by Police Chief Harold Mellish of nearby Toronto Township that he once offered the chief three cases of liquor—to keep him posted on any action to be taken against the McDermott-Feeley gambling club at Cooksville, where Laffrade's brother was steward.

DOZENT CONCERN

In commending on the NDP leader's statement, Mr. Justice Roach said he understood an inquiry said as his was bound to have some political overtones. That did not concern him at all.

"But it does not help me when there are utterances such as this," he added. "I would ask those whose endeavors are in the political arena to kindly refrain from making this probe a political football. It does not help me a bit."

"I have a job here that poses from time to time problems that are difficult," he said, "I would be assured if I were but to do the job to the best of my ability without any slanted reference, by those whose field is in the political arena, to supposed obstacles put in my way.

"There have been none to date, and I expect there will be none in the future.

"If they will just let me do this job and not make this more difficult for me by public utterances such as those reported to by Mr. Common, I would at least not be embarrassed by them."

TESTIMONY DIFFERS

The differing testimony between Police Chief Shrubb and Crown Attorney Bradshaw developed out of a 1957 prosecution that followed an OPP raid on the Tisdale Club at Peterborough when the officer relied on the OPP's anti - gambling squad. McDermott and Feeley had an interest in the club.

Originally, convictions were registered and fall sentences imposed. On appeal, new trials were ordered. A new magistrate was named for the trial, and subsequently a third after a series of legal technicalities.

Shrubb Tuesday produced a father-to-confidential report he wrote at the time quoting Bradshaw as saying after a talk with Common, then director of public prosecutions:

1. The director had talked the accused's lawyer out of trying to get still another magistrate because he would not be "good politics" — an expedition not clarified.

2. The director had suggested fines instead of jail might result in guilty pleas but Bradshaw would not be a party to any "arrangement." Shrubb also wrote that he did not like this either.)

3. Bradshaw had said: "What's going on in Toronto, anyway?"

CONFIRMS PREDICTION

Eventually, guilty pleas were accepted and fines imposed, which Shrubb saw as confirming an earlier prediction by Feeley to him, except that $50 seized on the found-ins was confiscated.

The prosecutor testified after Shrubb had said he found he's high regard for the officer, he could suspect no such conversation as was mentioned.

"I am convinced in my own mind that at his conversation bearing the implication in (Shrubb's) statement, especially the use of the word 'arrangement,' I would have said something to the effect that I don't want anything to do with it, eventually we sit down after a 1957 raid."

His evidence considerably established that of- Insp. Jack Hatch, then sergeant-in-charge of headquarters' morals and gambling squad, who had testified that Bartlett tried to get him to arrange a conference agent after one conference had been held in Bradshaw's office. Hatch and Ramsbottom were to know it.

DENIES ALLEGATIONS

Previous police evidence—denied by Bartlett—was to the effect that the gamblers' lawyer said that he was on the payroll for tipoffs on raids. At the time of conference, he was an assistant commissioner, just before the present No. 2 post on the force.

Ramsbottom said that, after the meeting, Bartlett had asked either "What have you got" or "Who have you got?" concerning the Rosedale.

"He might have had some reason, but it sounded silly to me" the officer said.

"Were you not shocked when Bartlett asked this information?"

"A little shocked," the inspector said.

"I don't think so," the lawyer observed.

The dapper Laffrade, who said he hadn't worked since 1955 but did some bookmaking "in a small way," led the inquiry through a maze of financial transactions accounting for his acquisition of some $80,000 worth of real estate. His mathematics left inquisitors far behind.

ADDS TO $30,000

With the help of his running as high as $100 a week, he said, he had accumulated $30,000 as a truck driver in the refrigerating period when thirsty Torontonians showed their appreciation for a case.

At one time he had $15,000 in a safety deposit box and $10,000 in a tin box at home—the latter was safe as a bank and somewhere he's got a losing streak at gambling. To acquire several properties, he had borrowed up to $27,000 from various family members, all in cash.

He also had paid some $16,000 cash when the income tax department caught up with him in 1958. Some of this was borrowed, some in cash. For one transaction, a sister lent him $5,000—in cash.

"You have sisters running around with $5,000 in cash?" asked Stanley Hogg, Liberal party counsel. They had good jobs, the witness explained.

"I want the names of these sisters," the commissioner said, "We'll hear more of this later."

Algerian Vote To Be July 1

PARIS (Reuters) — The self-determination vote in Algeria will take place July 1, the French cabinet decided today. Announcement of the date for the vote was made by a cabinet spokesman.

France last month overwhelmingly voted in a referendum to back President Charles de Gaulle's policies aimed at self-determination for Algeria.

That ballot cleared the way for the one in Algeria itself which is expected to produce massive approval for independence.

Fire Destroys Barn, Contents $30,000 Loss

A barn, situated on the farm of Mr. Fred Scott, of R.R. 1, Belleville was completely destroyed by a fire Tuesday night. Loss of the barn and contents was estimated at $30,000.

The farm, although owned by Mr. Scott, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Smith, and was situated on the second concession of Ameliasburg.

The barn was believed to have contained three or four farm tractors and a large quantity of hay. All were lost in the blaze.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the cause of the blaze is as yet unknown.

One fire reel was sent to the scene and later a call was sent in to the department for the assistance of another pumper, to serve the house, as it was in danger as flames roared through the dry hay.

The barn itself was said to be valued at $20,000. Firemen remained at the scene for some time in an attempt to save the farm house as the tremendous heat from the fire reached the house, located nearby.

Second Play In Festival Is Presented

WINNIPEG (CP) — The second of eight entries in the Dominion Drama Festival went on stage here Tuesday with the Playgoers of Lethbridge bringing mixed adjudicating comments for their portrayal of a southern community scene.

The production, The Dark at the Top of the Stairs, by William Inge—was described by Tyrone Guthrie, adjudicator for John Berry as a reflection of a "too Americanized family picture" but also as good drama with an "uneasy production."

Research Field Covered by H. Brewer Hunt

A Brewer Hunt, former manager of the Northern Electric Company was the guest speaker at the Foremen's club "ladies' night" at the Legion on evening at Columbus Hall.

Mr. Hunt's address was on the subject "Industrial Research in Canada," and he compared the performance of the great research race with that of the United States.

He said if we in Canada were to expand in the research field, we would have to put more into technology and research management.

Mr. Hunt said we are today involved in what is known as a technology explosion. To be successful and to make something out of our advancements and profit by them we must secure research management.

The speaker went on to explain the rapid growth of technology. He said that nearly 1-5 per cent on the average of the sales dollar was spent on research and development and about 10.5 on communication. There was a lack of trained senior management wouldn't be surprised to go ahead without knowing the reason why he said.

SPENDING BILLIONS

Today in the United States they are spending 15 billion dollars a research and development, more than half our total. In Canada we are spending about 350 million and if you doubled that amount it would be a drop in the bucket as compared to the United States.

He said in a very different economy and to this we must add climate and our scattered population. This dictated the small production as compared to the mass production of the U.S.

In 1960 there were 19,500 scientists engineers put into Canada. 35.6 per cent of our total production and 40 per cent of exports were compact cars from European countries, without frills and added luxuries.

In the far north they are using a new method of communication much of which was manufactured at Northern Electric here in Belleville and it was only just recently we were told that the details of the mechanism were being made at the plant in Ottawa.

In conclusion the speaker said, we cannot afford to duplicate or copy and carry on with the rest of the United States.

With the co-operation of the management, we as Canadians should know what Canadians want and be able to supply it instead of what is manufactured in some European country.

Some 50 members and their wives were in attendance.

Immediately following the speaker's address a dance was held in the hall, concluding an enjoyable evening.

GET PAPAL ORDERS

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)— Former premier J. A. Costello and External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland have received the Grand Cross of the Order of Pius IX, third highest of the papal orders of chivalry, the Holy See's official gazette announced today.

MAJOR PLATT'S

Two external affairs employees were suspended.

Maj. Platt, 53 years service with the Royal Canadian Dentistry, has pleaded not guilty to the smuggling charge, laid as penalties to good order and discipline.

The statement attributed to him said he was supposed to get 4,000 platters, or about 340 Canadian dollars, for each case (12,000 pounds) of gold but that up to Nov. 30 "I have received no money or no commission."

The statement said Maj. Platt had been approached recently by a Mr. Hung in Saigon, South Viet Nam, to ship gold to Laos, where gold and United States currency were freely available. The defence holds that both items bring good prices in South Viet Nam, where controls exist.

Asked to ship gold from Laos the second time, said the statement, the major agreed and arranged with Sgt. J. M. Champagne at Saigon to accept parcels mailed from Vientiane. Three had been shipped by Nov. 16 and the "people carrying the shipments for me had no knowledge of the contents." Then, the statement, the major called it quits.

ACTED UNWITTINGLY

Capt. G. C. Anderson, Sgt. J. R. B. Fournier and Pte. G. A. West all recounted Tuesday how they were contacted by Platt. The first two men acted unwittingly, they said. West was the unscrambled last week for smuggling.

Royal Corps Maj. J. A. Dow, left said Maj. Platt made the statement to himself and two other officers Nov. 30 at Vientiane, Laos. It was admitted shortly after Platt's arrest conducted while the five-man court martial board was absent.

Maj. Dow, Ottawa, Group Captain J. H. Hollies, said it "appeared" to himself that the board must decide what weight it should have as evidence—and what it did if any statements about its free or voluntary nature.

"Project Greenhead" designation for the sales mallard ducks which, in its area was announced by the Belleville Fish and Game Association at its monthly meeting last night.

The project the first of its kind to be undertaken by any organization in Canada was announced recently under the supervision of association director George Whitman.

The association has secured one hundred mallard ducklings. These will be set out this summer.

In a brief address to the club, Director Whitman said ducklings one month old liberated in suitable habitats have an extremely high survival rate. Ducks set out will return to the nest the following spring at the spot where they were liberated.

Mr. Whitman said the project was undertaken because of the lack of suitable breeding habitat in the area due to low water. Ducks go elsewhere to nest. The only shooting available to hunters in the area is on pigeons passing through the district.

He said if the project is successful the association will consider the raising of 1,000 mallards next year. A federal licence to operate the project has been approved.

The 100 ducklings are being raised in a non-shooting open area. They will be banded with a numbered band from the District of the Department of Lands and Forests. A control group will be established to carry out the experiment.

HAS FULL APPROVAL

Mr. Whitman said that the board must decide what weight it should have as evidence—and what it did if any statements about its free or voluntary nature.

The association has full approval of the Tweed headquarters of the department. Conservation officer Ken Dolson of Tweed was instrumental in securing the co-operation of the department.

Mr. Whitman said "we feel that if 'Project Greenhead' is successful, this can pave the way to all interested in providing more ducks."

He said if the project is successful after the mallards are liberated they will return to

Bride-to-Be Honored By Showers

GOSLEN — Last week Miss Margaret Bates, a bride-to-be of the month, was honored with two miscellaneous showers on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Don Sills with Mrs. Ted Gray as co-hostess and on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Carman Bailey with Mrs. Ted Cairns as cohostess.

On Monday evening contests and games were enjoyed and a most wedding was performed. On Tuesday evening a delightful lunch and a recipe book were made and contests were enjoyed.

Stockdale United Marks Mother's Day

A big Mother's Day pageant, made from green cedar, interwoven with spring flowers and a variety of plants and blossoms, decorated Stockdale United Church on Sunday morning for a special Mother's service, conducted by Sunday School officers, Mrs. John Hetherington, Mrs. Walter Hall and Mr. George Simpson. The choir sang, "May God Be With You, Mother" in which Miss Peter Hubble took the solo and read "God Of All, Who Are Our Father".

The minister, in a brief Mother's Day service, expressed appreciation of the Sunday School teachers and the leaders concerned with the nurture and admonition of juniors in the church. The sanctuary was filled for the occasion.

Jaunty Junior

By VERA WINSTON.

For the junior type, here is a dress that smartly combines flower-print cotton and creamy white burlap. A one-piece style, it has a two-piece look, as do so many models just now.

The plaid, which is used for the bodice, is a wildflower design in a variety of vibrant colors. The skirt, fully lined in China silk, bells away from the figure and sports two patch pockets.

Gay, jaunty and ever so attractive!

Bride-to-Be Feted by Girl Friends

A miscellaneous shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. Carman Bailey when several friends gathered to honor the forthcoming marriage of Miss Margaret Bates.

Mrs. Edward Cairns acted as the co-hostess for the evening.

The living room was decorated with artwood white and pink streamers, a bright blue wishing well and a rose-colored umbrella were the center of attraction.

The musical program was opened with an address of welcome, followed by "A Mother-in-Law's Prayer" by Miss Hazel Shepherd. A "Memory Quiz" and a "Romantic Sayings Quiz" followed.

While everyone participated in contributing and completing the Bride's Book, Mrs. Norman White and Miss. John Palmer succeeded in finishing a recipe book.

The gifts were opened by the bride-to-be, who expressed her gratitude for the lovely gifts received.

Miss Hazel Shepherd read the remarks made by the bride-to-be when she opened her gifts.

The hostess served a delicious lunch which was enjoyed by all.

Admission of Women To Synod Again Deferred

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Despite urging from Bishop G. N. Tarboy, the 112rd synod of the Anglican diocese of Huron Tuesday deferred until 1933 a decision on whether women should be permitted to serve on synod.

The question of women has been a controversial issue for at least six years, Bishop Tarboy declared. The synod members did not want to be "played for" and "they don't think we're ready to decide the question, he said.

The debates on women in synod reached a high point last year when F. L. Hall, a lay delegate from Westminster Township, walked out of the synod session in protest of a ruling that the question was out of synod's jurisdiction.

This year, Mr. Hallett sponsored a motion to have the word male deleted from the part of the synod constitution setting out qualifications which shall be delegates.

Delegates defeated the motion on the recommendation of a special committee headed by Archdeacon Howard Walker-ville, Archdeacon of Essex.

Only seven votes were cast against the motion, sent to 1933 members of synod showed 46.6 per cent were in favor, 45.2 per cent against, and 8.2 per cent undecided. He said he felt that there was too evenly spread to take action and that the matter should be pushed further.

Mr., Mrs. Albert Carson Mark Silver Wedding Anniversary

HALLOWAY — A most pleasant evening was enjoyed when friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carson, Hallgreen, met in the Sidney Baptist Church Hall on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

An amusing contest was held matching baby pictures with all those present.

Mrs. Warren Hill introduced Miss Olive Ash of Madoc, who showed pictures she had taken while visiting the Holy Land.

Mrs. Percy Sutherland of Consecon, read a solo, "A Basket of Old-Fashioned Flowers," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Floyd Macklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Carson were asked to take seats at a table prettily and tastefully decorated anniversary cake and pink and silver candles. Also at the table were the bridesmaid of 25 years ago, Mrs. George Delzard, and the groomsman, Mr. Carl Wannamaker, both of Belleville, and Rilla and Glenn Carson, daughter and son of the honored guests.

The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts and cards, while everyone enjoyed a most delightful social hour.

Asparagus

by Mary Moore

Do you like asparagus so much that you could eat it until the spears come out of your ears? Me, too.

To add to its delectability, whoop up some Hollandaise Sauce and to make a whole meal of it make Asparagus Benedict.

But for goodness' sake don't do what the hotel cook did with it last night for our Press Club monthly dinner. Don't cook it until it is mushy and olive-colored. Asparagus should be bright green and still slightly crisp when it reaches the dinner plates.

Treat fresh asparagus with tender care. Cook in a minimum of water for a short time only. For special occasions serve it with Hollandaise as give it the Benedict treatment described by Mary Moore today.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Back Bacon with Orange Glaze; Rosebud Beets; Potatoes Anna (see Tuesday); Celery Hearts and Carrot Strips; Canned Peaches; Fig Bars; Coffee.

The asparagus season lasts an all-too-short six weeks in Canada.

To prepare with under running water. Cut off tough end and trim off about 1" of the skin at bottom of stalk. Leave whole or cut them in half to fit into 7" saucepan.

Cook. As you know the tips require only half the time the stalks do to become tender so cook covered, tips up, half covered with boiling salted water. A coffee pot is ideal for this. Cook only until barely tender. Never overcook asparagus as it ruins its flavor and damages its vitamin content.

ASPARAGUS BENEDICT:

I am giving you three ways to fix this for it could be fine one hot item for a supper or lunch and a great help to you all during asparagus season.

For each of the following, split a slice of English muffin, process cheese between a slice of cooked ham and a layer of bacon on a piece of toast or toasted muffin.

Pour over one of the following Sauces:

Fluffy Sauce 1): Beat 2 egg whites until stiff. Beat the 2 egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Blend the beaten yolks with ¼ cup mayonnaise, ¼ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon Tabasco (optional). Fold in the beaten whites and place in spoonfuls on the prepared double - double - decker. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes or broil 3 to 5 minutes until the topping is cooked and lightly browned and cheese melty. Makes enough sauce for 6 to 8 "deckers".

Welsh Rarebit Sauce 2): Omit cheese slice in this, if desired. In top part of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water, place 1 tablespoon butter and 1 lb. grated cheddar cheese. As cheese begins to melt, gradually stir in ½ cup milk or tomato juice or water. Cook only until smooth and hot. Stir in 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon Tabasco and ½ teaspoon salt. Serve over prepared "deckers".

Hollandaise Sauce 3): Using a small bowl that will fit closely on a double boiler base, beat 2 egg yolks well. Very slowly add ¼ cup melted butter, beating constantly. Beat in 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Place bowl over simmering water — don't let water boil. Stir constantly until thickened — 4 to 5 minutes. Serve over prepared "deckers".

NOTE:

This Hollandaise Sauce is excellent over plain asparagus or any other green vegetables as they come into season.

The Experts Say

Usually Women Obtain Top Positions by Chance

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP)—How does a woman reach the top in the business world? Usually by chance, says a Montreal woman executive who got there that way.

"Companies don't hire women with the intention of making them executives," says Florence Bickford, assistant personnel director of Sun Life Assurance Company's head office in Montreal.

Sometimes, however, a situation arises where a woman could prove her administrative talents and this could be a turning point in her career, paving the way to a top executive post.

Miss Bickford, appropriately came when the idea of stenographic pools was first put into practice. In the 1890s when Sun Life decided to centralize stenographic services she was assigned to organize and head two major pools.

MOMENT OF TRUTH

"This was a case where you either fell on your face or made the grade," Miss Bickford said. The stenographers, who had previously worked for one man, balked at the new idea of going into pools and the task was a difficult one.

Now, nearly 40 years after joining Sun Life, she is the only woman officer in the company. Besides being in charge of female personnel — some 12,000 women! — she helps formulate general personnel policies and serves on a job - grading committee.

It takes a woman longer to reach the top—she isn't paid for her potential but for the actual job, Miss Bickard feels. But men don't dislike working with women executives, she finds from her own experience. In fact, a sympathetic female ear can be helpful at times in top-level policy making.

"Traditionally men have been the administrators, and perhaps it is important to choose women supervisors more carefully," but females are more ready to accept them than they were a few years ago.

PERSONALITY IS KEY

Administrative talent is a matter of individual personality, not sex, she feels. She doesn't agree with the idea of women not liking to work under women. This, again, was a matter of personality.

She does not feel, however, that the time has come when men will readily work under a woman.

"Women are naturally handicapped biologically—men don't have been back definitely." Women university graduates wonder why they can't get top jobs, yet more and more are hired professionally are married while a few years. They usually take time off to raise families, and those years in between "can't be replaced."

The middle-aged woman returning to work is one of the problems society is facing today," Miss Bickards said. "There are many capable, intelligent women returning to business, but skills and knowledge learned even a few years ago are too often obsolete in this age of rapid change."

90 Attend Shower for Young Couple

Following a short program and recreation Charlie and Isabel were called to the seat of honor and an address was read by Mrs. Garnet Denyes on behalf of the Club and a presentation of a chest of stainless steel flatware was made. SPEAKING of MANNERS

DON'T BE A HIGHWAY NUISANCE

Well, the Sunday drivers are out at it, as my husband and I learned the hard way on a recent trip to the other day.

As for motorists, they are not only out in full force, but there seems to be more of them.

The rules of courtesy on the open road are simple enough. They're the same ones that apply to protect life, but also, at a minimum, they're considerate rules for fellow drivers and how you'd like them to behave toward you.

Within the space of an hour, alas, we were sent somewhere by at least a dozen drivers, both male and female, engaged in such earnest conversation that they took both hands off the wheel to gesture and, in two cases, actually turned squarely around to talk to passengers in the back seat.

Maybe boring had something to do with it, but we saw several instances of "two-in-one" drivers, meaning the amorous type who snuggles his best girl close to his side and tries to control the car with only one hand.

We stopped counting the number of drivers who moved to the outside lane and stayed there, despite the hors-blowing of others who wanted to pass.

Courtesy belongs on the highway as well as in the home, and here are a few rules that would make Sunday driving safer and more enjoyable for all:

1. If someone wants to pass, let him. Don't increase your speed just to make him work.

Never move from lane to lane. If you must cross the broken white line, check traffic carefully, fore and aft, and signal clearly.

Always give pedestrians the right of way.

Never use the rear-view mirror to comb your hair or repair makeup when you're a passenger. The driver needs the mirror to watch traffic behind him.

Since children are the drivers of tomorrow, it's never too early to teach them good car habits. If you teach your youngsters to observe these 10 safety measures, you'll be able to drive more carefully, and they will be safer and more considerate drivers when they grow up:

1. Sit quietly.
2. Don't talk to the driver. It distracts him.
3. Don't touch any of the controls or any of the buttons on the instrument panel.
4. Don't scuffle with other children in the car.
5. Don't kneel or stand on the rear seat and block the rear window.
6. Don't open windows or play with door handles.
7. Don't climb from front seat to back, or vice versa.
8. Don't crowd the driver.
9. Don't put head or arms out open window.
10. Don't throw candy wrappers, pop bottles or other objects from the car.

St. Andrew's E. A. to Hold Supper Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — The members of St. Andrew's Evening Auxiliary held their regular meeting in the auditorium of the church parlors with Mrs. M. Banks presiding. Mrs. Banks read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Margaret Ann Gibbs gave a report of the semi-annual Presbyterial meeting she attended in Millbrook.

The card report was read by Zella Sweezey and Mrs. Gibbs answered.

Marie Bell read the treasurer's report and business was dealt with next with.

It was announced that June 20, will be the next meeting date, to be held in the form of a supper meeting. The members will be given more information on this when the committee have made their arrangements.

Group 4 and Marion Edwards are to be in charge of the program.

Margaret Macmillan, leader of group 3, conducted the study book for this month entitled Ontario's Industry and Religion, past, present and future, using in part, "What now of the church's future, now that the country has achieved its independence and shows signs of turning communistic under Premier Diefenbaker, the Red Indian prime minister?"

The Scripture lesson read by Margaret Young was from Proverbs 31, followed by prayer by Margaret Macmillan.

A panel of four, Fran Doughin, Jean Gibbs, Margaret MacKenzie and Marie Bell with Gena Main as moderator, had an interesting discussion on the pros and cons of "Religious Teaching in the Public School."

A ten minute open discussion followed with the members participating.

Mother's Day Observed at Frankford S.S.

Frankford United Church Sunday School reached a new high with 304 in attendance on Mother's Day Sunday and every mother present was encouraged in a beautiful flower service, with all grades meeting together for the occasion. The theme of the service was, "The Family as an Instrument of God's Peace", and it was appropriately developed around a family story, vividly told by Mrs. J. Finnegan and a prayer from Basil Francis of Assisi "Lord make me an instrument of thy Peace".

Shannonville UCW Sponsors "May Tea"

The many ladies who took advantage of the ideal weather last Wednesday made the annual "May Tea" held by the Shannonville U.C.W. a success-ful event.

The attractive tea table was appointed with a white lace cloth centred by a crystal bowl with a colonial arrangement of pink and white tulips, flanked by white candles in crystal holders. Greening silver tea service set prettily adorned the table and added a pretty accent to the setting.

GUEST TABLES

Six small tables were tastefully arranged around the room and covered with a dainty white tea cloth and centred with a vase of white narcissus and a silver sugar and cream set.

Those pouring tea for the afternoon were: Mesdames C. Gannon, W. D. Robertson, R. Vivian, F. Bunston, W. Mitchell and W. Ross.

Serving the guests were: Mesdames D. Bleeso, D. Leslie, M. Little, J. Kidd, R. Reid, H. Galbraith and J. Hinchey.

The tempting table was one of the main attractions with its delicious pies, cakes, pastries, candy, tarts, squares and relishes, served by Mesdames F. Klert, K. Vivian, R. Mascott and D. Bleeso.

APRON TABLE

The apron table had a fine assortment of half, all-over and bib aprons, other articles included nicely embroidered pillow slips, jewellery, socks, children's dresses, dainty dollies, baby sundresses and many novelties. Those in charge of this table were Mesdames E. Strahan, Houston and S. MacDonald.

The choice had a miscellaneous table with an assortment of articles including homemade chocolates, cookies, candies, fancy work knitted socks, get well and birthday cards, etc. This was conveyed by Mesdames D. Thompson and D. Vance Sr.

Others who helped replenish the food in the kitchen were: Mesdames G. Stratton, R. Clarke, K. Judy, A. Hayter, T. Brookbank and H. Mercer. Making tea were Mrs. S. Elliott and Mrs. Charles Wood.

Appreciation is extended to all who assisted in any way to the success of this tea.

Working Wives in Bombay Up in Arms Over Ousting

By RUBINDRA DEVIT
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Working wives in Bombay, India's largest and most Westernized city, appear to be in arms over a move to oust them from its offices.

Some leading business establishments have let it be known that they do not like to have married women on their payrolls.

One pharmaceutical firm has already served notice on its married female workers, terminating their services in June.

Many companies have quietly decided as far as possible re-cruitment should be confined to men.

A big controversy has broken out over the action of a business establishment that dismissed a woman employee when it learned she had had a reconciliation with her estranged husband. She was said to have been informed the lawyer turn in her domestic life might lead to motherhood—the biggest bugbear of the anti-female business tycoons.

One executive said absentee-ism among married women employees was four times as great as among the unmarried.

A pretty Anglo - Indian stenographer working in an im-portant firm was unceremoniously sacked when she announced her engagement. Her employer is reported to have told her: "This means we can no longer depend on you. You got married today and tomorrow you will become pregnant and ask for maternity leave. We just can't put up with this sort of bother."

As a result, many working women are anxious either to conceal their engagements or postpone the wedding ceremonies.

"In many business houses in the city today the most favored person is the bespectacled spinster," wrote a columnist.

George Fernandes, chief of the Bombay Labor Union, summoned a conference to consider the situation.

"We must end the discrimina-tions and inequities being heaped on our working sisters," Fernandes told a rally of office girls.

Meanwhile, another union has developed over the action of some private employers who is refusing permission to married nurses to live in their own homes. They have been required to make their residence in the quarters provided within the hospital grounds.

Gwen Baker Visits Legion Ladies' Assoc.

CAMPBELLFORD — Zone Commander Com. Gwen Baker was guest speaker at the May meeting of the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary. She reminded the members of the Zone Rally to be held in Frankford on Sunday, May 27th, saying that all who wished to attend should be at the Legion Hall by 12.00 noon. The luncheon banquet will be held this month.

Com. Dianne Ferrill won the regular meeting prize and Com. J. Mosher's name was drawn for the dollar prize draw but as she was not present, the prize will be $2. at the June meeting.

The sanitaries from Warkworth and Hastings will be guests at the next regular meeting when a pot-luck supper will be held.

Com. Madeline Free was installed by Com. Baker as a member of the executive.

After the meeting a dinner lunch was served by the committee in charge.

FRESH WATER SCARCE — Some of the most poverty-stricken people in Canada live along the Gulf of St. Lawrence coast in Duplessis County. Residents rarely can afford to travel outside their communities and some children have never seen fresh fruit. Duplessis County in Quebec Rich Man Dressed in Rags

By GERRY MAWELL

QUEBEC (CP) — Duplessis County, a ponderous chunk of rock, frost and iron in northeastern Quebec, is a rich man dressed in rags.

Rapid rivers, naturals for hydro-electric projects, flow to the coast. Railways slice through the rock mountains that iron ore deposits lie in the interior.

"No one knows yet what other minerals are in there," said Henri Colteux, Liberal member of the legislature for the riding.

Yet some of the poorest people in Canada live along the Gulf of St. Lawrence coast between Sept - Iles and Blanc Sablon on the Strait of Belle Isle.

Fishermen along the coast of have never seen fresh fruit. Their parents are awed by tales of those who have visited cities such as Quebec or Montreal.

Rocky, treeless Blanc-Sablon provides no natural fuel for the residents who sometimes walk eight miles digging roots for the stove. As the years pass, the source of this fuel gets farther away.

The villages aren't connected by road, nor in some cases by radio communication. Nurses staff the scattered mission hospitals; few doctors can be found who will devote their career to the ill in Quebec's outports.

"People are living in conditions unthinkable for Quebec in 1962," says Mr. Coltoux, who was elected on the Liberal wave in 1960.

The outport settlements northeast of Septi-Iles are the homes of Montagnais Indians and Cornish and Breton fishermen, who have changed their habits little in centuries.

"They often make less than $300 a year," said Mr. Coiteux. "They can't afford to improve their equipment or do anything to help themselves."

Mr. Coiteux has high hopes for improving conditions there. First among them is organization of communications between the villages. But the most ambitious is Mr. Coiteux's hope that a road—"even a winter road" — can connect Blanc-Sablon with Sept-Iles.

Mr. Coiteux says this might lead to a few connecting Newfoundland and Quebec. Blanc-sablon is only about 20 miles from Newfoundland at this point.

Third on the Coiteux list is improved fishing conditions and fourth, fresh water for Harrington Harbor. Arctic residents have found that aged fee loses its salt and becomes drinkable.

To provide electricity, Mr. Coiteux hopes to find a way to build a couple of small power dams on rivers along the coast.

This would mean refrigeration for meat and fish, and even more important, an economical means of providing heat for education. Televised courses could be beamed to children in the villages, who now must choose between leaving their homes to attend anything but grade schools, or leaving school.

To get support for his projects, Mr. Coiteux, a 32-year-old forestry engineer, hopes to get the Quebec cabinet to go along with him this summer on his trip to the outports.

He says Newfoundland has tackled with some success the problem of paying for costly projects needed to improve thinly populated regions. He hopes Quebec can do the same.

Canadian Tulip Festival Opens in Ottawa May 18th

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Staid old Ottawa, its multi - colored floral pageants switching in the spring breeze, this month's gaily flits from being just the capital of Canada to the tulip capital of North America.

The Parliament Buildings and other year - round attractions will give way to 1,000,000 tulips, from 15 to May 20 in the Canadian Tulip Festival time and the entire city takes on the many colors of the Dutch bloom — from sparkling white to deep mahogany.

The festival will be officially opened Friday, May 18, by one of its originators, Irwin Haskett, president of the Ottawa Board of Trade when the festival was conceived 10 years ago. He now is Ontario's minister of reform institutions.

There will be band music, choir singing and speech-making. At the same time a bouquet of tulips will be presented to the Queen in London.

This year, for the first time, there will be beauty queens, square-dancing, an all - nation floral show and a giant fireworks display.

POSE FOR TOURISTS

Foreign queens, representing federal departments in the annual Miss Civil Service contest will be available Sunday, May 20, to pose with tulips for visiting camera fans.

The tourists — an estimated 100,000 are expected during the two weeks—will be treated to the fireworks display at southern Dow's Lake Friday evening, May 25.

The International Festival of Flowers will be held Thursday, May 24, at the Coliseum. Some of the floral arrangements will be submitted by embassies here. On Friday there will be a big square-dance.

Tulips, however, remain the major attraction. Preceded by crocuses and 1,000,000 daffodils and augmented by another 1,000,000 spring blooms, the tulips will dot the entire city. Huge beds with a total of 35,000 blooms brighten the lawns of Parliament Hill. Many thousands are still planted as follows the Rideau Canal.

STARTED BY QUEEN

Biggest display is on the shore of man-made Dow's Lake in the southwest end of Ottawa where one bed alone contains 111,000.

The festival, now the largest display of tulips on the continent, began after a grateful Queen Juliana of The Netherlands sent Ottawa 20,000 bulbs. The Queen, who lived here as a princess during the Second World War after German troops overran her homeland, also promised another 15,000 each year of her reign.

These are planted each fall, along with thousands of others added each year. A total of 285,000 bulbs were planted last autumn.

Pearson Is Transformed From Career Diplomat To Poltican in Four Years

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Four years in opposition following the 1958 Liberal election disaster have transformed Lester B. (Mike) Pearson from an international diplomat into an able, determined politician.

In the period since Jan. 16, 1958, when he became the leader of the Liberal party, he has learned new skills in the art of winning votes—a more aggressive approach in handling domestic issues and an easy affability in meeting the public.

Mr. Pearson, now 65, still concerns himself closely with international politics where he won the 1957 Nobel peace prize.

But the man once known as Canada's voice in world affairs now is whole-heartedly the chief of a political party fighting to win back the government power it lost in 1957.

Along the way, he has led the task of rebuilding a party organization shattered in the Progressive Conservative landslide of the 1958 election.

PLAYED BASEBALL

It hasn't been the first change in the career of the son of a Methodist minister.

In 1921 Mike Pearson, the semi-pro baseball player, left a job in a Chicago sausage business to enter an academic career that made him an assistant history professor at the University of Toronto.

The day he was sworn in as a cabinet member, on Sept. 10, 1948, reporters asked when he had become a Liberal.

"Today," Mr. Pearson replied.

Less than two months later he won a Commons seat in a by-election in the northern Ontario constituency of Algoma East, which he has represented since.

But until he again stepped into Mr. St. Laurent's shoes as Liberal party leader, politics took a back seat to diplomacy.

His name and jaunty figure, and his blue polka-dot tie, probably became better known to people in other countries than any other Canadian of the time.

HEADED UN ASSEMBLY

He headed Canada's delegation to the United Nations general assembly for nine successive sessions, was the secretary's president in 1952-53, and was nominated in 1946 and 1953 for the post of UN secretary-general. Both times the nomination was vetoed by the Soviet Union.

He became known as a world trouble-shooter, perhaps most notably during the Suez crisis in November, 1956. He flew to the UN and presented a plan for a UN emergency force to be placed between the combatants. The step enabled Britain and France to withdraw the forces they had landed in the canal area.

Thus it wasn't surprising that in the 1958 election campaign, which began 15 days after he became Liberal leader, he appeared before the voters primarily as an international figure.

He conducted a campaign with that of Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Only two of the Liberal candidates were returned in the March 31 election.

It took time to learn his new role of opposition leader, the intricacies of domestic issues and the tactics of grass-roots politics. But in one six-month period in the Commons he spoke on more than 220 different subjects.

SERVED OVERSEAS

His campaign style for the present election was polished a year ago when he fought hard for his party in four by-elections with vigorous face-handling and a ready smile and handclasp for the voters.

Lester Bowles Pearson was born at Newtonbrook, just north of Toronto, the son and grandson of Methodist ministers.

He enlisted at 17 and served overseas 1915-18, first as a private in the ambulance corps, then as an infantry lieutenant and finally as a flying officer in the Royal Flying Corps.

He was a stretcher-bearer in the Salonika fighting, where he picked up his nickname Mike. He himself isn't sure how it started. One suggestion is that it was done on the theory that no soldier should have a first name like Lester.

His middle name, Bowles, is the family name of his mother who, at age 95, is one of his strongest supporters.

PLAYED FOR OXFORD

After the war he resumed studies at the University of Toronto, graduated in 1919, and after a spell in the Chicago meat-packing business went to Oxford University on a Massey Foundation fellowship for two years.

He won his Oxford "blue" in hockey and lacrosse, played on the British Olympic hockey team in 1924, was a history lecturer at the University of Toronto, coached the varsity football and hockey teams.

In 1928 he entered the embryo external affairs department in London during the 1930s and in 1942 was posted to Washington where he became ambassador early in 1945. In mid-1946 he returned to Ottawa to be undersecretary of state for external affairs—Mr. St. Laurent's deputy minister.

Thirty-seven years ago he married one of his University of Toronto students, Maryon Elspeth Moody of Winnipeg. They have a son and a daughter and eight grandchildren.

Operating Loss Of $4,808,800

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's railways showed a net operating loss of $4,808,800 in January—up $819,800 from the deficit in January last year.

The bureau of statistics reported today that railway operating revenues rose to $85,601,300 in January from $84,018,700, but increased expenditures outpaced the rise in income, climbed to $89,860,100 from $87,999,000.

The criminal type: The typical fugitive on the FBI's "most wanted" list is in his early 30s, five feet nine inches tall, weighs 158 pounds, has at least one tattoo, likes to drink, gamble and chase women. (Except for the tattoo mark, this description fits most of the subordinates I know.)

Our quotable notables: The silliest woman can manage a clever man, but it needs a very clever woman to manage a stupid one.—Rudyard Kipling.

Odd seat: A century ago in France men's fashion tailors became so tall checkrooms couldn't handle them, and opera-goers sat on them during the performance . . . The top of top hats quality was whether it could bear its owner's weight.

Genius usually has a hard struggle . . . The Nobel Prize hops have recently unveiled a reproduction of Rembrandt's famed $2,500,000 painting, Artistotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer . . . The frame alone for the reproduction cost $600, more than Rembrandt ever received for many of his paintings in his lifetime . . . He was so hard up that he had to sell his first wife's grave to raise the money to bury his second wife.

If you're normal, you probably have batwed 3,000 and 5,000 dreams a year — even though you may think you don't remember at all . . . In the Science of Dreams, Edward Dimond says dreams help keep us sane by day by letting us "go nuts" in our nightly sleep . . . Laboratory experiments showed that people prevented from dreaming tended to develop hallucinations.

Out of the mouths of babes: My nomination for the most haunting remark of the century is this: A little girl, after hearing poet Carl Sandburg describe a Civil War battle, looked up and asked him innocently, "suppose they gave a war and no one came?"

If you're fed up with "sky-high" heating costs...here's an opportunity to do something about it!

Many customers of Lakeland Natural Gas have found they could save $20, $40, $60 or $100 per year when they changed to natural gas. You can do it too!

Because we know natural gas will heat your home more efficiently and economically, we'll let you "try" it for a year so that you can prove to yourself it actually does. Lakeland Natural Gas will install a conversion burner in your present furnace. You don't have to buy it! You don't have to pay to have it installed! All you pay for is the gas you use. At the end of a year, when you've discovered how much you've saved with natural gas, you can either buy the conversion burner, or rent it for only $20.00 per year. If you're not satisfied we'll take it out at no charge to you!

Will you really save on heating costs? Try it and see! You save because there's no furnace cleaning with gas. You save because there are no moving parts to be replaced. You save on service call costs because Lakeland provides FREE 24 hour service on all gas equipment. You save on hydro costs because natural gas does away with electric burner motors. And you save because natural gas does a more efficient job—heats your home better for less.

Don't put up with "sky-high" heating costs any longer. Have your Lakeland home heating specialist give you further details on Lakeland's free "home-trial" heating plan. Arrange to have him call, at your convenience, by returning the reply card mailed to your home, or use this handy coupon; or contact your local natural gas dealer.

Please send a representative to explain your ECONOMY HOME HEATING PLAN. I understand I am under no obligation.

Disclosure of Credit Costs To Consumers Urged by Two Financial Companies

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of Canada's largest finance companies pressed Tuesday for a uniform law demanding full disclosure of all costs paid by the consumer who buys on time.

But both Industrial Acceptance Corporation Limited and Laurentide Financial Corporation Limited said the instalment buyer should be expected as a lump cash sum—and not as simple annual interest.

In taking this stand before the royal commission on banking and finance, both companies opposed a bill introduced in the Senate earlier this year by Ontario Liberal Senator David Croll who favors the simple-interest method.

Both IAC and Laurentide have large operations in the field of financing consumer sales, especially durable goods such as cars and major items. But they deal with merchants rather than directly with consumers in this operation.

SUGGESTS IN A SUM

Peter Dwight, director of Vancouver, president of Laurentide, told the commissioners that simple interest is used in insurance is just not simple." The most equitable and disclosure would be one made in dollars and cents — a sum that the consumer could understand.

Commissioner Paul N. Lamon of Montreal, vice-president of the Aluminum Company of Canada, wondered aloud whether if Canada's tax laws made such a formula to express finance charges as an annual interest rate.

"I really don't see how that is practical," said J. Rex Sinclair of Montreal, IAC president. He defended the practice of the man in Canada to work out the simple interest on some sales contracts, leaving it open to the consumer in any event would find a dollar-and-cents statement more instructive.

Mr. Sinclair said IAC is buying money — for different proposition from buying merchandise — and the consumer is doing it.

ASKS $2 PRICE SETTING

Commissioner Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Dominion economist at Queen's University, asked and was told by Mr. Sinclair about the different philosophies of retail merchants in setting "time" prices and "cash" prices and the factors involved.

Mr. Sinclair told Dr. Mackintosh: "I've seen their faces fall when you offer them cash."

Dr. Mackintosh said merchants faces fall because they know they must have many buyers' business, when people say they will return another day with cash but never show up.

Boy Charged With Murder In Stabbing

PORT WILLIAM (CP)—A 15-year-old boy was charged Monday with capital murder in Sunday's stabbing of Barbara Thompson, 16, in the bedroom of her home nine miles south of here.

The charge was read by Security and juvenile court Judge W. W. Creighton who will decide whether the trial will be heard in juvenile or adult court. The decision is not expected until next week.

Recovering from knife wounds to throat, head and right wrist is the girl's father, Charles A. Thompson, who was admitted to hospital in critical condition Sunday a short while after the accused juvenile gave himself up to Port William police.

The accused, who will be 16 in November, was moved Monday into the maximum security detention home. He spent Sunday night in the provincial police lock-up.

Charles Thompson was removed to hospital Tuesday.

Champion Skier Seeks Divorce From Wife

TORONTO (CP) — Robert William Moll, 34, former Canadian double champion water skier, Tuesday opened suit for divorce in his wife Patricia Anne, also a well-known water skier.

When the case opened before Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse, Moll's six-man all - male jury, Moll testified that his estranged wife became very forward him after meeting Toward, at a Muskoka lodge two years ago.

He is seeking damages for criminal conversation, a tort action of alienation of affection from Toward.

Mrs. Moll denies her husband's charges and seeks custody of the daughter.

Moll said his wife moved out of their house, taking some of her belongings with her in October, 1960. She returned just before Christmas.

"She moved into a room by herself," he said.

Four days later she moved out again.

Moll identified that on Jan. 29, 1961, he found his wife and Toward at a dancing studio with most of their clothes off.

"My wife said 'You think you're so smart, don't you? We will get people to say we weren't even here,' " he testified.

Survey Team Had Hard Time In Wilderness

OTTAWA (CP)—The story of a federal survey team which operated last month in the frozen Yukon wilderness under hardships similar to those experienced by early arctic explorers came to light Tuesday.

The 10-member team, travelled 200 miles by dog sled over rugged, remote terrain between Fort McPherson, N.W.T., and Dawson City, Yukon. Twice it was isolated by blizzards and storms with temperatures dipping to 40 degrees below zero.

The last time, food supplies for the team and its 36 sled dogs ran out. For four days Indian guides had to hunt moose to feed the party and to keep the dogs with 200 pounds of meat daily.

"We ran out of everything, including salt, tea and sugar," James B. O'Neill, a senior field officer of the federal topographical survey who headed the team, said in an interview.

Mr. O'Neill said members of the party — three whites and seven Indians from Fort McPherson including a 19-year-old Indian woman — were "very hungry but not starving."

Young Doctors Urged to Take General Practice

TORONTO (CP)—Young doctors are being graduated from Canadian medical schools with no more insight into family-oriented practice, in some cases, than a brief lecture, a commission told the "whole medical curriculum" be reviewed with the idea of revising it, "keeping in mind that the general physician has one of the most important roles in medicine."

It further stated that medical schools should place more emphasis on general practice as a major branch of medical practice—"not merely the absence of a specialty"—and provide instruction in family medical care by experienced family doctors.

Present instruction methods tended to break down treatment of disease into "units."

The student "goes to a stomach or an eye or a kidney and not to the individual," he said. "Some of these students graduate with a rather impaired view of practice."

Dr. W. V. Johnston of Toronto, president of the college, said the concept it rapidly developing that general practice is a specialty in itself—and "much more than just directing traffic." It is apparent reference to the referral system.

Cannot Avoid Turning Away Refugees

GENEVA (AP) — Britain told the United Nations Tuesday that British authorities cannot escape from a "highly distasteful duty of preventing Chinese Communists from China—by force if necessary."

Commonwealth Secretary George Marshall told the advisory committee of the UN High Commissioner for refugees that Britain cannot permit the colony to become overcrowded and urges to whom the doors of all countries should be opened.

Marshall was replying to Chinese Nationalist delegate Chen Pi Nan who declared that Hong Kong's expulsion of thousands of Chinese refugees in China in recent weeks was a violation of international law. Chen called the committee to consider an immediate halt to the deportation and offer to the high commissioner's assistance in the resettlement of the refugees.

New Zealand Backs Kennedy In Laos Crisis

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said today New Zealand fully supported President Kennedy's precautionary measure in sending U.S. forces to Thailand in the face of the Laos crisis.

The Laotian situation, he added, is of profound concern for New Zealand and its allies.

Holyoake said in a statement his government is urgently considering with its allies how a peaceful political solution for the problems of Laos can be reached.

TWEED (Staff) — Ontario's Minister of Lands and Forests Hon. J. Wilfrid Spooner, headed here yesterday afternoon on a visit of inspection of the department to see first hand some of the projects which are being carried on in the area and to discuss any problems with the staff members.

The Hon. Mr. Spooner was on a tour of the Tweed District which started in the Lindsay District yesterday morning.

Speaking to the Tweed District senior staff and guests at a meeting in the Tweedcastle Hotel yesterday evening, Mr. Spooner emphasized the decentralized operation of his department which affords a great degree of flexibility so that each district office could efficiently and effectively cope with the problems peculiar to their own area.

Such an arrangement provides the public with the best possible service in the shortest possible time by people well acquainted with local situations, he advised.

Mr. Spooner also stressed the importance of conservation and welcomed the integration of the various bodies in conservation authorities with his department. He promised the full co-operation of his department with these authorities in working for the mutual goals of each.

The speaker noted the acceptance of recreation in the department's area of responsibility, especially in regard to the perpetuation of game wildlife through such contributional schemes as fish hatcheries and game bird farms. He predicted an increase in game bird hunting in southern Ontario in the future because the game bird farms were in a position to supplement the game bird population.

He advised that they would always be an effort to maintain a proper level of administration in his department even if some of the laws the department has to enforce are a bit difficult in their administration.

Mr. Spooner complimented the department's happy relationship with the general public and attributing this to the type of personnel throughout the department over the years. He expressed his hope that this position would be both maintained and improved.

INSPECTS HATCHERY

Tuesday Mr. Spooner inspected the Codrington fish hatchery and conservation area, Prince qu'ile park, and had a conference with the Lindsay district staff. Today he will be visiting the new Chisholm Mills at Roslin and timber management and research projects in the northern part of the county. There will also be a conference with the Tweed district staff.

Besides the minister there were several other members of the Legislative Assembly, including Elmer Sandercock, MLA for West Hastings, Norris Whitesell, MLA for Prince-Edward-Lennox, Leonard Quilty, MLA for Renfrew South, and Jack Simonett, MLA for Frontenac-Addington, each of whom made some brief remarks.

Accompanying the minister on his inspection tour were assistant deputy minister G. E. Sayly; parks construction Superintendent William Hoskins and Bird-banding Supervisor Don Wilson of Lindsay.

The Moira River Conservation Authority was also represented by Clarence Graham, C. B. Ketcheson, J. E. McKeown and Michael Chubb. The visitors were welcomed to Tweed by J. A. Thompson, representing the reeve.

British Liberal Margin Boosted In Welsh Riding

WELSHPOOL, Wales' (Reuter)—Britain's resurgent Liberals gained their seventh victory in a by-election at Monday's polling. A Liberal stronghold for 80 years, the result disappointed Tory.

The Liberals boosted their majority to 7,549 from 2,781 gain their seventh seat in the 630-seat House of Commons and confirmed the recent trend of increasing Liberal popularity.

The result: Emlyn Hooson, Liberal, 13,181; R. H. Dawson, Conservative, 5,632; T. Dudley Lucker, 5,289, I. F., Elis, Welsh Nationalist, 1,159.

Montgomeryshire was held for the last 30 years by Clement Davies, former Liberal leader, whose recent death caused the by-election.

The voters turned out in unusual strength for a by-election with 85-percent polling was even higher than that in the 1959 general election.

TO RAISE FARES

MONTREAL (CP)—Air fares out of Canada will be increased June 1, the International Air Transport Association said the increases, on both passenger and cargo operations, reflects the new value of the Canadian dollar. Passengers on Canadian flights will pay up to $50 more for overseas travel.

Study Group To Visit Oshawa And Bancroft

OSHAWA (CP) — Fifteen members of the Duke of Edinburghs Second Commonwealth Study Conference will arrive here late today for a week-long study of the human consequences of industrialization in this car-manufacturing centre.

They will also visit the Bancroft uranium mining area, about 100 miles northeast of here.

The group will visit the plant of General Motors of Canada Limited Friday. Meetings will be held with civic, educational and community leaders Saturday and that evening they will meet representatives of labor organizations in Oshawa. Each visitor will be the guest of a local family.

On Monday the group will travel by bus to Bancroft, where tours will be made of Faraday Uranium Mines Limited and Bicroft Mines.

The following three days the group will visit various industries in Oshawa before leaving by bus for Toronto late Thursday.

At the same time as the Oshawa visit 19 similar groups will be carrying out studies in other industrial areas of Eastern Canada. The groups will reassemble in Toronto for plenary sessions of the conference May 25-26.

Gordon Charges P.M. Distorts His Findings

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Walter L. Gordon, the Liberal party's chief economic critic, Tuesday night accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of distorting conclusions reached by a 1953 royal commission presided over by Dr. Vincent Bladen.

He said the recommendations of the commission were misinterpreted at the time, and said the prime minister had recently repeated "this same foolishness."

The commission was set up to investigate Canada's economic prospects, he told the Halifax-Dartmouth area Young Liberal Association here.

"The conclusions the commissioners had been interpreted as suggesting hard - hit Nova Scotia coal miners should move to other parts of Canada. But Mr. Gordon said the real aim of the commission's report was "to suggest that anyone should be forced to leave their homes against their will. We do not live in Russia."

Mr. Gordon said a Liberal government would restore the economy of the Maritimes by "long-term development rather than on a regional basis . . . exactly the sort of planning that has been successful in Britain and on the continent of Europe."

He said his party would also point a separate cabinet minister to direct redevelopment of depressed areas, and said it would "re-examine" the entire transportation system of the Atlantic region.

NAILS DELAY TRAVELLERS

PARIS (Reuters) — Dozens of passengers missed their planes Tuesday night because of nails scattered on the road leading to Orly International Airport. At one time about 100 vehicles were held up with punctured tires.

Two Finance Corporations Take Hefty Swings at Banks and Credit Unions

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of the country's largest finance corporations took hefty swings at their competition Tuesday, while strongly defending their own position in the capital market.

Appearing before the royal commission on banking and finance, Industrial Acceptance Corporation Limited and Laurentide Financial Corporation made these points, among others:

1. Both companies closely questioned the role of the banks in expanding term loans—such as consumer credit—and Laurentide went so far as to suggest that the banks should get out of that field altogether, lest their basic banking principles are wrecked.

2. Both sought more control of credit unions which they said have lost their original "common bond" and are in most cases.

3. Complaints that the industrial development bank has lost its bank-of-last-resort character — the reason it was set up in the first place—were made by both companies which said they have lost a great deal of business to IDB in the last two years.

These points are key issues in the fight over legislation making the first full-scale study of the Canadian financial system since 1933. Hearings on the subject year will be timed for Parliament's consideration of the banking legislation.

Much of the fire power in Tuesday's attack on banks was served for the chartered banks frequently have been in the finance companies as their biggest competitors, a spokesman for the banks has denied that the consumer credit field in a big way.

Bank of Canada statistics repeated in the two briefs showed that the ratio of bank - financed sales finance and consumer credit now exceeds $1,000,000,000 compared with the amount in 1954 when the Bank Act was last reviewed.

Laurentide contended that the banks have been able to do this by "cutting their profit margin per cent interest ceiling for bank loans, through certain devices, such as service charges embodied in new personal loan plans."

"The continued expansion of the chartered banks in the consumer field is endangering the basic and sound principles upon which the Canadian banking structure was founded," Laurentide said.

The company said the banks can best contribute to a flexible monetary policy by keeping their loans in a position where they can be liquidated on demand. That would mean the end of term loans, such as the personal loans.

One of the sharpest attacks this year on credit unions was made by the two finance companies.

Laurentide Financial Corporation Ltd. said most credit unions have moved so far away from the original "common bond" concept that they have become big profit producing business that should give up their tax-free status.

Going even further, Industrial Acceptance Corporation Ltd., Canada's biggest sales finance dealer,

J. E. Ranahan of Montreal, president, said Canadian credit unions should continue to encourage thrift but their investments should be restricted like those of insurance and trust companies—a step that would rule out loans by credit union members.

"Why do they want to do this to them," asked Commissioner W. Thomas Brown of Vancouver, an investment dealer.

Saskatchewan's Political Sea Turbulent But Premier Has Not Veered Off Course

By SCOTT SCHILL

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's political sea has been turbulent for the last six months but the province's strong-willed premier, Woodrow S. Lloyd, has not veered from course.

He was tossed into the storm last Nov. 7 when he took over the premiership from T. C. Douglas, now national leader of the New Democratic Party.

Perhaps the start of the storm was the controversial Medical Care Insurance Act that was only half-way through a special fall session of the legislature when Mr. Douglas resigned.

In December came a setback to the CCF-NDP forces when the Liberal party won a by-election in Weyburn constituency where Mr. Douglas had been the member for 17 years.

Then the Liberal-Conservative premier was faced with the effects of last year's drought on th agriculture — based Saskatchewan economy, bitter opposition of doctors to the government and its medical care plan, the defection of Ernest Argue, the death March 17 of veteran CCF cabinet minister L. F. McIntosh and the resignation May 1 from the cabinet and party of Public Works Minister Walter Erb.

NO SURPRISE

Mr. Lloyd, 48 and a cabinet minister since 1944, met the problems squarely with an unrelenting and dignified temperament.

"They were not all unexpected," he says. "My first six months have been no more difficult than I had anticipated."

He has stated his policies on the medical care plan that goes into operation July 1. He also faces a tough byelection in Mr. McIntosh's constituency of Prince Albert where the president of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association, Doris Steuart, is a strong candidate.

Mr. Lloyd says the compulsory medical care scheme somebody has been the biggest single problem he has faced as premier.

It was complicated by the resignation of Mr. Erb, who was health minister when the plan was introduced and who said when he quit the cabinet that he opposed the idea of trying to put the scheme into effect over the opposition of doctors.

Despite this setback and the continued opposition of the medical profession, Premier Lloyd has insisted the plan will go into operation as scheduled, with or without the co-operation of the doctors.

"I don't doubt but that some of doctors will decide to leave the province initially, but this is not a significant factor," he said, adding that he is confident that eventually more doctors will move in than out.

WILL BE MANY TO STAY

A lot of doctors now saying they will leave probably will stay, he said, declaring "there is a degree of insistence in the public mind that doctors stay."

It was Mr. Lloyd who terminated talks with the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons April 11. The college had submitted an alternative plan that Mr. Lloyd could not accept.

He would, he said, compromise on some technical details but never on principle.

Another of his problems in succeeding Tommy Douglas has been in showing cabinet ministers, the CCF Legislature members and senior civil servants that he is capable of being premier. "In my own mind I feel it has gone all right so far."

The Argue defection to the Liberals, he said, "has visibly helped strengthen the movement, especially the core of the party."

DENIED CHARGE

Mr. Lloyd meets problems face to face. He can accept criticism, but will fight what he believes to be unjust condemnation.

When a Regina columnist reported that Mr. Douglas had instructed Mr. Lloyd to scuttle the discussions with the doctors because they might hamper the national NDP campaign plank of a medical care program, Mr. Lloyd reacted almost violently.

He angrily confronted the columnist, denied the report and shouted an offer of "any amount of money you want, to show me one shred of proof."

As premier, he intends to take an active part for the NDP in the Saskatchewan federal election campaign. He thinks the NDP can win at least seven of the province's 17 seats, all but one now held by the Progressive Conservatives.

He does not give the Liberals much chance in the province, despite the fact they hold 19 of the 25 seats in the provincial House.

DELAYS BYELECTION

Even in Assiniboia where Mr. Argue has the Liberal nomination, Mr. Lloyd feels the NDP can win. "Argue might even run third."

Mr. Lloyd is waiting for the UNRELENTING PREMIER — Woodrow S. Lloyd has faced a steady stream of political problems since he became Saskatchewan premier last November. people to see the medical care plan in operation before he calls the Prince Albert byelection.

He does not concede the victory to Mr. Steuart. The Weyburn byelection was disappointing, but "we made some mistakes there which should help us in Prince Albert."

The first mistake was in calling the election too soon. "We'd have made a much better showing if we had waited until January or February. The medical care plan was a lot more settled then."

It also was a mistake to allow union organizers to work in the predominantly rural constituency, he said.

He is not being forced into either a quick byelection or a quick general provincial election by the Liberal challenges to call it now.

"There is no thought of varying from the regular rhythm of provincial elections — every four years.

The premiership has not basically changed Mr. Lloyd's personal life. As education minister for 18 years he was in constant demand as a speaker, although the topics were not as diverse as now.

"I'm seldom home and free, but I quite often work at home in my office.

"I haven't felt better in years."

Pearson Attacks New Tax Deal By Government

By ALAN DONNELLY

DALHOUSIE, N.B. (CP)—Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson in New Brunswick's flag-a Premier Robichaud took turns Tuesday night in attacking the Diefenbaker government's new tax deal with the provinces.

Mr. Pearson said the federal government has "entirely failed" to give the provinces a fair deal.

The richer provinces would be the main beneficiaries, and the poorer provinces would lose by comparison.

Premier Robichaud, a hard-hitting orator, accused the federal Conservatives of "punishing" New Brunswickers for having defeated the provincial Conservative government in 1960.

"We are here to defeat the worst prime-minister this country has had," he said flatly. Leading force to his words were the sarcastical cabinet ministers arrayed on the platform behind him.

Mr. Pearson promised new tax deal for the provinces: Equalization payments that would ensure all provinces equal revenues per head of population, from the tax fields shared with the federal government.

"That is the only way the provinces can attain similar standards of services for their people."

PREMIER ACCOMPANIES

Mr. Pearson was accompanied by Premier Robichaud on Tuesday's campaign swing through three North Shore constituencies, including two of the three New Brunswick seats held by the Liberals in the last Parliament. Conservatives held the other seven.

Today Mr. Pearson flies to Nova Scotia—his first visit in this campaign to the province where Conservatives swept all 12 constituencies in the 1958 election.

The campaign trails of Mr. Pearson and Prime Minister Diefenbaker cross at New Glasgow, with Mr. Diefenbaker scheduled to be there about a half-hour before Mr. Pearson arrives.

He made brief speeches in front of town halls at Newcastle and Chatham and later, following a lobster supper, in front of the court house at Bathurst.

At each place he voiced confidence about the election outcome to audiences ranging from 300 to 500 and received the points of the Liberal platform aimed at giving "most of everybody who wants work."

ALARM INTERRUPTS

At Bathurst, a brief speech by Premier Robichaud was punctuated by repeated whoops from the town fire alarm.

"The fire of Liberalism has not been extinguished," the premier cracked, between interruptions.

Mr. Pearson's campaigning moved into high gear in the evening, when he packed up his auto cavalcade 2½ miles long on a 80-mile drive to this town of Escuminac-Miscou peninsula.

On the way he also picked up several roadside meeting stops—a two - pound live lobster from 68 - year - old Louis Shea and a 20-pound salmon from fisherman Thomas Poirier.

The cavalcade provided much of the audience of more than 400 in the village of 6,000 population, and Mr. Pearson and Premier Robichaud gave them a number of points to applaud as they attacked the federal government.

REPEATS STAND

The Liberal leader also repeated his promise of unilateral action to declare a 12 - mile Canadian territorial waters limit to end Canada's inshore fishermen.

In an apparent reply to Conservative claims that this action might bring United States trade reprisals, he said:

"I think we can do it without getting Uncle Sucker on the United States or anybody else."

Mr. Pearson described as "not true" the government's claim that repeated budget deficits since 1957 resulted from increased federal payments to the provinces.

The government's claim of increased aid to the provinces "sounds big only until you examine it."

Students Greet Prime Minister With Placards

By DAVE MORTIMER

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—For generations, there has been a latent feeling in the Maritimes that the Atlantic provinces haven't received a fair shake in Confederation.

Sometimes the feeling, like a jack-in-the-box, jumps out suddenly at politicians when they least expect it.

This time the trigger on the jack-in-the-box was released by a student from seven Maritimes universities and colleges. They conducted an orderly demonstration with letter placards proclaiming "God save the Maritimes, nobody else will," "Maritimes yes, Canada no" and "Grit or Tory, same old story."

REPLIES INDIRECTLY

Mr. Diefenbaker replied indirectly at the meeting which drew some 1,100 persons in a 1,450-seat high school auditorium by outlining some of the things which he said his government had done for the Atlantic provinces.

He also said his administration will give the "fullest consideration" to possibly the harnessing of the ocean tides which sweep up the Bay of Fundy.

He said at another point that his government will establish an Atlantic development board to expand economic opportunities for the seaside provinces. This board would make recommendations to the government for action and he hoped the first business of the board would be a new study of feasibility of building a causeway across the isthmus of Chignecto linking New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The student demonstration did not appear to be aimed so much at Mr. Diefenbaker as at "Upper Canada" in general.

DISTRIBUTE PAMPHLET

A pamphlet distributed by the students to some of the estimated 500 persons watching the demonstration said:

"This demonstration is a protest against the confusing attitudes held by Upper Canadians that this country is an Upper Canadian empire created primarily for their benefit.

"We see no reason why the Atlantic provinces should tolerate further the unjust manner in which this country has been governed for the 95 black years of its existence."

The pamphlet said the Chignecto Canal must be built—"the canal no confederation." It described Confederation as an "unholy alliance" and said that if Maritimers MPs of all parties continue their "indifference and "Atlantic union party" similar to Turkey's Old Young Rule party must be formed.

Earlier, they sang God save the Maritimes to the tune of the British national anthem and "Glory, glory for the Maritimes" to the tune of John Brown's Body.

APPEARS PUZZLED

Mr. Diefenbaker appeared puzzled by the singing and placards thrust before him. He raised his big Stetson hotel without turning his head.

At least seven police men were on hand in King Square for the demonstration. There was no hint of violence at any time.

The students waited for more than three hours at the entrance to the Admiral Beatty Hotel. Shortly after the prime minister arrived Progressive Conservative supporters rallied around with their own placards and began singing "John" and "We're with you John."

Mr. Diefenbaker was to fly today to New Glasgow and Halifax for a one-day campaign in Nova Scotia. He will go to Prince Edward Island Thursday and to Western Ontario Friday.

Thursday he drove 165 miles through southern New Brunswick from Fredericton to St. Stephen, St. Andrew's, St. George and Saint John, all on the Fundy shore.

At St. Stephen, the prime minister in a speech before about 300 persons, including many teen-agers, said Liberal Leader Pearson is advocating "unilateral philosophy" by proposing that Canada declare a 12 - mile territorial limit unilaterally.

PRESS FOR EXTENSION

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's policy would require naval units on both coasts to enforce it.

Socred Leader Says Voters Should Beware

By RUSSELL ELMAN

BEYDON, Que. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Canadians should be wary of Conservative and Liberal vote - catching devices which will end up being paid out of the pockets of the voters themselves.

He singled out as examples the Conservative government's acreage payments to Prairie farmers and Liberal promises of higher pensions.

Campaigning Tuesday on both the Quebec and Ontario sides of the upper Ottawa River, Mr. Thompson reiterated his party's criticisms of the two "old-line" parties for failing to meet their responsibilities.

This was the theme of a television broadcast in Pembroke, Ont., and a double-header evening speechmaking program in this Pontiac - Renfrew-Lanark-Hiding farm community and at Shawville, Que., in addition to about 70 miles northwest of Ottawa.

DRIVES TO PEMBROKE

Earlier Mr. Thompson flew from Kirkland Lake, Ont., to North Bay and then drove to Pembroke with Laurent Legault of Rouyn, Que., Social Credit candidate for the large Pontiac-Temiscamingue constituency.

Today, he was to fly to the Northern Ontario mining town of Timmins for a businessmen's supper followed by a public rally.

Tuesday, in his Pembroke broadcast, he likened the campaign to a supermarket, in which "each party has become disillusioned" with the "Diefenbaker product."

The Conservatives had dressed their wares in new packaging, trying to make them look new.

He said the "big L" Liberal product was heavy—"like swimming in an overcoat."

SAME FARMERS ALIKE

Crossing the Ottawa River to Bryson, he said the two traditional parties now were on alike ground as well be called the "Pearsonbaker party."

He spoke in the party-decorated old town hall to an audience of about 75, including about a dozen children, in this community of about 375 people.

The meeting was opened by Russell Patrick, Alberta provincial secretary.

Addressing himself to a number of old folks present, he cautioned them to consider carefully Liberal promises of increased pensions.

Moving on to Shawville, 16 miles nearer Ottawa, he made a similar criticism in respect of Conservative acreage payments to Western farmers. This was Mr. Diefenbaker's way of retaining the Prairie vote, he said.

Mr. Thompson said farmers are becoming "victims of welfare handouts. What they really wanted was "parity not charity."

sport even for a political candidate," he said.

His government was in touch with other nations trying to get agreement on a cessation of territorial limits. This was a fair and far better means of achieving a 12-mile limit than by declaring one unilaterally.

"It doesn't look too hopeful now," he conceded. The nations involved were standing on principle.

OPENS WITH PRAYER

The St. Stephen meeting opened with a prayer by Rev. George McMichen of the Presbyterian church.

He said that God might preserve Mr. Diefenbaker's energy for the campaign "that it might bring forth that which we all desire."

At Saint John, Mr. Diefenbaker heaped scorn on the Liberals for what he said were their policy, when in office, of cutting the Maritimes adrift from the rest of Canada.

He said Liberal candidate Walter Gordon, chairman of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, had recommended that Maritimers be helped to move to other parts of the country.

Mr. Gordon had recommended in effect "the second great exodus of the Acadians" and had dealt with the Maritimes with a "cold axe."

The "Maritime Gordon Doctrine" was "get out, leave and the rest of Canada will provide the transportation."

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government's shipbuilding subsidies, Maritimes grants, assistance to the coal industry and for power projects and other measures had arrested the "downward drift" of the Atlantic provinces.

Will Banish Unemployment Says Douglas

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas pledged Tuesday night that an NDP-federal government would use democratic planning to "banish unemployment from the face of this country."

"This is not an idle boast," he told a cheering audience of 600 that partly filled a school auditorium in this pulp and paper community on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"There is no need for any able-bodied person in Canada to be out of a job. We would put them to work immediately.

"We won't guarantees to give every person the kind of job he wants. But we will guarantee to give him a job right away. And if he has the capacity we will train him to do even a better job that he is doing now."

The unemployed would be put to work building schools, hospitals, houses, roads and other projects. House building alone could use up all the unemployed in Canada for the next 15 years.

Part of the planning would involve plowing back between 20 and 25 per cent of the gross national product in investment in Canada so that ownership of the Canadian economy would be restored to Canadians.

Mr. Douglas said putting the unemployed to work would increase production by between $4,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 a year. This would increase $1,000 a year without raising taxes.

PENSIONS FOR ALL

The increase in government revenues would provide pensions of $75 a month for all at the age of 65. The pension would be tied to the cost of living.

The revenues also pay the government's share of portable contributory retirement pensions which would enable people to retire on two-thirds of their best average salary and would pay most of the costs of a comprehensive health plan.

Mr. Douglas' campaign to become the next prime minister of Canada was halted for 9 minutes in Vancouver earlier while his chartered plane flew a round trip to Pemberton, 80 miles north of Vancouver, to pick up an injured man and bring him to hospital. His audience occupied the time singing.

Mr. Douglas said automation-caused unemployment is probably the most pressing problem in Canada today. Some 3,500 jobs a week were disappearing.

It Paid Off for Palmer

'They Made Palmer Mad'

NEW YORK (AP) — They shouldn't have made Arnold Palmer mad, Gary Player said with a note of resignation Tuesday.

"It was like putting a match to a keg of dynamite," he said.

"You know, Arnie got off to a bad start on the winter tour early this year," added the little golfing gold prospector from Johannesburg. "They began writing his obituary. They said he was too interested in making money, that he had lost his edge and that he'd never be a big tournament threat again.

"That made Arnie mad. I found out long ago that the worst thing you can do is make this man mad."

Palmer won his third straight tournament and his sixth of the year Monday in the Colonial Invitation at Fort Worth, boosting his official earnings to $39,308. He's almost certain to become the first golfer in his try to win more than $100,000 in a single year.

"This fellow has to be the greatest," Player said, still on the subject of the golf rival. "I get quite ill when I hear all this talk about how good Ben Hogan was and how good Sam Snead was in the olden days.

"In my opinion, Palmer is better than Hogan or Snead. He's better than any golfer who ever played."

INCREASES EARNINGS

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's victory in the Colonial national invitational in Texas Monday boosted his earnings for the year to $39,308. Second on this week's list of top 10 money-winners is Bill Casper Jr. with $32,598, followed by Gene Littler $25,654, Phil Rodger $20,804 and Bob Nichols $19,528.

It Paid Off for Palmer

'They Made Palmer Mad'

NEW YORK (AP) — They shouldn't have made Arnold Palmer mad, Gary Player said with a note of resignation Tuesday.

"It was like putting a match to a keg of dynamite," he said.

"You know, Arnie got off to a bad start on the winter tour early this year," added the little-golfing gold prospector from Johannesburg. "I think began writing his obituary. They said he was too interested in making money, that he had lost his edge and that he'd never be a big tournament threat again.

"That made Arnie mad. I found out long ago that the worst thing you can do is make this man mad."

Palmer won his third straight tournament and his sixth of the year Monday in the Colonial Invitation at Fort Worth, boosting his official earnings to $39,208. He's almost certain to become the first golfer in his try to win more than $100,000 in a single year.

"This fellow has to be the greatest," Player said, still on the subject of his golf rival. "I get quite ill when I hear all this talk about how good Ben Hogan was, and how good Sam Snead was in the olden days.

"In my opinion, Palmer is better than Hogan or Snead. He's better than any golfer who ever played."

INCREASED EARNINGS

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's victory in the Colonial national invitational tournament Monday boosted his earnings for the year to $39,208. Second on this week's list of top 10 money-winners is Bill Casper Jr., with $32,205, followed by Gene Littler $25,054, Phil Rodger $20,264 and Bob Nichols $19,295.

Giants Still Riding High, Whip Cards

Dodgers Tame Colts

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

That wind tunnel known as Candlestick Park has turned into a Garden of Eden for San Francisco Giants.

Continuing the amazing run that has catapulted them to the top perch in the National League, the Giants hopped on Curt Simmons and whipped the Louis Cardinals 6-3 Tuesday night for their 10th victory in 13 games.

It also was the ninth consecutive triumph and the 15th in 17 games at home for the Giants, who apparently have learned to cope with the sifting, windy currents in Candlestick Park and made homers a paradise.

Billy Pierce posted his fifth win without a loss as San Francisco held its four-game edge over the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers and pushed the third-place Cardinals six back. The Dodgers used a six-run seventh inning outburst to subdue Houston Colts 10-1.

Cincinnati defending champion Reds won their fifth in a row and 10th in 12 games by beating Philadelphia Phillies 3-2. Three Pirates snapped a six-game losing streak with a 5-4, 10-inning decision over Milwaukee Braves and New York Mets outlasted Chicago Cubs 6-5 in 13 innings.

Simmons (3-1), who last week became the first pitcher to throw a complete game at the Giants, was bombed for six runs on three innings and that was it. Pierce scattered nine hits until he tired and needed Don Miller's relief help in the eighth inning. The decisive runs scored in a three-run third on a double by Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda's single and doubles by Felipe Alou and Jim Davenport, the last of relievers Ray Washburn.

Shortstop Maury Wills drove in four runs for the Dodgers, knocking in the go-ahead run in Friday's 10th inning with a single after pinch hitter Doug Camilli had opened the inning with his first spring tally. Trailing 7-6 with two outs in the inning, the Dodgers scored six hits and a wild throw runs that keyed Colts' starter Bob Bruce (1-3) to his relief while Bob Tiefenauer was charged with the loss.

The Reds got away in front on Frank Robinson's No. 12 by Vada Pinson in the first, then put it away with two runs in the second on Gus Bell's double and a single by winning pitcher Joey Jay (2-2) who knocked in a run. That made Art Mahaffey (3-5) the victim for the 9th consecutive time.

The Phils chased Jay in the fourth on No. 13 by Callison slammed a two-run triple, but Bill Henry came on to slam the door by striking out Tony Gonzalez.

Stan Grost drove in the tying run for the Pirates with a single in the seventh, then singled and scored the winner in the 10th on a two-out single by Dick Stuart. Mack Burdette (1-3). Harvey Haddix (3-1) won in relief while Moeller was counted for all the Braves' runs with a grand-slam homer in the fourth after Hal Smith had walked three consecutive batters.

Rookie Cal Koonce walked pinch hitter Hobie Landrith with the bases loaded and two out in the 13th, forcing home Gil Hodges with the winning run for the Mets. George Altman was 4-for-6 with two homers for the Cubs, who replaced the Mets in the cellar. Tony Balsamo (0-1) was the loser.

Charge 'Wreck' Campaign

Lions Roar at Stamps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herbie Capozzi, general manager of B.C. Lions, said Tuesday Calgary Stampeders are conducting a deliberate campaign to wreck the Western Football Conference player equalization plan.

"Because they can see that the plan won't help them this season, they're out to see that it doesn't help anyone else," Capozzi said.

The draft plan, adopted February at Canadian Football League meetings here, was designed to equalize player strength among the teams by cheating a surplus pool of Canadian talent. Under the plan, teams would present a list of 12 Canadian players which they wished to "protect" against the draft.

Players in excess of the 12 would be available to the rest of the league under certain stipulations.

Capozzi accused the Stampeders of adopting a dog-in-the-manger attitude, after already accepting the February plan in principle.

WAS RING OFFICIAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Emile Thomas, 59, the ringside physician for the two Archie Moore-Yvon Durelle light-heavyweight title bouts here, died in hospital Tuesday following a heart illness. For 30 years Dr. Thomas served as a medical adviser for the Montreal Athletic Commission. He was a fellow of the International College of Surgeons.

Only the Horse Got The Breaks

TORONTO (CP)—Joe Abrams of Toronto, owner of Golden Stable, successfully claimed four-year-old gelding Chesango in the sixth race at Old Woodbine Tuesday but his $4,500 spent will probably be $4,500 lost.

Chesango, heading into the stretch head in the claiming race, faltered and broke a pasthold bone of the right ankle and may have to be destroyed. The horse almost certainly never will race again.

Abrams, whose claim was successful over four others for the well-regarded horse, took possession of Chesango at once as the horses went to the post according to the rules of racing.

RARE, MEDIUM; WELL-DONE

By Geo. E. Carver, Sports Editor

That's what M. Jacques Plante, the elongated celebrity custodian of the pipes for the Montreal Canadiens picks up at the end of his best year in the National Hockey League.

For six of the past seven years, Jacques has been labbed the best goalie in the league. Six Vezina awards prove it. The other day he became the fourth nominee to win the Hart Trophy.

Plante's comeback story is the best since Hitler decided to get out of Russia. He had a not-so-good season in 1956-57, but his rebound last year astounded his critics and surprised even the brass of the Habs.

The night goalie took a pay cut, his first, from the Toronto Maple Leafs. Sec. Clk. Frank Selke told him, "If you have a good year you'll get the money back." If you win the Vezina you'll get a $3,000 bonus." Nothing succeeds Selke's bold bets. "It doesn't matter if you win the Vezina, you are playing so well you'll get the bonus anyway."

Plante recently returned from a tour of the western provinces and the west coast. He was feted, greeted and banqueted everywhere. The kids mobbed him. They wore out a dozen red carpets.

He was fine copy for the prairie and west coast sports writers. He told them about the famous mask. His face had been carved by so many wandering pucks, leaving scars in their wake, that Plante decided to protect his face.

"Three years ago a sizzling drive from Andy Bathgate's stick sliced half of the Plante nasal appendage away. He decided to wear the mask. "Now," he says, "there are no more scars. Before then I frightened my boy and both my cheeks and break my nose four times."

He told reporters, the mask is made to stand a puck shot at 100 miles an hour. Sometimes he gets hits in the face but it doesn't hurt, just stings. I haven't affected his performance." His goals-against record over the past two years is proof of that.

Many stories have been written about Plante's ability as a knitter. He is the champion purl-and-plainer of the National Hockey League—and any other league for that matter.

Asked by newsmen "how about it?" the gauntlish goalie said, "It is no publicity stunt. I knit. I really do. See skirt?"

He ripped his shirt and pulled out a handful of white woolen undershirt. It was a fine job weaved row on row. "I knit three like this a year," he said. "I can do a pair of socks in two days. I did a three-quarter length coat for my wife in ten days."

Plante said it was no hobby in the beginning. "I was the oldest of seven children and we were poor. By the time I was thirteen I was knitting scarves for the little ones." He paused for a moment, then smiled, and said, "Then when I was bad, my mother made me knit 75 rows before I could play."

He told newsmen that his father worked in an aluminum plant in Shawinigan Falls. They could not afford a radio when Jacques was a child 20 years ago. The family lived in an apartment house and on hockey nights Jacques used to lay on a sheet of drawers in his parents' bedroom to listen to broadcasts on the radio in the suite above.

He said he "appreciates a dollar. It means something to me being one of the six goalies in the National Hockey League. That means you are one of nine the best in the world—and there are a lot of people in the world."

Plante received $1,000 with the Hart Trophy; $1,000 with the Vezina; $1,000 for being on the first all-star team; $1,500 as his share of first-place money; $750 in playoff money and the club bonus he mentioned. It looks like $7,250.

CAHA Awards Will Honor Eastern Hockey Men

Wont Fight Again in The U.S.A.

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Aristides (Edu) Soffe, father and trainer of world bantamweight champion Elias Soffe, says he won't let his son defend his title again in the United States. He accused the U.S. promoters of plotting to take away Edu's title.

Young Soffe defeated Herman Marques of Stockton, Calif., in San Francisco May 4 by a 10th-round knockout. Two of three officials had Marques ahead going into the 10th.

The elder Soffe said: "Edu was fighting easily against Marques without extending himself fully. The advantage that the two judges gave in favor of Marques was without coherence, ridiculous, and completely unrealistic."

GOES AT MOSPORT

TORONTO (CP)—Roes Bristol will take over the wheel of the 1.4-litre Formula Mini British ace Stirling Moss was to have driven during the 200-mile race at Mosport Track on June 9, The announcement was made today by the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association, which said Masten Gregory, top United States wheelman, will take over the Lotus 19 origin ally assigned to Bristol. Moss was injured Easter Sunday, in a crash at Goodwood, England, retired.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will honor four Eastern Canadians next week for their outstanding contributions to the national game.

The four, the first in Eastern Canada to receive the CAHA "meritorious awards" for their services to hockey, are Dr. W. A. Hutt of Chesterville, Ont., Leo E. Burns of the Town of Mount Royal, Que., Hansen T. Dowell of Middleton, N.S., and Lorne Miller of North Bay.

They are to receive their awards during the annual meeting of the CAHA which starts here May 20. In succeeding years, other two awards are to be made annually, one in Eastern Canada and one in Western Canada.

Awards to five western hockey men were made last January, including one to Charles J. Doyle of Fort William.

SET DOWN TWICE

Under terms laid down by the CAHA, the awards "honor those persons who for many years have served amateur hockey faithfully, having participated as players, served as coaches and association members and made outstanding contributions to Canadian amateur hockey."

Dr. Hutt, 73, a member of the CAHA's executive committee, has been active in Ottawa and district hockey for more than 45 years.

Miller, now retired, operated hockey clubs in Northern Ontario before becoming president and manager of the NOHA in 1936. He served for two years in that post.

He was also secretary-manager and treasurer of the NOHA from 1951 until 1961 when he was stricken.

Tribe, Yanks Not Scaring Anybody

Nobody's pulling away from anybody in the American League race—not New York's seemingly invincible Yankees nor Cleveland's surprising Indians. Not the way Minnesota, Chicago and Baltimore have been moving.

While Cleveland and New York were being set back Tuesday night, the Twins knocked off Detroit Tigers 4-3 with home-run help from Vic Power and Harmon Killebrew, the White Sox nipped Washington Senators 3-2 as Al Smith contributed a vital pinch double, and the Orioles swamped Los Angeles Angels 7-1 behind Milt Pappas' pitching and some aloof hitting by rookie John (Boog) Powell.

The ninth-place Kansas City Athletics squeezed by Cleveland 6-5 and Boston Red Sox rocked New York's shaky pitching for a nine-run outburst in the sixth inning and swamped the Yanks 14-4.

As the tightly-bunched race stands now, Cleveland has a 9½ game edge on New York, the Twins are just 12 percentage points behind New York, the White Sox are only one game off the pace and the Orioles two. For good measure, the Angels, Tigers and Red Sox are tied for sixth, 3½ back, and the ninth-place Athletics are only five behind.

Power socked a two - run homer as the second man to face Tiger right-hander Frank Lary, sending the Twins off winging toward their eighth win in the last 11 games. Lennie Green's sacrifice fly delivered the clincher in the seventh, and Killebrew lofted a high one into the seats in the eighth for insurance.

Leftander Jack Kralick, supported by some neat defensive work to go along with the Minnesota hitting, yielded only five hits to Detroit before leaving in the eighth with a blister on his finger.

Lary, in his first start since a sore shoulder put him on the sidelines April 28, went eight innings, allowing all nine Minnesota hits.

The White Sox, now winners of six of their last eight, pulled it out against the hard-luck, first-place Senators in an eight-inning rally keyed by Smith's pinch hit. The double followed singles by Luis Aparicio and Nellie Fox, tying the count at 2-2, and Fox came in on Mike Hershberger's ground out.

Two-run homers in the second by Bob Schmidt for the Senators and Jim Landis of the

The Winner Was "Grant" Not Bill

The name "Bill Vandervort" in the story of the Ontario COSSA Track and Field meet, published in Monday's edition of this paper, was an error.

Grant Vandervort, of Ontario Secondary School, was the juvenile individual championship. This was the first year of juvenile competition and Vandervort, not "Vandervort", was the 220 event and placed second in the 100 and in the hop, step and jump events.

Goodman Signs With Colts

HOUSTON (AP)—Billy Goodman, former American League batting champion, signed a contract with the National League Houston Colts Tuesday.

To make room for the 36-year-old infielder - outfielder, Dick Gernert, a first baseman, was given his unconditional release.

Gernert had been purchased for $75,000 from Cincinnati Reds in the National League player pool Oct. 10. He had five hits in 18 trips at bat.

Goodman recently was released by Chicago White Sox after having been with Baltimore Orioles and Boston Red Sox. He broke into the major leagues with the Red Sox in 1947 and led the American League batting race in 1950 at Boston with a .354 average. His lifetime average is .301.

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto dentists suggested Tuesday that mouth guards should become part of the equipment of all children who take part in body contact sports.

Dr. Arthur W. S. Wood, a specialist in child dentistry and an executive member of the Toronto Township Hockey League, backed up his suggestion in a presentation to the annual convention of the Ontario Dental Association.

Leafs Stop Jets 6-3, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Babe Birrer, Buffalo Bisons righthander, has developed into the International League's No. 1 expert on how to cut down Richmond Virginians.

Last year, Birrer whipped the Virginians three times. This year, his only two victories have been scored at the expense of the Richmond club.

He ran his two-year streak to five over the Vees Tuesday night — a 3-0 shutout. Birrer gave the Vees a half dozen hits. In his other victory over the Vees, he gave them only three hits—a total of nine for two games.

In other action Tuesday night, Rochester Red Wings downed last Atlanta Crackers 4-2, Jacksonville Suns clobbered Syracuse Chiefs 14-4 and Toronto Maple Leafs halted Columbus Jets 6-3.

Singles by John Herrnick and Norm Gigon, along with a base on balls and a passed ball produced a run for the Bisons in the second inning. That was all Birrer needed. Tex Clevenger was the loser.

GIVES UP FIVE

Twenty-one-old John Miller pitched the Red Wings to their decision over Crackers. He gave up only five hits. Rookie Sam Bowens' double in the fourth drove in the final two. Rochester runs and provided the winning margin. The Wings have won seven of their last eight games.

The Suns exploded for eight runs after two were out in the third—all unearned — to make their task simple. Roben Gomez went all the way for his fourth straight victory.

The Maple Leafs had to come from behind to beat the Jets even though pitcher Steve Dembick stuck out 11. Steve Demeter hit a homer for the Leafs but Bill Lajoie's two-run double sent the Leafs ahead to stay in the seventh.

CFL Brass Gets Miles Case

CALGARY (CP) — George McKelvin, president of the Montreal Football Conference, said Tuesday night the squabble over who owns linebacker Rollie Miles must be settled by the Canadian Football League commissioner.

Miles was claimed from Edmonton Eskimos by Calgary Stampeders Tuesday under the league's player equalization draft plan. Eskimos officials protested the draft of the vet, who played Sydney Hutter, CFL commissioner, said he had turned the matter over to McMahon.

But McMahon said that because of his dual position as president of both the WFC and the Stampeders he is in a ticklish position in the dispute. The decision in this case must be the commissioner's, he said.

Punish Children Under 13 By Cutting Off Television

—By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A research firm recently took a poll of 1,400 parents and found that almost 40 per cent punish their children under 13 by forbidding them to watch television.

This fairly new weapon in a parent's armory got a second only to the old fashioned spanking. Apparently it has been found more effective than scolding, banishment to rooms or withholding allowances.

As a matter of fact, television has grown rapidly into a tool of many uses apart from its value as an entertainment or time-killing device for adults.

The set itself may be used to cover a worn spot on the carpet or conceal a crack in the wall, to hold flower arrangements or family photographs.

Programs can be used effectively to stop grandchild-and-awkward situations; "I'd love to come, Lorna, to see the movies on your big though Yellowstone, but the Mets are playing the Pirates and you know Charlie and his baseball."

Perhaps most important, TV is more efficient than a sleeping pill if the viewer is in a comfortable prone position.

Bob Morgan, Fearless Stunt Man, Loses Leg in Action

By BOB THOMAS

Stunt men will do anything from falling from a skyscraper building to leaping a horse off a cliff into a river.

They are paid well for it. Some can earn as much as $30,000 a year. They bargain with producers for individual stunts. Sometimes one man can earn as much as $2,000. Or they can also get hurt.

Bob Morgan had worked in most of the big action movies for 20 years. Danger came easily to him; he was a squadron commander in the navy aviation during the war.

"Bob is one of the top men in the business," said one of his fellow stunt men. "He is a good all-around man who could do anything."

Last month Morgan took a job to go on location with Boy the West Was Won in Arizona. The assignment seemed like routine stuff—or as routine as a stunt man's work could be. They were making some action scenes on an old railroad train. BUT BY LOG

"Bob was aboard a flat car that was loaded with logs," said a colleague. "The logs were supposed to tumble off and swung out on curves. Bob had climbed to the shot and looked back toward the camera train. One of the logs knocked him off the car.

"He fell between the track and three railroad cars passed over him. He wasn't run over by the wheels, but the clearance was so low that he was mangled."

Morgan was rushed to hospital in Phoenix, where his condition was grave. His wife, Vanessa — born Yvonne de Carlo, cancelled her engagements to be at his side. The stunt men's association issued an appeal for blood which was badly needed for the fight to save Morgan's life.

Morgan developed a toxic condition, and doctors agreed that his leg would have to be amputated to save his life. It was severed above the knee.

Miss de Carlo was back in Hollywood this week and was reported: "Has finally got of the woods."

Now at 46 he is faced with the loss of his profession as well as the loss of his vigorous life he had loved.

EAGER TO WORK

"He has accepted it beautifully," his wife said. "He is eager to get in there and start working with an artificial leg as soon as he can."

Miss de Carlo said he would be able to continue straight acting as he has for the past two years "as long as he uses the services of stunt doubles."

Decidedly Ready for Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — The rocks were gone from Pimlico and the Preakness today and Horatio Luro sent out his Kentucky Derby winner, Decidedly, for a final serious workout before the 85th Preakness Stakes Saturday.

Eleven three-year-olds are expected to start in the $150,000 added event.

Luro, the dapper Argentine trainer, said "the track looks fine, everything is okay, no complaints" after Decidedly stopped seven-eighths of a mile daily in 1:28 4-5. The smooth striding gray son of Determine was only allowed to run the final quarter, for which he was timed in 23 4-5 seconds.

Fred Ahrt was spread on the track Tuesday to meet complaints that the track was dull and full of sand from winter racing. Some stones were accidently included and Luro was forced to postpone Decidedly's workout 24 hours. He had intended to ride the horse each of the race "unless the track is 100-per-cent okay."

While Ted made it even until the sixth, when three singles gave Washington a 3-2 edge. Chicago launched its uprising in the eighth against loser Tom Cheney, and Smith's double-greeted reliever Steve Hamilton.

Powell, with a brace of homers and a single in three at bats, and the four-hit pitching of Pappas highlighted the runaway over Los Angeles for the Orioles.

Powell's first homer climaxed a five-run first inning as Baltimore slashed it away early by bombing out Ted Bowsfield of Penticton, B.C., before he could retire a man. The big rookie outfielder connected again his next time up, in the fourth. It was Bowsfield's second loss against one victory.

Pappas (4-1) allowed three Angel hits in the first innings and gave them one more the rest of the way—Tom Burgess' homer in the fifth.

Norm Siebern also belted a pair of two-run homers for Kansas City against the Indians, but was outdone by Jim Perry, who got a wild pitch proved decisive for the Athletics. With the game seven at 4-4 Hower opened the seventh with a single, outlegged the throw to second on a fielder's choice, moved another notch on a sacrifice and scored on a fly. He moved Marian Coughlin to third with another single in the eighth, and the run that sliced up as the winner crossed when Frank Funk relieved.

Cleveland knocked out winning reliever Dave Wickersham in its one-run ninth, but rookie Diego Segui pitched Hopper, Carl Yastrzemski paced Boston's massacre against the reeling Yankees, who again received pitching troubles in their third straight 11-4 loss. Yastrzemski whacked a two-run homer off Ralph Terry in the first, had two singles in the Red Sox nine-run pounding of Terry and Jim Coates in the sixth, and later added another single.

Four Want Vancouver Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four bids were received by the Pacific National Exhibition Thursday for the Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks.

Three of them were solidly backed by National League clubs and a fourth was described by officials as a token bid by an unnamed sports writer.

The three main bids are from: Fred J. Hume, former mayor of Vancouver and former owner of the defunct New Westminster Royals, which was a founding member of New York Rangers; Lambert Brothers, Inc., of Portland, supported by Montreal Canadiens; Vending Machine Harry Ornest backed by Toronto Maple Leafs.

The PNE has until June 1 to consider the franchise worth at least $150,000. A committee of three examined the bids Wednesday and will present its recommendation to the PNE board of directors today.

The Tracks

In the eighth race, nine of the 35 three-year-olds still eligible for the 1932 running of the Queen's Plate were thrown together, Arthur H won with Homeheal finishing a neck ahead of Navy Jay.

The victory of Arthur H was in doubt until the stewards reviewed the films of the race. Jockey Gordon Foster, riding Homeheal, claimed foul when Arthur H appeared to bump coming into the stretch run. The stewards disallowed the claim.

Ideal weather greeted 7,692 fans who paid $14,000 to see the afternoon complete, five of the eight winners were public choices.

The double of Mariner's Day, winner of the first running, with Real Tice in the second for a $23 daily double, was the smallest of the meeting. The quinella in the fifth paid $23.30 when Captain Rock registered over Swampscott.

Novice Chose Scotland Yard For Burglary

LONDON (AP)—A novice burglar named Arthur Ketterham went up Monday for short term "so you would expect—in court—in view of the place he chose for his first attempt. Room 13 at Scotland Yard.

Ketterham, 28, was a post office engineer assigned to keep the telephone lines in trim at the famous Metropolitan Police headquarters.

He learned that hundreds of naughty books and photographs being held as evidence for pornography prosecutions were stored in the basement room.

Unable to resist the temptation to have a look, Ketterham came back after work one night and forced a window.

The engineer's lawyer told the court his client was just curious.

Ketterham already had been demoted as a result of the burglary charge, he said, expressing hope that the court would consider this punishment enough.

"Room 13 recommended the judge "was indeed a very unlucky one for you."

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP) — Van's Pride Cm. Devility and Demon Dandy each won a division of the second leg of the Provincial Trot at Richelieu Raceway Tuesday night.

Twenty - eight trotters entered the $7,000 event and they were split into two divisions each for a purse of $2,332.

Van's Pride Cm. won the 6th, turning in a 2:00 mile on a good track and returning $6.20, $4.20 and $2.80.

Devility (3.20, $2.20 and $2.40) won the sixth in 2:01 and Demon Dandy ($8.20, $4.20 and $2.40) won in the ninth in 2:08 flat.

A second of 4,611 turned out for the Iroquois program and poured $52,106 into the mutuals.

DELIVER FUEL — Fuel and diesel oil are among items delivered to Arctic weather stations each summer by the Canadian Coast Guard's fleet of transports. Oil is pumped ashore from barges anchored at Eureka on Ellesmere Island, N.W.T. The icebreaker d'Iberville lies farther out in deep water. Empty oil drums support the hose that runs to banks on shore. (CP Photo)

Food, Equipment and Raw Materials Taken in Early Will Set Economic Pace

By JIM WHELLY

EDMONTON (CP) — The freight that goes down north and the way it goes there is the story of Canadian northern development.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of food, equipment and raw materials carried into the Northwest Territories and the Yukon before freeze-up will set the economic pace over more than a third of Canadas land area until the 1963 spring thaw.

From western and eastern Canadian ports, some 16 vessels of the Canadian Coast Guard are expected to move 120,000 tons of cargo this summer to more than 50 Arctic and sub-Arctic ports. With them goes an armada of more than 100 landing craft to put the supplies ashore.

First to hoist anchor will be the C. D. Howe, scheduled to sail from Montreal in early July. Its ports of call range from the bustling townsite of Frobisher, international airline stop, to tiny settlements of a few Eskimo tents.

BARGING HEAD NORTH

The most northerly coast guard destination is Eureka, a joint United States - Canadian weather reporting station about 700 miles from the north pole on the west coast of Ellesmere Island. It is reached annually by icebreaker.

Barges will carry more than 100,000 tons north, most of them starting from the Northern Alberta Railways terminus at Waterways, about 720 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Tugs push strings of as many as 10 barges, each loaded with up to 620 tons of freight or petroleum, down the Athabasca and Slave Rivers to Fort Fitzgerald, Alta., near the N.W.T. border.

Giant diesel trucks will carry the freight over a 23-mile bypass of four unnavigable rapids to Bell Rock, N.W.T., a Northern Transportation Company base where a sister fleet will be waiting. From there the goods are shunted down the Slave to Great Slave Lake, into the mouth of the Mackenzie River, and as far north as the Arctic coast.

WORK ROUND CLOCK

Some of the 12 tugs and 95 barges operated by Northern Transportation will detour from the Athabasca River across Lake Athabaska to Uranium City, Sask., near the lake's north shore. They share southbound mineral freight produced by Northern Transportation's parent company, crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining, with a fleet of Eldorado aircraft.

Other barges, most of them owned by the private Yellowknife Transportation Company, will be loaded at Hay River, N.W.T., on the south shore of Great Slave. Their cargo is moved to Hay River on a round - the - clock schedule by trucks that start from Edmonton, 700 miles south, and rumble from Grimshaw, Alta., over the 180 - mile gravel Mackenzie Highway.

From British Columbia points via Prince George, and from Alberta points via Grande Prairie, freight is trucked into the Yukon over the Alaska highway from Dawson Creek, B.C.

Aircraft, still complementary to ships and barges in the arctic, northern freight migration, have entered the competition in earnest this year for heavy commercial freightbanking.

Pacific Western Airlines, which recently completed a 150-ton haul to Coppermine on the Arctic coast, says it expects to lift greater tonnage to Coppermine next year and extend freight service to Cambridge Bay, on the south coast of Victoria Island, and Spence Bay, on the south coast of Boothia Peninsula.

Now that goods can be trucked to Yellowknife over the new Slave Lake Highway — a Mackenzie Highway extension around west Great Slave Lake from Hay River—the cost of flying goods 670 miles north to Coppermine is little higher than for water transport. Time saved can make up the difference, since barges might not arrive at Coppermine until late summer or early fall.

Largest Canadian Arctic air freight operations are the annual RCAF spring and fall supply missions to the Arctic Islands.

Operation Roving Deposit airlifted about 75,000 pounds of supplies to isolated Arctic Islands caches to be used by Canadian Army survey teams later this summer.

In March, Operation Boxtop moved 600 tons of freight to Alert on the northern tip of Ellesmere Island, from the USAF base at Thule on the coast of Greenland.

Early in April, two C-130E Hercules aircraft flew more than 1,000,000 pounds of supplies to the weather stations at Alert, Isachsen on Ellef Ringnes Island, Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island and Eureka.

Chartered and company aircraft will be hauling freight and supplies for special projects at scattered points in the north.

Some, chartered by the government, will follow the one which carried 44 tons of equipment and supplies and 22 persons to the northern tip of Ellef Ringnes Island in March to launch 1962 activities of the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project.

SUPPLY NORTHERN POSTS — Canadian Coast Guard vessels will carry about 110,000 tons of supplies this summer to more than 50 Arctic and sub-Arctic posts in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon. Here, a tug and barge ferry supplies to shore from ships lying at anchor in Resolute Bay, NWT. (CP Photo).

Marsh Hill

MARSH HILL — Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger and Jennie attended the funeral of their aunt, Miss Della Whan, Smiths Falls, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Clare and family attended the church services Sunday afternoon at Gilead when their twin nephews, sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hoffman were christened.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Romney and daughters of Frankford were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Berson Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger were guests at the Martin and Paterson wedding which was held in Tweed United Church Saturday, May 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fiske and daughters called Sunday evening on Mrs. Brodie Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston and Janet of Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Wall of Stockdale attended the church service at Marsh Hill Sunday morning and were guests of their daughter, Mrs. Ralph Parks and Mr. Parks.

Dominion Explorers Limited says chances are good that they will be flying equipment to Bathurst Island this summer for the drilling of Canada's second Arctic island oil test well.

By boat and aircraft, the materials for a new townsite will be moving to Frobisher, scheduled to be restituted in an Aklavik-Inuvik type move beginning this summer.

A mill and other buildings of the new town of Tungsten, N.W.T., in the Pelly Mountains about 900 miles southeast of Vancouver, are to be built this summer. An airstrip is being laid out at Tungsten and a 100-mile ice trail from Tuslin, on the Alaska Highway, is being built to the area's lead, zinc and silver deposits.

Churchill, Man., again will be the busiest export centre of the Canadian north. The Hudson Bay port last year shipped more than 21,000,000 bushels of wheat to Europe through Baffin Strait during a three-month ice-free season.

Among new freight rates north, the most costly is the $86,000,000 Great Slave Railway, being built from the Northern Alberta Railways line at Roma, Alta., near Peace River, to Hay River, 430 miles. Its primary purpose is to haul minerals from Pine Point, to which a short spur line will run from Hay River, and it is scheduled for completion in four years. It will be the first railway to penetrate the Northwest Territories.

DELIVER FUEL—Fuel and diesel oil are among items delivered to Arctic weather stations each summer by the Canadian Coast Guard's fleet of transports. Oil is pumped ashore from barges anchored at Eureka on Ellesmere Island, N.W.T. The icebreaker d'Iberville lies farther out in deep water. Empty oil drums support the hose that runs to tanks on shore. (CP Photo)

Food, Equipment and Raw Materials Taken in Early Will Set Economic Pace

By JIM WHELLY

EDMONTON (CP) — The July 15 ports of call range from the bustling townsite of Frobisher, international airline stop, to tiny settlements of a few Eskimo tents.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of food, equipment and raw materials carried into the Northwest Territories and the Yukon before freeze-up will set the economic pace over more than a third of Canada's land area until the 1963 spring thaw.

From western and eastern Canadian ports, some 18 vessels of the Canadian Coast Guard are expected to move 110,000 tons of cargo this summer to many then 50 Arctic and sub-Arctic ports. With them goes an armada of more than 100 landing craft to put the supplies ashore.

First to hold anchor will be the C. D. Howe, scheduled to sail from Montreal in early July. Her destination is Eureka, a joint United States - Canadian weather reporting station about 700 miles from the north pole on the west coast of Ellesmere Island. It is reached annually by icebreaker.

Barges will carry more than 100,000 tons north, most of them starting from the Northern Alberta Railways terminus at Waterways, about 250 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Tugs push strings of as many as six barges, each loaded with up to 620 tons of freight or petroleum, down the Athabasca and Slave Rivers to Fort Fitzgerald, Alta., near the N.W.T. border.

Giant diesel trucks will carry the freight over a 23-mile bypass of four unnavigable rapids to Bell Rock, N.W.T., a Northern Transportation Company base where a sister fleet will be waiting. From there the goods are shunted down the Slave to Great Slave Lake, into the mouth of the Mackenzie River, and as far north as the Arctic coast.

WORK ROUND CLOCK

Some of the 12 tugs and 85 barges operated by Northern Transportation will detour from the Athabaska River across Lake Athabaska to Uranium City, Sask., near the lake's north shore. They share southbound mineral freight produced by Northern Transportation's parent company, crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining, with a fleet of Eldorado aircraft.

Other barges, most of them owned by the private Yellowknife Transportation Company, will be loaded at Hay River, N.W.T., on the south shore of Great Slave. Their cargo is moved to Hay River on a round - the - clock schedule by trucks that start from Edmonton, 700 miles south, and rumble from Grimshaw, Alta., over the 380 - mile gravel Mackenzie Highway.

From British Columbia points via Prince George, and from Alberta points via Grande Prairie, freight is trucked into the Yukon over the Alaska highway from Dawson Creek, B.C.

Aircraft, still complementary to ships and barges in the annual northern freight migration, have entered the competition in earnest this year for heavy commercial freight-hauling.

Pacific Western Airlines, which recently completed a 150-ton haul to Coppermine on the Arctic coast, says it expects to lift greater tonnage to Coppermine next year, and extend freight service to Cambridge Bay, on the south coast of Victoria Island, and Spence Bay, on the south coast of Boothia Peninsula.

Now that goods can be trucked to Yellowknife over the new Slave Lake Highway — a Mackenzie Highway extension around west Great Slave Lake from Hay River—the cost of flying goods 470 miles north to Coppermine is little higher than for water transport. Time saved can make up the difference, since barges might not arrive at Coppermine until late summer or early fall.

Trying to Get Surface Water Out of Sewers

With the city's level sewage disposal plant expected to go into operation before the year end, a stepped up program by the city public works department to get surface water out of the sanitary sewers, will be the order of the day.

Such a program has been called on over a period of years with up to 50 to 60 foot of catch basin connections being taken from the sanitary sewer system each year.

Borders of new residences and those owners converting from septic tank use to the city sanitary sewer system are warned against allowing roof or surface water into sanitary sewers.

The reason, of course, is to keep the volume of sewage to be treated as low as possible.

When surface water gets into the sanitary sewer system it means the extra water also has to be treated and that according to public works department officials is "just plain ridiculous".

Girl Abducted, Raped, Boy of Fifteen Charged

TORONTO (CP)—A 15-year-old girl, abducted and raped at knife - point Wednesday night, was found bound and sobbing in a car parked in a lane in the shabby basement of a house today.

Nearly 100 policemen had searched all night for her.

The girl was on her way home from a movie with a friend yesterday when a youth came up behind her when she was two blocks from home.

He held a knife to her back and began dragging her down the street in full view of her sister who was sitting on the front porch. She heard her sister's screams brought her mother and her husband running.

VANISHED IN LANE

The father chased the kidnaper, but still holding the girl, he dived into a lane.

Police found the girl's handbag in the alley. Two hours later, her father found her shoes and necklace stuffed in a crate. They had been cut from her with a knife.

Witnesses told police the kidnaper was a "well-dressed individual" dressed in a dark suit and carrying a white shoulder bag.

Robert Jones and Clifford Gilbert were held by a woman who said they were acting as if they were a uniform such as they wore.

The detective found the girl in the basement of the house where the youth lived.

She told police she had been unable to call for help because her shoulder held a sock in her throat and kept threatening her.

The father of the arrested boy, his mother and two younger sons told police they had been in the house all night and had heard nothing.

Police said the girl, who was well known to the boy, is a high school student who sells magazine subscriptions by telephone in the evening.

Common Mart, Britain Reach Tariff Accord

GENEVA (Reuters) — Britain has first concluded a tariff accord with the European Common Market within the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, informed sources said here today.

The agreement is the last remaining key accord of protracted trade liberation negotiations known as "the Dillon round" which started a year ago.

The complex negotiations involved bilateral bargaining by 22 nations and sources in Geneva said only a few minor security points remain to be concluded.

The negotiations took their name from U.S. Treasury Secretary Dillon.

24-PER-CENT CUT

The Dillon round binged on a reciprocal 20 per cent offer of a 50 per-cent tariff cut on a wide range of goods providing sufficient reciprocity was forthcoming from other parties to the negotiations.

Other key agreements under the Dillon round were signed last March between the United States and the Common Market, and the United States and Britain.

Mild Criticism Given Govt. In Two Briefs

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government came in for considerable mild criticism in two briefs presented to the royal commission on health services.

One brief urged stricter control by the government over the importation of medicines and said food for human consumption. The other was critical of the government for meagre grants for research.

The faculty of household science of the University of Toronto told the commission that newspaper publicity regarding sale of meat from diseased animals and salmonella in dried egg whites "makes it necessary that the federal government should set higher standards for production and sale of food.

The brief, presented by Dr. Barbara McLaren, said the food and drug directorate should not only protect the public against unsanitary foods but also give advice on nutritional aspects. Infectious diseases as scurvy and rickets are still occurring at Canada, the brief said.

The National Cancer Institute charged that governments, particularly the federal government, have failed to meet their responsibility in the field of cancer research.

The institute, in their brief presented by Dr. O. E. Warwick, said cancer victims in Canada should receive $1,400,000 from the federal government annually with the total over two years instead of the current annual figure of $125,000.

Body May Have Been Bruised After Death

OSHAWA (CP) — Crown Attorney Kevin Affleck said, Wednesday the body of a Toronto man may have been bruised after a fishing trip near Beaverton Sunday, may have been bruised after death.

1234561234567890

The body of Joseph Bleed, 48, was found by his wife 300 feet from the bank of the Trent Canal.

The criminal investigation branch of the provincial police was called in after an autopsy revealed bruises and other injuries. Cause of death is to be later established as asphyxia tion.

Mr. Affleck said it appeared the bruises on the head, arms and legs of the man were caused when he was dragged back to the canal bank by companions from Toronto.

Police refused to say whether Bleed's body had been recovered from the water of the canal or had been retrieved in a fishing mishap. The body was found in a swampy area back of the canal.

9th Cubs, Scouts Hold F-S Banquet

At 6.30 p.m. on May 25, over 100 fathers and sons sat down to the Father-Son banquet in the St. Margaret's parish hall. The tables were decorated by Cubs, and Rovers of the 9th Group.

Following the National Anthem, Grace was said by Rover Leader, Lt.-A. Page, rector of St. Margaret's.

Head table guests included: Douglas Fort; Percy Pickering, District Council president; Rev. L. A. Page, in uniform, Cubmaster Mrs. Mildred Dix; and Commissioner; Alfred Murray; Phil Stewart; Don Hamilton; Mrs. Merril Gordon; District Peter Murray; Jim Stewart; Ted Fort; Jim Pickering; Reg. Jago; Jagger and Teddy Bill.

Mr. Murray was introduced by A.C.M. Merril Gordon. A cowboy song, with accompanying actions, was sung by the Cubs. Chimney Sweep brought forth a record of laughter.

The ladies were thanked by Cub David Hastings, the Mother's Auxiliary of the 9th Group, who prepared and served the dinner.

Mr. Gordon Russell was introduced by Cubmaster Mrs. Dix, who spoke briefly about the 9th Group being the only complete group in Belleville. The group has a complete family includes Rovers, Scouts, Cubs, a group committee and a Mothers' Auxiliary.

SCOUT AID BADGES

"Scouting gives a boy confidence," stated Mr. Russell.

Mr. Russell presented Aid badges to Bobby Gordon; Brian James; David Gay and Jimmy Gordon. Tribute was paid to Mr. M. E. Johnson for his help to Scouting.

Percy Pickering likened Boy Scout life to the sharpening of a knife. A Troop Chief, he compared to a dull knife, which becomes keener as it is sharpened. A boy sharpening Scouting Cubs, Scouts and Rovers is sharp when he is accomplished. As there are only 15 Rovers out of 1,000 scouts and Cubs in the city, only the keenest have remained in the Association at this stage.

Mr. Page thanked the group committee for its year's work, also the Mothers' Auxiliary for renovating the boys.

Donald Murray asked the Scouts to keep up their interest in Scouting, as they would be remembered by it in later years.

Lee Tripp introduced his Assistant Cubmaster Clifford London and mentioned that fathers will be needed for bringing with the Scout Camp in June.

Doug. Fort announced that Bill Gordon, Gary Stewart, realized $60. which will go towards tents.

At this point pictures and slides were presented by Jim Hastings and Peter Murray. The Rover Moot at Sault Ste. Marie; the Scout Jamboree at Sagamok were all pictured. In colour Ottawa and Scout Camp at Orr. The wound up a very interesting evening.

CERTIFICATES AWARDED

Senior St. John's First Aid Badges to Murray Hamilton, Senior St. Johns First Aid certificates to Squires Roger Hamby and Howie Newman. Also to Rovers Jan Pickering, Bill Gordon, Gary Stewart, Bob Smith, Peter Murray and Murray Angus.

Given Sealed Envelopes Said Witness

TORONTO (CP) — Truck dealer Edward Collins of Peterborough said Wednesday he occasionally received a sealed envelope from Fred Ford, chairman of Toronto during delivery of meat to Toronto.

Mr. Collins was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Bandermaan, 51, Eugene Leslie McCarron, 62, charged with four counts of selling a quantity of dead animals for human consumption, contrary to regulations under the Food and Drugs Act.

Mr. Collins, who said he also worked as a laborer for Michael Penoni of Peterborough, a dealer in dead stock, testified that boxes containing Mr. Penoni's meat were delivered once a week to a trucking concern on Highway 27 near Toronto.

He said he sometimes met a man who asked him how many boxes he had on his truck and who handed him an envelope for Mr. Penoni. He identified Bandermaan as the man he occasionally met.

He said he was never told anything about money but was instructed by Mr. Penoni to take loads to Toronto.

The hearing continues.

garet Herity, a sister of John and Owen, Mr. Morton's surviving cheese at Chesterville for some years and in 1934 transferred to the Victoria factory at Lodgemoor, northwest of Belleville.

Seeking to improve his surroundings for the benefit of his men, Mr. Morton attended dairy school at Kingston and took a course in cheese-making, dairy instructor for south and east Hastings and associations of adjoining counties. During this time he continued to operate the Victoria factory with the assistance of several helpers. He conducted this work over during his periodic visits to factories in his district.

In 1908, he gave up his post as dairy instructor to accept an offer from Lowell & Christmas of Montreal, a branch of Lowell Manufacturing in London, England, the largest cheese and butter packing firm in the United Kingdom. This work called for the attendance of cheese boards in Belleville, Napanee, Stirling, Campbellford, Madoc and Peterborough. When cheese were purchased by Lowell & Christmas, it was necessary to check on the quality of the cheese and personal visits to the factories.

MOVED TO BELLEVILLE

Finding that living at Napanee was inconvenient for Mr. Morton gave up the Napanee home and moved to Belleville in January of 1910, and it was not long after that Mr. Morton was interested in newspaper work with his late brother.

During all his years in the newspaper business, Mr. Morton was also interested in the cheese industry. However, the most recent activity after the war was due to a change in cheese marketing operations which resulted in a buyer he retained the confidence and factory owners by fair dealings. Few men in Canada had as great a knowledge of the art of cheese production in all its phases as Mr. Morton. He was able to advise cheese makers when imperfections were found in their product or operation, and how to eliminate them. There were times when the company he represented felt that if there was any favoritism shown it was the farmers who benefited. After the system of grading cheese was changed during and after the war, his active interest in the industry grew less until by 1951 he ceased to attend the boards.

Sometimes the newspaper staff felt the "Boss" was more interested in the cheese industry than in the newspaper. And indeed many of the leaders of the industry had to be given prominence in the news columns. Columns of space were devoted to reporting the annual Cheese Producers' Association conventions held in the city in connection with the Empire Dairy Show Exhibition.

Anything else had to be left out when space limited but anything to do with the cheese industry must be published.

An indication of Mr. Morton's interest in this field of work was the fact that he was called on to act as judge of the cheese section of the Canadian National Exhibition for over eighteen years. Those were the years when over four hundred cheese had to be judged in comparison with a couple dozen or less in recent years. He gave up this activity in 1939. He also judged for several years at the Ottawa Winter Fair where an outstanding exhibit was an annual event.

MANY INTERESTS

W. H. Morton was not a man who sought public office, but his interests in municipal and national affairs was such as to lean from the left. He was well informed and was always able to discuss such matters in a fair and logical manner. He had a keen sense of good judgment on a wide range of subjects and as a result was sought in all walks of life sought his counsel and few had cause to regret it.

He was chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Belleville branch of the Victoria and Grey Trust Company and Lobales a director of the parent company, with head office in Toronto. He was a director of Lowell and Christmas of Canada, Montreal. Mr. Morton was vice-president of the Quinte Broadcasting Company (CJBQ) Belleville. For many years Mr. Morton served as a director of the Belleville Board of Commerce. He was a director of the Belleville Club, an honorary life member of the Quinte Club, a Mason, being a member of Ionic Lodge, No. 388, A.F. and A.M. in this city, a member of Benjamin Orange Lodge, a member of the Independent Order of Foresters and an honorary life member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 99, of Belleville.

The funeral will be held at Bridge Street United Church on Friday afternoon at three o'clock with interment at Belleville Cemetery.

Mining Magnate Convicted in Stock Swindle

TORONTO (CP)—Roy Bobbie Thompson, 51, millionaire and former co-owner of the Montreal Alouettes football team, Wednesday was convicted on charges of conspiracy and fraud in an alleged mining stock swindle involving $300,000.

Thompson and two others on similar counts and an additional charge of theft was David C. Stuart, 35, of Montreal.

Andre Begi , 32, of Montreal, was convicted of conspiracy and fraud and Harry Yaccy, 46, of Toronto was convicted on 4 fraud charges.

All four were remanded in custody. Thompson was charged with eight counts of conspiracy, fraud and theft.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

They pleaded not guilty to the charges, which involved an alleged mining stock promotion scheme involving $300,000 in Steadman Mines Limited when the case opened March 19.

The men were charged when the assets of Steadman Mines increased from $365,000 to $68,000 in a single day in March, 1960, giving Robertson control of the company of which he was president.

The Crown also contended that in a series of manipulations among the four men, Steadman Mines Limited shares were sold to Thompson's Norsyn Mines at cheque for $300,000, when only $118,000 was left in the Steadman account.

WINS DIVORCE

DARIEN, (CP)—Tobacco hair Richard Reynolds won a second divorce from his third wife Wednesday by direction of a jury that decreed he owed her no alimony. The Supreme Court threw out the first decree, on the ground "outrageous errors were committed" by the trial court. That court also held the alimony was insufficient.

IN MEMORIAM

FASCOE — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Fascoe, who died May 17th, 1954.
Sweet memories are all we have left
Of one we loved so dear
Memories that will never fade
As year by year go by.
Sadly missed by his daughters and sons-in-law.

HATTER — In loving memory of Robert Lorne Hatter, who died and was taken to eternity May 17th, 1956.
Time speeds on, four years have flown
Death is the shadow, the shadow we own
While we are sharing
Life with the light
And the dark hours of sorrow
We cannot fight.
We miss that light, and ever will.
Our vacant place there is none to fill
Love for love we mourn, but not in vain
For we shall meet
Never to part again.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad and brother Sid.

DOW — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Dow, who passed away May 17th, 1960.
Time speeds on, but memory lingers still
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Where we were, where all seemed right
And days were as a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will
For in its absence we fill more
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For we in heaven we will meet again
Lovingly remembered by wife, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

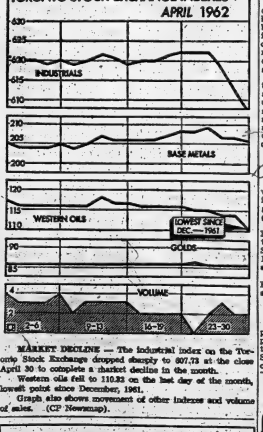
James Yeates Home After Visit to Native Greece

Singing praises for the "wonderful service" given aboard the ship captain and crew during a 55-day cruise on the liner Olympia, Mr. James Yeates, Belleville Bilford room operator, has returned home after a visit to his native Greece.

Mr. Yeates, owner of Uptown Billiards, came to Canada in 1927, and re-visited Greece once before in 1950. In 1957, his wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Frederick and Helen, visited Greece.

Fifty-two days of the 90-day cruise were spent aboard the winter cruise ship Olympia which made 17 ports of call along the North African and European shores of the Mediterranean and in the Black Sea.



Among places visited were included Casablanca, Alexandria, Venice Seaway, Haifa, Rhodes, Yalta, Odessa, Istanbul, Athens, Naples, Gibraltar and Lisbon.

18th Scouts, Cubs Make Money

During the past few months the Cubs and Scouts of 18th Belleville have been actively engaged in money-making projects. During March, the cubs participated in a "Basket Drive." Then, in April, a "white sale" was held by "Alexis" Hultquist, Mr. R. Gordon and Mr. W. Scott, in a successful drive.

Appreciation is expressed to the residents of the Parkdale area for their co-operation in both the "Basket Drive" and the "Bottle Drive," held by the Scouts in April. The showery month made the former difficult selling hot cross buns to raise money for their "seal fund." They hope to have the seals hoisted in time for the warm weather, when last year's troop boat will become a sailboat.

Over the Easter weekend 14 Scouts were sponsored to Bagmanek Camp where they spent an enjoyable three days under canvas. Scouter H. Frederick was in charge with Scouter John Porter as a weekend guest.

The boys planned and cooked all their own meals on a communal basis, a system which was voted a huge success.

The Senior Scouts had the job of keeping the camp fires burning and area were busy chopping wood at all hours of the day and night. The "nocturnal" activities were "Stalking" campers, too excited to sleep.

At the close of an enjoyable three days, 14 tired, but happy boys returned to Belleville.

Manufacturers Oppose National Health Scheme

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Manufacturers Association said today a national health plan covering only physicians' services would cost Canada "hundreds of millions" in new conservative estimate."

The association said the burden could adversely affect the country's economy, the association told the royal commission on health services.

The association, whose 8,400 members produce three - quarters of Canada's total manufactured output, argued that nothing should be done to hinder the development of existing private health plans, which covered more than half of the population.

"No government - operated scheme, applicable to the Canadian dimensions generally, should be undertaken," it said.

Steps should be taken however to permit the purchase of health insurance by those who, by reason of age or pre-existing medical conditions cannot obtain adequate coverage. Premium rates should be comparable to those paid by regular subscribers.

In the case of those unable to afford insurance, the association said a study should be undertaken by the commission's research staff in consultation with social workers and "other experts." Any government assistance should be conditional on means tests.

Army Private Fined $50 For Tailgating

HALIFAX (CP) — An army private who tailgated Prime Minister Diefenbaker's car several miles was fined $50 today on a charge of improper driving.

Pte. William Bevins, 32, of Halifax, a signalman with Eastern Command, pleaded guilty.

Bevins' car in the motorcade was spotted Wednesday afternoon weaving in and out of a cavalcade carrying the prime minister to Halifax from Truro, N.S. His truck, towing with cable, passed 79 cars before reaching the prime minister's car.

He stuck behind the car for several miles despite being cut out by RCMP on the outskirts of Halifax.

Progressive Conservative officials said they were worried about the closeness with the truck, but they said Mr. Diefenbaker was unaware of what was going on behind him.

Court Martial Stalled by Legal Move

OTTAWA (CP)—A legal request believed unprecedented in Canadian military practice has caused court martial proceedings Wednesday against Mrs. William Allan Peat, accused of organizing and participating in Doukhobor gold smuggling.

The court martial will resume Tuesday on the earliest after the advocate-general's office rules on the request for a commission of evidence to Doukhobor a collection of sworn testimony from persons still in that country.

The request by defence lawyer R. F. Lalonky of Ottawa followed denial by the court of his submission that the prosecution's whole record in its case Wednesday had failed to establish Group Captain J. H. Hollies, black robed legal adviser to the five-man court, said after the adjournment he was not aware of any precedent for seeking a commission of evidence before a military tribunal.

If this one is granted, it would mean some delay while defence questions are answered under oath in Doukhobi. Those who would be questioned was not divulged.

NAMING GROUP UP

Several civilian names have cropped up in the hearings so far during the three days of the court martial. Personal assistant serving with the Canada-Polish-India international supervisory truce commission are likely to be involved in the request.

Mrs. Platt, 46, whose wife lives at Rossland, Que., spent some eight months with the Canadian truce team in Indochina before being returned to Canada about Dec. 1.

He is charged with conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, the same general complaint laid against four other soldiers, all non-commissioned officers. Their courts martial there earlier this month. Sentences of the four ranged from a severe reprimand to outright dismissal.

The expert class was headed by Henry Tam scoring 281 with no misses on the course, expert badge went to Jack Hinchey with 269 target. Doug MacDougald's 251 in the class. Ron Isaac's score of 226 was exceptional for the non-marksmen class. Don Wilson scored 239 for second position with the marksmen.

The opening night for the mixed league has not been set—as yet been announced, although the ranges and range will be ready over the week-end. There will likely be many trial targets shot over the coming weekend.

Former Union Head Loses Court Appeal

SEATTLE (AP)—Dave Beck, boiler as a 66-year-old businessman fine time he headed the Mr. Teamsters union, took in stride Monday the news that his embezzlement conviction had been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I have no comment under any conditions until I have read the actual opinion," he said when reached at his office weeks. he manages his real estate holdings and other business interests.

But King County prosecutor Charles O. Carroll said this maneuvre might not keep Beck from his date to prison and his 15-year sentence.

Carroll and Superior Judge George H. Revelle, before whom Beck was tried on charges that he pocketed $1,000 from the sale of a union-owned limousine, recommended to the court that terms of prison terms and paroles that Beck serve a minimum of three years.

Beck has another prison sentence hanging over him.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco on Jan. 30 upheld his conviction of filing false federal tax returns for his union. He was sentenced to five years imprisonment and fined $20,000.

The same day the appellate court set aside Beck's conviction on a charge of evading payment of more than $240,000 in taxes and ordered the case back to district court for another trial. Beck had been sentenced to five years and fined $40,000 on those charges.

Start Made on Ambitious Program To Develop Zwick's Island Park

Zwick's Island has been undergoing quite a facelifting recently and even more developments is scheduled to take place there. It is a very progressive, long range plan of the Belleville Parks Board.

This plan, which encompasses a five-year program of continual development, should result in Zwick's Island becoming a major parkland area in the Quinte district from the standpoint of points of interest, and conveniences, if not in size.

A sand bottom bathing beach, bathhouses, picnic tables, outdoor barbecues, concession canteens, ball diamond, tennis courts, docks and small semi-amphitheatre for band concerts or summer theatre and a replica of an Indian village are under consideration in the plans.

Vehicular traffic through the park is expected to be eventually curtailed, according to parks board chairman William Sirett, and paths and walkways will thread their way through the area. There will be ample room for a car park on the east side and the north side, an area where boat trailers can be parked.

The engineering firm of Mather-Locke and Associates Ltd., has been retained to produce the master plan for the project, a cost estimate and detailed design of any structures which would be erected. It is anticipated that all structures, with the exception of the suggested Indian village, which would be located on the high point of land in the centre of the park, would be of a design as used by the early settlers in this area.

Mr. Grant Locke of the engineering firm is extremely enthusiastic about the project and considers that the parks board have the master plans concocted in about a month's time. As Zwick's Island now stands it is a very pleasant spot to visit and people take advantage available for the public's use on the north side of the park overlooking the Bay of Quinte. Currently the public may drive cars around the perimeter of the area on the roadway which has been developed.

This year the parks board people have been erecting a backstop for ball diamond etc is on te east sid of 1122 which is on the east side of the area.

Diet Low in Saturated Fats Recommended

NEW YORK (AP) — A preliminary study of 865 men on diet low in saturated fats does not appear to have fewer heart attacks than persons not on any prescribed diet, it was reported Wednesday.

The New York city department of health told of the study in a report to the annual convention of the State Medical Society.

It was based on the first four years of a 10-year study the department is making of men 40 to 59 who volunteered to remain on a diet low in saturated fats.

Of the 865 taking part in the program here, only five have developed heart trouble. This compares with 13.75 among a similar non-dieting group studied in Framingham, Mass.

COULD BE A FACTOR

The results suggest, the report said, that diet may be effective in reducing heart attacks and this possibility should be pursued.

Eliminated or substantially reduced in the diet are foods with predominantly saturated fatty acids, such as butter, whole milk, cheese, ordinary margarines, hydrogenated margarines and hydrogenated shortenings.

In their place, the diet prescribes foods with predominantly unsaturated types of fatty acids. These include corn oil, fish, most nuts and grains and lean meats such as poultry and veal.

Under the diet, the cholesterol ratings in blood of the dieters was reduced.

Cholesterol is the fat in the blood suspected of contributing to deposits that narrow or harden blood vessels, thus raising the risk of heart attacks and strokes.

Avondale Owners Advised Re Sewer Installations

Home owners in the Avondale district in West Belleville who pride themselves on their immaculate lawns are going to have to excavate across nice grass areas or driveways within the next few months.

The reason for the excavating will be to install laterals to connect up with sanitary sewer mains to be constructed in the near future.

The streets affected will be Avondale Road, Wright Ave., Glen Road, Selkie Drive, Hillcrest Drive and Sidney Street.

Approximately 200 residences now served by individual septic tanks will be required to hook up to the new mains.

Acting city engineer Richard Craft and Mr. Ellis, chairman of the special sewer committee met with residents yesterday that within the next few weeks public works engineering will be letting a tender for the installation of the sewer to the above area requesting an indication as to where they wish sewer laterals placed.

ONLY TO PROPERTY LINE

The city installs laterals from the main to the property line, while the home owners will have to take it from there on to their homes.

Mr. Craft noted that the preliminary check regarding placement of laterals would lessen the confusion later.

Home owners do not need to wait until the sewers are installed before putting in the laterals on their own property. However if the work is done before mains are installed, levels should be checked with city hall engineering department to ensure the proper fall from the house to the sewer.

Five-inch asbestos pipe will be installed to the property line and pipe less than this size is not recommended for running the laterals any distance.

Home owners who have their own laterals installed are warned to avoid sharp corners in the installation and if this was unavoidable to install proper cleanout fittings.

Support Active Candidate

Trenton Mill Workers Cotton to Bob Temple

TRENTON — Liberal candidate Robert Temple was warmly greeted by the members of the working force and management at the Trent Cotton Mills during a tour of their plant this past Monday afternoon.

Mr. Temple expressed great interest in the operation of the plant and its employees' activities and also stopped to speak with the 60 people who were on duty.

Considerable discussion centred on the record high cost of living index. Mr. Temple attributed this, in part, to the decline of the Canadian dollar and to the Conservative government's mismanagement of Canada's finances which had caused a drain of the country's reserve funds.

Many of the mill's employees expressed their support for Mr. Temple in his campaign for election.

The Liberal candidate said that the Hon. Lester B. Pearson would be visiting Trenton on Wednesday, May 23rd, and a reception would be held at which all Trenton and district residents were invited to meet the popular Liberal leader whose tour of Canada is winning the increasing support of the Canadian people.

In developing a knowledge of the servants and needs of the people of Hastings South, the Liberal candidate has been engaged in an active program of personal research into these matters through many visits to the many industries and institutions scattered in the riding. Mr. Temple said that the importance of solving things rural must be given to be able to give every person in the riding subsistence above representation in Parliament.

Use of the housing problem in new Liberals' Model for tomorrow when young, active canvassers, Mr. Temple has been enrolled to point the Liberal Party's national cost-to-cost radio broadcasts over the CBC's Dominion network this Friday at 12:15 p.m. In his campaign broadcast the local Liberal candidate will discuss the Liberal Party's proposed pension program. He may be heard over radio station CKLC, Kingston.

O.E.S. Chapter 55 Sponsors Delightful Blossom Tea

Gleaming tables, sparkling crystal and bright maiden ware formed a suitable scene of most successful "Blossom Tea" sponsored by Chapter 55 of the Order of the Eastern Star yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Temple. Everything possible for the beautification of the premises was undertaken and the result resulting in a fairy-land of floral bloom. Over the entrance, a white trellis with ground and pillars was likewise banked, and over the hood, encircled in white was the words "O.E.S." — and inside, lovely white flowers in the centre of the Worthy Matron of the year, and golden baskets filled with spring flowers hung as swaying motifs from the ceiling.

The lower floor's table was covered with a little yellow pedestal and bowl, with yellow streamers to root, and at the base two gold-en birds billed and cooed. Further along the white picket fence effect was the white table in gold, the white fleur of lot Order with the five-pointed star in green, blue, red, yellow and white, each point carrying its emblem, the broken column, the cup, the scroll and roll, the sheaf of wheat, and the crown and sceptre, and the Union Jack stood on guard.

LOVELY TEA TABLE

The tea table was a picture of spring loveliness with its snow-white cloth, centred by white mums, silvered cedar sprays, spikes of white gaspe dragons; pale princess feather; little pink and blue forget-me-nots, and fine pink baskets. At either end, the gleaming silver service. Tall pink candles in silver candelabra with little serviettes having floral scroll borders, completed a lovely setting.

The springtime theme was also carried out in the little centre-pieces of the guest tables, which were shaped like tiny garden baskets holding little green sprays of tiny white flowers and pink rosebuds. On the hearth of each reposed a tiny white dove, again reminding the guests of the Worthy Matron's year.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Pearl Johnson, Worthy Matron, and Mrs. Myrtle Gore, associate matron.

Mrs. Loela Brickman, convener, and Mrs. Freda Lalor, co-convener, assisted by Mrs. Maude Riddell, Mrs. Edna Pinder, Mrs. Robert Orser, Mrs. Ernie Reid, Mrs. Rose Bush, Mrs. Ila Clapp, Mrs. Ruth Charlton, and Mrs. Sara Morgan, had charge of the tickets.

The hostesses included Mesdames M. Shaw, E. Morgan, T. Liddle, D. Erskine, B. Clarke, all past matrons of Belleville St.

Those who presided at the silver services were Mrs. Helen Meyers, Worthy Matron of Campbellford, and Mrs. Hamilton Huff, W.M. of Picton; Mrs. Pickle Brown, W.M. of Colborne; Mrs. Verna Young, W.M. of Ameliasburg; Mrs. Vera Ingles, W.M. of Tweed; Mrs. Dorothy Tugwell, W.M. of Minaves, Belleville; Mrs. Nora MacDonald, Worthy High Priestess, Wilda Sirrine; Mrs. Irene Martin, M.G. of Rebekahs; Mrs. Margaret McKeever, District Deputy Grand Matron, and Mrs. Vera Dawson, W.M. of Napanee.

GROCERY BASKETS

The grocery baskets, convened by Mrs. Merlyn Gay, Mrs. Margaret Reynolds and Mrs. Stella Doucette were very pretty with their colorful rushings in pastel tones of yellow, mauves and pinks, and filled with canned goods, wedding materials, jams, jellies, cake mixes, and many other household necessities.

One of the finest teas of the spring season, and most successful, judging commendations to its conveners, Mrs. Dorothy Ellis and Mrs. Bobbie Lockes.

Longer Hems Will Be Seen In the Fall

LONDON (CP)—Dior of London decrees slightly longer hems for fall clothes and a rounded outline that will be tighter to give curves high on the last few collections from this house.

Those are the main notations from the Dior fall collection shown Wednesday, another sign of the return of the dress-straight silhouette. It's going to be much the same basic coat to all waisting.

Other main views slightly belled skirts, some with unpressed pleats giving the new fuller look than those of the pencil-sweep, concave line of last season.

A new trick with the straight skirts of some dior dresses is made in the use of unpressed side pleats to give extra width in increments.

The double-breasted look is everywhere, coats — mostly full and straight, a classic line—an afternoon frock in fine tweed subjugate.

Colors for day wear are polka-dotted or block, black and white tweed; grey, rose and red coat in with a splash of the familiar "Dior red," a bright orange-scarlet, and some bright leaf greens.

In the evening there's an Oriental opulence of shimmering brocades and filmy lace in gold, rose, emerald green and turquoise colors.

Help shown with the collection have a diamond brush cut, oversleeked and brilliant, others tiny fish hooters with a cone driven into at the back turning up like the eaves of a Bangkok temple.

Mr. Hackett was presented with an engraving silver compoed by Mrs. Woodcock, containing a cheque for the purchase of his clothing.

Mrs. Rooney, Miss Knox and Miss Dunne each were presented with tokens of appreciation.

The grade 8 pupils under the direction of Mrs. Sine and Mr. Kelly gave a demonstration of folk dancing after which refreshments were served by the social convenor, Mrs. Mac Smith.

Question: When a woman is married or divorced, either male or female, to a restaurant, what should she do if she's first to arrive? Inside she's late for a table and he seated, or stand in the foyer and wait until the friend arrives? — Mrs. R.S.H., Burton Manor.

Answer: When in doubt, ask the head waiter. If you as the hostess you're meeting may be on vacation, in most likely will be late. Don't be flustered immediately. If the restaurant is the type that doesn't require a reservation, then you might ask the head waiter for a table and say that you're expecting a friend. He may not seat you immediately, or he may request that you wait until your friend arrives. Some restaurants prefer to gain business in order to seat a party of two, but if you're expecting a party when it's complete.

Question: A friend is taking her two children to the theatre next month and has invited me and my daughter to join them. She is getting the tickets. Answer: Since the children are mother invited your daughter, it is to be understood that she is going as a guest and that the trip to the theatre is not Understood.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rossiter

Freedom is more than a political necessity. Without it we can never become fully human.

A human being loses his identity when he is confronted with the suffocating — something not all people are aware of — that breaks the tight chain of attentions and response, which once ves the animal.

Perhaps salivated every time the bell rang, because they were conditioned to believe that was the signal to do the chores.

Often, human beings behave that way, they are listened to conditioned not of their own choosing, to accept the standards of existing conditions.

The amount of positive personality depends upon our ability to make decisions and the kind of man we have to be selected in the art of free choice.

The neurotic person, lacking healthy personality, tends to shy away from decision-making. He seeks to blame something or someone for his difficulties — parents, associates, childhood experiences, anything — as long as he is not to blame.

It is useful to admit personal responsibility for many of our difficulties, problems? At least, truly healthy conditions develop.

We accept the need for personal decisions — and this helps mental well-being, to choose. We don't continue to sit on our hands becoming our "bad hands".

We force ourselves to take steps to overcome our own difficulties — and this, too, liberates from bondage to our problems. He who is moved to do something by himself, for himself, is on his way toward becoming himself.

One teacher reports of a mid-term examination of a small training school, who argued with great emotion against man's freedom of action. He cited tests with monkeys and assorted "scientific" experiments in order to prove his contention that man is not responsible for his actions.

He's but a puppet pulled by the strings of environment, said the manager. It turned out, however, that the man had failed consistently in many jobs because of his inability to accept responsibility. He was married to a woman he could not live with, because he refused to make decisions.

But the very best of life — anyone's — grows out of his unconscious guilt feeling about his failures. Hands he spread against freedom precisely because he felt that he had failed to be free.

All of which explains why no intelligent actor ever sent contest to compose, since he can do.

When well-intentioned clergymen, counselors, friends tell us what to do, they are not merely making up our minds — unwittingly, they are taking away our minds.

The most significant help we need is the kind which will help us grow in freedom and freedom, to choose, to decide, and to accept personal responsibility.

Worthy of Queen Victoria

by Mary Moore

Because a fox-and-cocktail party should be more or less civilized, Grandma build a fire" we had a cookout supper for ten which, happily, served triple duty. It celebrated Margie's and Bob's first wedding anniversary, it was my preview for this Victoria Day and it made the little Pet of everyone present full of glee.

The meal calls for a mastercook and a kid for Simon 10 and 100 per cent worthy of these. Victoria. I planned the menu, my own contribution but realized it would please a great many others and cooks and chickens and male chefs in Victoria Day.

MARINATED SIRLOIN STEAKS:

(To serve 10) I bought two of those extra thick and juicy strip sirloin that weigh nearly 3 lbs. each. When they were brought home of the excess fat, trimmed away I had a little over 5 lbs. of meat. With the rolling pin I pounded them on my heavy workboard until they were flattened to nearly double their original size. Then I made this marinade: One quarter cup (4 oz.) oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 cloves garlic finely sliced, 1 tea spoon rosemary, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon white pepper. I rubbed this together and poured it over the steaks. They stood over, rubbing it into the surface from this Victoria Day the steaks soak in this marinade for 5 hours, turning them every 2 or 3 hours. Sunday afternoon. Surprisingly enough, the meat having been impaled so hard, was porous and soaked it all up.

When the barbecue fire was just right — flames reduced and coals glowing — I greased my outdoor long-handled frying pan with a little steak fat and threw in the pieces of steak cut to hamburg bun size. We have members who want their steaks really rare. There people never ever see and say "That's done enough for me." I quickly dip the cut surface of a bun in the pan fat, put a sizzling piece of steak on it and hand it to forever and that quickens him for a moment. Before you can do it for more catching yourself the first are back for seconds! It's gratifying.

Try it next Monday.

CAC Plans to Institute Program to Test Goods

By EDNA HEARLEY.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Consumers, a 30,000 - member women's organization that seeks to protect, educate and represent the buying public, plans to institute a program of testing consumer goods within a year.

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Ottawa, council wife of Canada's assistant deputy finance minister, says testing will probably start with household items, drugs, power tools and other small items.

It will also require transformation of its education bulletin, mailed 10 times a year to its members, into a magazine that would contain testing information.

Approval of testing programs was given at the association's 1961 annual meeting in Toronto.

Mrs. Plumptre recently returned from a conference in Brussels of the International Offices of Consumer Unions more commonly known as testing programs and "more aware of the problems."

On her way in Brussels she visited the British Standards Institution and the Consumers' Association Limited in London.

She learned the London group started five years ago with volunteers and now has a staff of 120.

They told me if I just takes courage," Mrs. Plumptre said in an interview at the CAC's Ottawa office. It takes money, too, and a testing committee will have the job of determining how to raise it.

The association has also decided to extend membership to men and has included four on the nine - member testing committee.

Women members are Mrs. H. S. N. Carver, Mrs. R. B. Dozer, Eleanor M. Ordway, all of Ottawa; Mrs. B. W. G. Wilson, Montreal, and Helen Devereaux, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que.;

The men are James R. Matthews, Ontario Research Foundation, Toronto; E. J. Kyrrel, retired department store executive, Toronto; L. E. Bowbotham, Dominion, Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, and E. T. Watterud, National Research Council, Ottawa.

Mrs. Plumptre said a testing program could benefit the manufacturer as well as consumer. Some manufacturers in other countries had improved their products following consumer tests.

Asst. Scoutmaster Wants Badge Worn on Shoulder To Designate an Air Troop

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP) — Something new for Boy Scouts in Canada is the hope of an assistant scoutmaster here. It would be a badge to be worn on the shoulder designating an air troop.

The badge, showing an airplane encircled by the words "air troop," was designed by one of the 10 boys in the 46th Cheslewood troop here.

There are already four badges for proficiency in various things aeronautical. But Lou McPhillips' hopes for a classification a little more advanced.

The present badges are for proficiency as an air mechanic, air navigator, air apprentice and aircraft modeller.

"I'm not suggesting a change in the uniform or in the scouting manual," says the 36-year-old police constable. "I'd like to see the badge and the instruction toward earning it added to the training program. Boys still should engage in camping and all the other lessons of scouting, but this is the air age."

Provincial executive commissioner J. C. Harwood said in an interview the Boy Scout movement in Canada has no provision for such a designation although there have been air scout troops in England for 21 years and in the United States as well.

He said a committee now is sitting in Ottawa studying the scout uniform, badges and training program as a whole. He is "positive something will come out of these discussions that will lead to something like air scouts."

Mr. McPhillips, father of three and himself a licensed private pilot and glider pilot, became scoutmaster of the troop in Charleswood, in Winnipeg's west end, about 3½ months ago.

He said his troop of 12- and 13-year-olds has doubled in size since the opportunity to take part in air training was offered.

GUESTS AT RCAF

As well as the four prescribed courses, the 10 members have also been guests of the RCAF on tour of bases in Winnipeg and Gimli, Man.

The boys have been given rides in an RCAF mock trainer while the two three boys in a 30-question written test were taken on short flights by members of the Winnipeg Flying Club.

He hopes to give the boys lectures on meteorology and navigation as well as the lectures he already gives on the theory of flight and the general layout of a controller.

The RCAF had plans for taking the boys out in a high-powered rescue launch on Lake Winnipeg this summer.

BIG CATS

The South American ocelot, somewhat similar to a house cat, may reach a length of four feet.

Qualifications Required For Candidate to Run

In order to qualify as a candidate in the election June 18, a person must have 100 nomination papers signed by 25 voters in the particular constituency where he wants to run.

This is 50 more than in previous elections—only 50 names were needed under the old Canada Elections Act revised at the last session of parliament.

The change was made to discourage the "political nuisance" others who toss their hats into the ring at the last minute to get half the number of votes required to win.

The candidate's agent must take an oath that the 25 signatures are all of bona fide electors.

Generally, the rules for candidates are pretty mild. Aside from collecting the 25 names, about the toughest thing an aspiring MP has to do is put up $200. This is his election deposit, which he forfeits to the federal treasury if he fails to get half the number of votes received by the winner.

$2M LOST DEPOSITS

In the last election, March 31, 1958, there were 911 candidates and 366 of them lost their deposits, totalling $73,200.

Of course, the candidate must qualify as a voter. He must be 21 years of age on polling day; have lived in Canada on the day the election writs are issued, or, if not a Canadian citizen, be a British subject who has lived in the country for at least a year.

Members of the armed forces may run for Parliament in wartime, but the provision did not apply during the Korean War and is not operative now.

A would-be candidate would be well advised to go out and get himself endorsed by one of the major political parties. In 1958 there were 58 independent candidates and only one was elected; almost all lost their deposits.

Under a candidate gets into a contest he must abide by strict rules, especially with regard to money. He himself is not supposed to handle election funds; he must have an agent to do that.

The candidate is limited by law to $2,000 in personal expenditures during the campaign—costs such as his own hotel and travel expenses. Only the agent is to cover the agent is required to file statements of all campaign expenditures, and appendices.

If a candidate wishes to withdraw from the race he must do so not later than 8 a.m. on Thursday, Jn 21st, day before election. Even if this reads Mr. Candidate did get in could do so anytime between filing his nomination papers and 48 hours before the opening of the polls.

The purpose of the change was to prevent a candidate from "selling out" some of his opponents in the last few days before election.

Trout Fisherman's Dreams Come True in New Zealand

By J. C. Graham
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — Trout fishermen's dreams come true in New Zealand, where brown and rainbow trout grow faster, heavier and stronger than in their native habitat. Yet it is against the law to buy trout and plans for trout fish development are meeting bitter hostility.

In many parts of New Zealand average catches of trout weigh four or four pounds a fish and weights of up to 10 pounds are not unusual. Monsters weighing 20 pounds or more are occasionally caught.

The annual catch by anglers in one north island lake, Lake Taupo, is estimated at more than 200 tons of trout.

But no trout are for sale in New Zealand, nor are they served in hotels or restaurants. Commercial dealing in trout is banned by law.

IMPORTS BANNED

Even tinned trout imported from Denmark recently were withdrawn from sale on government orders as infringing the law.

The only way to enjoy a meal of trout is to catch the fish personally or to cultivate the friendship of a keen angler with surplus catches.

Fishermen maintain that any dealing in trout would lead to commercialization, and ultimately to the ruin of the sport, a major tourist attraction as well as a favorite recreation for many New Zealanders.

A proposal to establish trout and salmon farms has been put before the government but is being vigorously contested by fishing clubs and other groups.

The company concerned maintains that it wants to pioneer a valuable new export industry. Since trout in lakes and streams in New Zealand grow larger than in most countries, the company considers it could rear fish in similar advantageous conditions.

DISEASES DANGER

A spokesman for fishing clubs said commercial farming of trout would greatly increase the danger of disease affecting the country's natural fisheries. There would also, be temptations for fishermen to sell their catches.

"The idea of canning trout commercially for export strikes at the very principles on which our freshwater fisheries have been developed," said the New Zealand Herald in an editorial.

"The acclimatization of trout in New Zealand rivers and lakes has been a labor of a century, undertaken by enthusiasts so that all New Zealanders may enjoy at little expense a pastime which elsewhere costs its devotees small fortunes."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Sonya C. — Her wedding was postponed. Where does that leave me?

• • •

Jerome T. — I'm an electrician. My wife died two years ago, leaving me with three children who are now, 19, 17 and 14. The oldest, a girl, became engaged to a boy she met at college. He's 22, graduated a year ago and is a member of his father's firm. I'm quite content with the match and I was delighted when they set a date for their marriage. That enabled me to go ahead with plans to marry Sonya, a lovely widow who was a close friend of my late wife and who adores her children. We agreed to wait until after Julie's wedding.

But due to a death in the fiance's family the wedding was postponed indefinitely. This automatically holds up my marriage. I want to stick to my original bargain with my daughter. I want to see her married and settled first. Sonya, however, is getting restless.

• • •

Sonya C. — I don't believe Jerry will ever marry me. I can't let my future hang on the whim of a 19-year-old girl who can't pick another date for her wedding. I'm suspicious about Julie's delays. Either she's not sure she wants to go through with her own marriage, or she's trying to hold up her father's. While I'm very fond of all Jerry's children, I'd never let Julie lead me around by the nose the way she does her father.

Jerry has no right to think other two children to get his I'll just sit around and wait indefinitely. Our plans have been dragging on and now they depend upon a spoiled kid. Suppose she postpones her wedding for a year? She can marry a young. But we're not. That original arrangement can be dropped.

• • •

The Council: The lady's name is Sonya, Jerome, not Griselda! No patient, silent, uncomplaining poultroon, she. But her complaint, quite valid, puts you on the spot. There should be no limits, my you, to the patience of a woman, nor to the obligations of a father. Sonya disagrees. She is ready to set some limits.

As far as Sonya is concerned, she's not feeling maternal right now. She's in a committal mood and she's ready to face Julie, woman to woman; no mother-daughter stuff right now. Facing Jerome, too, she wants his answer as a man, not as Julie's dad.

The dancing ball in this three-cornered game has landed squarely in Jerry's lap. (Can a ball land squarely? Yes, if it's stuck!) Next move is his. He must look ahead to his own future. If he feels he's done all he can in Julie's behalf, he owes it to himself and the two women involved to get out of the picture. The father to press Julie and her fiance to name a new date indicates that something's wrong. If the daughter's engagement off is Jerry getting cold feet about his own marriage? Sonya suspects the answer to both is Yes, and that Jerry is just casting her out by blaming the delay on Julie's unsettled plans.

If Jerry wasn't to hold Sonya for himself, he must take a few steps, all with time limits. First, he must ascertain what's with Julie. What's really at her engagement? If it's on, a date approximation, of one must be offered. If the thing is off, well, cry on Dad's shoulder and let's see what we can do, either to patch things up, or move along to new vistas. Secondly, Jerry sets his own date with Sonya. If reasonable, it takes Julie's plans into consideration. If the latter are nebulous, Jerry's had better be clear.

But if he "wants out" himself, he should be man enough to come clean with Sonya. She can tell a bona fide reason for delay from a concocted one. Here's the score, Jerry: If you still want Sonya, and still want to wait until after your daughter is married, you'll have to take your chances that Sonya will still be around waiting you.

CHARGED

According to the witness, he had suspected that Scott provided a tipoff on a raid in Guelph in 1959.

He claimed, too, that Scott and a bank clerk in Guelph had had a money-lending operation between them — and that the clerk would steer customers to Scott.

He said his suspicions of Anderson — another previous commission witness — had been aroused after the prosecution of a case against the Rantzey Club of Niagara Falls. A St. Catharines lawyer named Fleming had accused him and Anderson of being McDermott stooges.

They asked superiors for permission to sue Fleming but later Anderson, when he asked about it, "seemed very vague and brushed it off."

ALL EXCEPT SECURE

Among others he suspected were "everybody" in the commissioner's office including the commissioner and his civilian executive officer Norman Phelps, Assistant Commissioner W. R. Kennedy, former commissioner E. V. McNeil and to general overcross on the anti-gambling squad sergeant Det. Jack Shrubb, now Peterborough chief of police.

He also expected Deputy Commissioner James Starkey, who had work as an inquiry witness denied second-hand allegations that he had taken money from the gamblers for tipoffs.

In return for a promised $300 a month — some of which was provided with Wright's own cash — the other constable had provided bits and pieces of information, the witness said.

One of these, in 1954 or 1955, was an unexplained statement that there had been instructions not to make pinball machine raids in Windsor "because there was an election on."

Another was to the effect that the McDermott-Presley club at Cooksville was not to be raided because "big shots" visiting it did not want to be disturbed.

DENIES MENTION

As read to the inquiry by commission counsel Roland F. Wilson, a portion of Scott's diary quoted Wright as saying he had heard that Fred G. Gardiner, then chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto council, had "been around" the club.

Wright denied ever mentioning Gardiner.

He said that about the end of April, 1960, he discussed McDermott, who by then was communicating directly with Scott. He had called at the time going to the OPP commissioner.

However, he had started to consider whether he should go over the commissioner's head to Attorney-General Kelso Roberts. While he was mulling it over, he was arrested in May.

He then gave a statement to the commissioner, which he complained was not introduced at his trial.

The commission counsel noted that he could have told his own story at the trial but had chosen not to testify. What he wanted," Wright said, "was a royal commission, as we have today, to have this story exposed."

First Socialist Premier, Tommy Douglas Heading New Democratic Party

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—One day in 1927, Baptist preacher Tommy Douglas was told by a church superintendent that if he ran for Parliament as a CCF candidate he would never get another church.

"You've convinced me," said Mr. Douglas at the vestry in Weyburn, Sask. "The CCF has got itself a candidate."

He ran for Parliament—and won.

And he has been winning ever since, sitting in Parliament for 10 years, then heading back to Saskatchewan to become North America's first socialist premier for the next 17 years.

Now, at 57, he is back in the federal field.

He is seeking election in Regina City as national leader of the New Democratic Party, a fledgling reformist movement founded less than a year ago on the old CCF with support from organized labor.

Thomas Clement Douglas is a party politician. He has wit, warmth, flair, flash and an uncommon appeal among common people. He was once described as a "good deed in a naughty world."

WAY WITH WORDS

He has a mammoth memory, a wonderful way with words and a fervent faith in the merits of proper social and economic planning in bring the good things of life to ordinary people.

T. C. Douglas was born in 1904 at Falkirk in the Scottish lowlands. His father was an iron moulder. The family came to Canada when Tommy was 10, returned to Scotland for the First World War, then wandered again to Canada.

Apprenticed as a printer at 14, the young Scots immigrant also took up amateur boxing and amateur theatre. Twice he won the Manitoba lightweight championship.

At 19, he was preaching in Baptist churches, earning money to return to school a year later. He graduated from Brandon College and went to the University of Chicago for post-graduate work in sociology.

He believed he could help bring heaven on earth as a preacher from the pulpit.

FAITH IN POLITICS

But the tragedy of the Depression convinced him he could do more, faster, as a politician on the public platform.

Defeated in 1934 as a provincial Farmer-Labor party candidate, he made his decision to seek federal election the following year—after that visit from one of the church elders advising him to stay out of politics.

In the House of Commons, he was accepted as one of Canada's best orators and wits, a debater with a flawless sense of timing and a delightful fund of anecdotes.

A new phase of his life began in May, 1944, when he led the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation party to power in Saskatchewan. For 11 years, he put CCF ideas to work, building a welfare state with a prairie accent.

"We are NOT giving people anything for nothing," he said. "We are simply applying the deeply - rooted practices of prairie co-operation to a new technological and diversified economy."

Before he resigned the premiership to lead the NDP, he first introduced Saskatchewan's Medical Care Insurance act, a long-held dream for a man who himself contracted bone tuberculosis. He was confined to a hospital for three years as a boy with osteomyelitis, a painful bone disease.

"The only reason I can walk today is because a doctor doing charity work became interested in my case and took it over," he told the legislature.

"There were thousands of children who were not so lucky and from that time on I have convinced myself that if I were ever given the power and authority to do so, I would try to usher in the day when in Canada no boy would be lame, no child without health services, merely because the parents could not afford to pay for it."

The fight over the medical care plan is still being fought by post-graduates.

Meanwhile, Tommy Douglas is stumping the country, waging his largest fight to put the NDP into Parliament, perhaps even into power.

With him as he electioneers across Canada is his wife Irma, whom he met while a young preacher on the prairies. They have two daughters, Shirley and Joan.

NEW GOLD MINE—The Western Deep Levels gold mine near Johannesburg, South Africa, brought into production at a cost of $84,000,000, may, in the opinion of its owners, prove to be the world's biggest with estimated ore reserves of 115,000,000 tons. One of 12 mines administered by Anglo American Corp., it will be worked as deep as 12,000 feet. (CP Photo).

Gold Mine, Potentially Biggest and Deepest in South Africa, Now Open

JOHANNESBURG (CP) — A gold mine described as potentially the biggest and deepest in the world has opened amid optimistic predictions in South Africa.

The Western Deep Levels gold mine is near Carletonville, 25 miles southwest of Johannesburg, was officially opened March 22. In the first month 110,000 tons of ore was milled, the highest maiden tonnage of any South African mine.

Brought into production at a cost of $84,000,000, the mine is estimated to have a life of 60 years during which it is expected to produce gold valued at $2,400,000,000.

H. F. Oppenheimer, chairman of Anglo American Corp. and of Western Deep Levels Ltd., said at opening ceremonies that the mine was the last major enterprise undertaken by the group initiated by his father, the late Sir Ernest Oppenheimer.

Production has started on the Venlerskorp Contact Reef at a depth of 6,000 feet. The Carbon Leader Reef will be mined at depths varying from 7,200 feet to more than 12,000.

Oppenheimer said operations on the upper level had exceeded hopes held for it.

"It, as I am confident will be the case, operations on the lower reef—the Carbon Leader—go equally well when we get to it, we shall have established one of the very great mines of the world."

Western Deep Levels is one of 12 gold mines administered by the Anglo American Corp., which also administers 12 collieries and three copper mines and is associated with De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd. in diamond drilling.

By the end of 1961 ore reserves blocked out were estimated at 1,972,000 tons. Development is expected to prove ore reserves of about 115,000,000 tons, of which 104,000,000 tons would be in the Carbon Leader.

When the mine is in full production it is expected 90,000 tons a month will be milled from the Venlerskorp Contact Reef and 120,000 from the Carbon Leader.

At that time it will employ more than 12,000 workers, including 12,000 African natives. A large new suburb will be added to Carletonville which already provides housing for another mine.

The mine is installing a ventilation system to deliver 1,300,000 cubic feet of air a minute to each shaft and there will be an underground cooling plant to keep down temperatures that range from 83 degrees at 6,000 feet to 122 at 11,000 feet.

Total hoisting capacity of two shaft systems, including ore and waste rock, will be 300,000 tons a month based on a 15 - hour day. A doubledeck cage will carry 90 men into the mine at 3,000 feet a minute.

The Ontario Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1962

HE'S OUR BOY! says Barney Hepburn (right), president of the Prince Edward-Lennox-Progressive Conservative Association as he congratulates Douglas Alkenbrack, Napanee, on nomination as riding candidate at Picton Wednesday evening. Mrs. Alkenbrack is on the left.

Mortgage Sold But Owners Did Not Know

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unfortunately for the George Bennetts, this story is true.

It started on a cold night in January, 1961, when an investment dealer stood outside their home with another man and assessed the property for a mortgage. The story may not end for months.

The investment dealer, John Scott Allen, forged a mortgage for $7,400 against the Bennett's six-room home. He sold it to Allan Kibbee Stuart, the other man, for $5,500.

In these actions the Bennetts were apparently innocent. Their home was picked at random. They had gone to the bank that day to make the last payment on the loan they used to convert their first, and legitimate, mortgage.

Stuart innocently registered his document at the land registry office six days later. This, according to a later court ruling, made the forgery a legal document.

SELLS MORTGAGE

Then this happened:

Stuart sold the mortgage five days later to Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian for $6,600.

Credit Foncier sent a letter to the Bennetts saying future mortgage payments should be made at the company's office.

The Bennetts gulped and ignored the letter.

Credit Foncier in May, launched foreclosure proceedings.

It tapes some Monday when the case, first of its kind in B.C.'s history, was temporarily settled.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan authorized Credit Foncier to foreclose on the house if the mortgage is not paid within six months, and that the Bennetts be compensated from a special fund set up under the B.C. Land Registry Act.

MORE TROUBLES

But the Bennett's troubles may not be over. George L. Murray, counsel for the attorney-general's department is considering recommending an appeal against the compensation to the Supreme Court of Canada to clear the air.

If the appeal is made, the couple will have another court battle on their hands and there will be in doubt until a decision is made.

But lawyers on both sides feel the story may have a happy ending. Solicitor-general Edward Wurden John Fox, were also platform guests.

Mayor McFarland told the delegates it was a pleasure to be nominated as candidate and although pressure of business made it impossible for him to stand, he said there was nothing he would like better than to represent the riding at Ottawa.

Mr. Bird said he too was unable to allow his name to stand for nomination. But he urged that every vote and every worker would be needed to win the riding.

"Let's send a man to Ottawa that we believe in," he pleaded.

While the ballots were being counted delegates enjoyed a musical interlude and also solos by Mr. Robert Reid, of Bellerille, with Mrs. Reid as accompanist.

Doug Alkenbrack Former Mayor of Napanee Chosen PC Candidate, First Ballot

PICTON (Staff) — Douglas Alkenbrack, former mayor of Napanee and well known lumber merchant of that town, is the Progressive Conservative candidate for the Prince Edward-Lennox riding in the June 18th election.

Mr. Alkenbrack was chosen as party standard bearer at the riding nominating convention held at the Prince Edward Collegiate at Picton last night. He won the honor over two other nominees, Clarence Milligan, riding representative in the House of Commons since 1957, and George Tustin who was a member at Ottawa for 22 years.

Mr. Alkenbrack won out on the first ballot, receiving 275 votes to gain a clear majority over the two other nominees. Mr. Tustin received 145 votes and Mr. Milligan 116.

Close to 1,000 party supporters jammed their way into the collegiate auditorium, for the convention, despite the fact there was no guest speaker scheduled for the meeting.

BY AGREEMENT

Riding Association president Barney Hepburn told the party delegates the "no speakers" policy was by agreement of the association officials and the nominees.

Two other men, Mayor Harvey J. McFarland of Picton, and James Bird, vice-principal at Picton public school, were nominated, but withdrew from the race.

With almost record breaking temperatures on the outside, the temperature of the school auditorium soared almost to the point of being unbearable as the close to 1,000 delegates and party supporters crowded in to see their favorite man nominated.

General feeling was that the contest would be a close one, with the second ballot almost assured.

But they reckoned without the snowballing Alkenbrack support which saw the 56-year-old former Napanee mayor roll up a clear majority in the first ballot. The result was a surprise even to the most dedicated Alkenbrack supporters.

ADMITS SURPRISE

Mr. Alkenbrack in his thank you speech, admitted himself that he "was surprised."

The two other nominees Mr. Tustin and Mr. Milligan moved that the nomination be unanimous, although Mr. Milligan, member in the last House, admitted that he "was disappointed."

In his plea for the support of the convention, Mr. Alkenbrack noted that no one in politics was indispensible. "Only the party is permanent," he said.

He said he was not seeking monetary gain, plaudits or prestige in offering himself as candidate.

"Victory for the party in Prince Edward - Lennox is my prime objective," he said. "Then when we win there will be other problems."

Among the problems to be solved was the sale of stockpiled canned goods in Prince Edward county canning factories. Mr. Alkenbrack said if Canada could sell wheat, it could also sell canned goods.

NEVER DULL AT OTTAWA

Mr. Milligan said his five years at Ottawa had been both strenuous and disappointing — never dull.

In the part five years he said he had gained the confidence of government officials and thus would be able to better represent the riding and serve the people.

And Mr. Tustin, riding representative in the House of Commons from 1935 to 1957, cited his experience at Ottawa and in the municipal field.

He noted that all the time he was in Ottawa he was a member of the Opposition but claimed that his riding did not suffer.

"I pat with men at Ottawa who are now your cabinet ministers and I think that this riding can be served better by a man with experience than by a back bencher.

"I will never be a back bencher," he said.

Thomas Walker introduced the platform guests who included Mayor and Mrs. Harvey J. McFarland, MLA Norris Whitney and Mrs. Whitney and Lee Grills, PC candidate for South Hastings.

Tweed Residents Will Soon Have Community Centre

TWEED (ESstaff) — It was in December of 1951 that, within minutes of over 200 children occupying the ice surface, the old Tweed Arena, built in 1927 collapsed with a whoosh, literally blowing the late Len Taylor and the last youngster, whom he was rushing to the door, right out of the exit.

For the past ten years local youngsters have had outdoor ice to skate upon when the weather permitted. This arrangement has not been too satisfactory and a number of citizens have formed a Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre building committee.

Heading up by Harold Canteen of the Lands and Forests department, the committee members have truly been putting their teeth into the project and have come up with possibilities, after the site of the old building was situated on the property of the Beaugrand.

The final selection of a site is dependent upon the results of soil tests as spaces requirements.

The committee feels that a properly building can be erected for a cost of $70,000 and, within the very near time that they have been functioning, have now accepted for $44,500 of this amount. With the support of the other citizens of the community and district behind them it is expected that the project will be in a finalized state and that actual construction can be started in September.

The building will be of concrete block construction about 200 by 80 feet. The building will contain an ice surface 180 by 80 feet. On the main ice ground floor plans provide for washrooms and dressing rooms. Above these rooms there will be a mezzanine on which a snack bar, kitchen and community hall will located. There will be three rows of seats around the ice surface.

Support so far on the project has been enthusiastic and the 25 members of the committee are looking forward to the provision of adequate indoor ice recreational facilities for both skating and curling for both young and old members of the area in the near future.

Farm Income In 1961 Fell Due to Drought

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's total farm net income in the drought year of 1961 was $1,033,700,000, lowest since 1957, the bureau of statistics said today in its regular annual preliminary estimates.

The figure was nearly 22 per cent below the revised estimate of $1,319,600,000 for 1960 and compared with the total of $1,058,300,000 in 1957, the bureau said. An advance preliminary report issued in mid-February had placed total farm net income for 1961 at $1,006,000,000.

Most of the reduction was attributed to the Prairie drought, which halves the 1961 wheat crop. Increased farm operating costs and depreciation charges also contributed.

Decreases in total farm net income were recorded for each of the Maritime provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. There was little change in Alberta. Increases ranging from just under three per cent to nearly five per cent were estimated for the remaining provinces.

De Gaulle Critics Fear He Will Move More Boldly

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President de Gaulle's press conference consisted mainly of confirming views already ascribed to him but it is significant that even this was sufficient to cause the resignation of five cabinet ministers.

The Defence Movement Republican Populaire (MRP) ministers who tabled their resignations led by Pierre Pflimlin, premier when the fourth republic collapsed in 1958, opening the way for de Gaulle's return to power.

Pflimlin and his colleagues have known for a long time that de Gaulle favors a confederation of "Fatherlands" in Europe, rather than a supranational union as was urged by the MRP leaders.

One difference now seems to be that developments in Algeria have freed de Gaulle for action in other fields and the dissenters fear he will move more boldly on the European question than he has in the past.

Although half - raising atrocities still continue in Algeria, the lines for peace have been drawn and the leader of the rebellious Secret Army Organization, former general Raoul Salan, is on trial for his life. Algeria is now unwilling to fight.

Gone was the old military argument that if the Reds took over Laos, they could drive a long and effective wedge between Thailand and South Viet Nam and crack open Cambodia in a march to the South China Sea.

The cold reality of Laos was that American military, particularly Britain and France, wouldn't back up a military defence of that little domain which borders on Communist North Viet Nam and Red China. The Southeast Asia treaty alliance lashed Anglo-French support.

The Laotian episode has shaken Thailand and has raised new questions of whether in the new 1962 Manitoba settlement was a mere resting point for the Reds in their drive to envelop all of the Indochina peninsula.

Popular Word in Capital Now Is 'Accommodation' in Respect to Laos Situation

WASHINGTON (CP) — More and more, a year ago the Kennedy administration started the world with its youthful show of determination by pledging that it never would allow the tiny jungle kingdom of Laos to be swallowed by the Communists.

The strongest words were voiced by Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson when he stated on March 23, 1961: "The United States does not intend to stand by and let Laos be gobbled up by an armed minority supported from the outside."

He uttered those words with the approval of President Kennedy who, a week earlier, said his administration is "determined to support the government and the people of Laos" in resisting this minority which prevented Laos from functioning as an independent and neutral country.

But Kennedy's early backing of the royal Laotian regime headed by Prince Boun Oum and strongman Phouni Nosavan turned to disenchantment.

SEEK COMPROMISE

The popular word in Washington now is "accommodation" by which the Kennedy advisers seek to liquidate their troubles with Moscow through some form of understanding, compromise—any kind except that of appeasement.

In top U.S. diplomatic circles, the frequent argument is that in fact there are no great bilateral issues between Moscow and Washington—trouble between the two governments springs from their interest in involvement in the third country, it Germany or Laos, Cuba or South Viet Nam.

In the present era of East-West nuclear stalemate, Kennedy has often stated he can not afford to follow the right-wing suggestion that he get tough and commit a white horse to take the military offensive. He had to think first of the security and lives of 185,000,000 Americans.

Thus there was to be an accommodation in Laos, which Washington, Britain, Australia and other countries of Canada, India and Poland supposedly would help to make it work, observed. But this commission never had any formal power in Laos and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao bowed over the Indochinese border into the north.

While the U.S. declared itself ready to strengthen the defence of the alarmed neighboring Thailand, Kennedy continued to press for a political settlement in Laos. The conclusion reached among his advisers was that Laos would be nothing more than a military base that the Laotians were too apt

Gun Waved Around Like A Paint Brush

LORDON, Ont. (CP) — Kingsmill Keeping, manager of a Beneficial Finance Company branch here, underwent three hours of examination Wednesday as the trial of two Port Colborne, Ont., men on a joint charge of armed robbery began in county court.

John Sherman and Albert Joseph Haas, both 30, are charged with the $680 holdup of the office Feb. 14.

Mr. Keeping said two men arrived with a revolver and a sawed-off shotgun entered his second-floor office in later afternoon. He said one "waved the revolver around like a paintbrush during the entire episode" and removed currency from two drawers. The other stood at the entrance.

The manager said he bent over to open a filing cabinet as ordered and the man put the revolver against his ear.

"I said to him, 'Take it easy my friend, there's no heroics around here—maybe I'll go to give you a tough time'."

Mr. Keeping said the pair man made two appearances at the heading to tell the others to hurry. Another employee, Miss Jean Lavallee, was also ordered into a back room and told: "Step out and you'll get it."

Mr. McDonald testified Haas was the man who carried the revolver. At Tuesday's preliminary hearing, Mr. Keeping testified Sherman was one of the men involved in the robbery.

The trial continues.

TO RAISE 'SHADE' TAX

ROME (AP) — Rome's sidewalk restaurants and cafes plan a one-day strike May 24 in protest against a whopping increase in the price of shade. The Italian government considers the great outdoors belongs to the state and collects a "tax on shadow"—its taxes call centers — on the awnings and umbrellas the proprietors stretch over their popular sidewalk tables. The annual tax has been 60 cents a square yard of canvas. This year the government raised it to $25 a square yard.

Establishment of Political Stability in the Congo Seen If Leaders Are Left Alone

By RENFRED BRUNEAU

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — Ki-ther ideas about the Congo are beginning to see some chance for the establishment of political stability—if only the country's leaders are left alone to find their own "African solution."

But, they say, it will take time, perhaps a couple of years.

The current series of talks, sions of national and provincial Parliaments is, in their view, all directed towards finding a way out of the present chaos.

Exchanges of views among political and tribal chiefs, going on later unofficially throughout the Congo may appear, to Congolese, like childhood, disgusted and doomed to failure.

Not so most Europeans who have spent 25 years or more in this country, studying the ways of the Congolese and learning to be patient with them.

OWN METHOD

They find there is a method in their African way of doing things that, while seeming to accomplish nothing, may eventually end up with political peace and stability.

Europeans who know the Congolese describe the current talks as "the palaver" — a French term meaning pow-wow or palaver.

Whenever a major dispute arises, the elder calls the elders to a palaver. Before long the debate becomes as angry and noisy as this series of charges, counter-charges and insults.

This may go on for days or weeks until the chief, who generally just listens and tries quietly to direct the debate towards a solution, puts a stop to the palaver and sends everybody home.

Then, after a short cooling-off period, he recalls everybody and, usually is sweetness and light, the elders agree on a solution, often, exactly the one the chief had in mind all along but did not want to impose.

"It's all quite democratic, really," said one veteran official of the Congo who sees the pattern of the traditional palaver in the current series of talks.

During recent meetings between Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Central Government and secessionist Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga, close lieutenants of both leaders were busy trading public charges of double-dealing.

Word filtered out, through UN sources, that both top negotiators argued in circles much of the time and that at one point one of Adoula's aides took his coat off and offered to step out in the alley with Tshombe. Both sides were letting off steam.

When Tshombe left for his provincial capital of Elisabethville after five weeks of apparently inconclusive talks, many observers believed he would not return for further talks. But he has been quoted as saying he will return after a holiday.

Elsewhere in The Congo, leaders of various political and tribal factions have been meeting at various levels to swap insults, argument and gyrations of violence. The Europeans generally say it fits the pattern of the traditional palaver.

The question remains: Who will say "stop", and send everybody home?

The answer, say the experts, is Joseph Kasavubu, president of The Congo.

King Kasa, as his Bakongo tribesmen call him, is staying aloof from, but not disinterested in, the palaver.

He has already begun to plant the germ of an idea for an eventual solution to the country's political disunity. He has introduced in the national Parliament a proposal for a federation, of between 12 and 36 provinces—instead of the present six—and generally along historic tribalines.

And while quietly promoting a political solution, he has called for a stiff austerity program designed to re-establish the country's economic viability. Part of the program is aimed at curbing the high living of top government figures who hold two or three jobs and collect as many salaries plus generous expense allowances.

McGILL ROCKET'S FLIGHT — Drawing shows what McGill University scientists hope to do in a research program scheduled to get under way this year: In the first stage, a Second World War cannon will be used to fire research vehicles 125 miles into the upper atmosphere from Barbados in the West Indies. After that, it's hoped that a solid fuel rocket engine can be installed in future vehicles. It would be ignited at the 125-mile level to propel the vehicle into orbit around the earth or into deep space. (CP Newsmap).

McGill University Professors Will Pave Way for School To Be Space Club Member

By KEN SMITH

MONTREAL (CP)—Have you ever seen a small boy, armed with a slingshot, firing stones in the air just to see how high they will go?

That's something like what a group of dignified McGill University professors will be doing this summer — except that, being grown men, their equipment will be a bit more sophisticated and their aims somewhat more practical.

They will be paving the way for McGill to become a member of the Space Club — an exclusive organization hitherto reserved for governments and only the richest ones at that.

The McGill group hopes, however, that by shooting projectiles into space from a giant, Second World War cannon they can lower the cost of each space shot to where comprehensive research by a private organization is feasible.

The university is reticent about talking costs, but spokesmen say it will be "drastically low" compared with the present method of getting a small rocket cone on top of a multi-million-dollar military rocket.

CANNON FROM USA

By next fall, the scientists expect to be sending vehicles 125 miles into space by firing them from their cannon. After that, they hope to send other vehicles into orbit around the earth or into deep space by installing a solid fuel rocket engine in the vehicle that would be ignited at the 125-mile level.

The gun the scientists will be using is a 16 - inch, 185 - ton monster owned from the United States Army, one of several groups in the U.S. watching the experiment with great interest.

Ordinary gunpowder will be used to propel the vehicles on their way.

The shooting will be done from a site on the southeast coast of Barbados Island in the Caribbean. Hundreds of tons of reinforced concrete are being poured to prepare the emplacement to house the cannon.

Aside from the fun of firing something way, way up, McGill foresees its experimental rocketry station as providing an opportunity for detailed research on high-altitude problems, including composition of the upper atmosphere, meteorology, radiation and re-entry.

Such experimenting now is limited to hit-and-miss opportunities granted by the much more expensive rocket facilities.

The project, under the direction of Dean D. L. Mordell of McGill's engineering faculty, is the pet brainchild of Dr. Gerald V. Bull, a 34-year-old engineering professor who admits he is intrigued by "the highly imaginative fringe areas" of research.

He has been pushing the idea for more than seven years, but it was not until he joined the McGill staff last June that he received any solid encouragement and support.

A native of North Bay, Ont., who graduated from high school when he was only 14, Dr. Bull was snapped up by the government to work on guided missiles in 1950 after getting his doctorate in aerophysics at the University of Toronto.

In 1958, and 30 years old, he was supervising the aerophysics wing at the Canadian Armament Research and Development Establishment at Valcartier, Que.

The establishment had been working on missile development. Hampered by the lack of supersonic wind tunnel facilities in which they could try their ideas, scientists devised a method of shooting projectiles from guns.

IDEA IS OLD

They refined the technique to such a degree that they were able to fire missiles over their test range at speeds of up to 10,000 miles an hour. Models of the famous Bell X - 1 rocket plane were fired down the range.

Dr. Bull reasoned that if projectiles could be fired down a test range from a gun, there was no reason why they couldn't be shot into the air and, eventually, into space.

Using the gun to lift the projectile out of the drag of the dense lower air and beyond the heaviest pull of gravity, he decided, it should be possible to use a small, simple rocket engine to send it the rest of the way into space.

Dean Mordell says there is nothing very revolutionary in McGill's approach to space.

"Ballistically speaking, we're not doing anything that isn't 40 years old," he says. "It's a good old engineering principle that we're using in a new way."

Even Big Bertha, the famous gun used by Germany to shell Paris during the First World War, could have pushed a projectile 20 miles into the air, Dean Mordell says.

The initial expense of the project has been put up by McGill. Spokesmen admit they hope that, if the project succeeds, further funds will come from various interested parties, including governments.

LARK again beats all other cars in Shell "4000" Rally

FIRST OVERALL AND FIRST IN CLASS BOTH 1962 AND 1961

A Studebaker Lark driven by John Jones and Lou Lalonde of Toronto came FIRST over all cars in the gruelling 4,126 mile Shell Car Rally. Only LARK has won this vicious test of endurance two years in a row.

Competing against cars representing the major manufacturers in the world, the handsome Lark once again proved its reliability. Other cars faltered and broke up on rough, rutted roads. Too fragile suspension systems gave up—too little road clearance created havoc, too tiny engines balked and died. The '62 Lark excelled on, eagerly grappling with adverse road conditions and terrible weather. The Lark swept across the prairies, soared over mountain ranges, mastered speed trials with ease and matched the driver's commands with race car handling. For the second year in a row the '62 Lark has won, beating all comers in the world's longest, most gruelling rally.

What LARK'S Victory Means to YOU

It means you can be sure the Lark is everything it claimed to be . . . fast, dependable, economical, comfortable, sure-footed. Other manufacturers make these claims. Lark proves them!

The features that have proved Lark the unbeatable, long distance Rally champion are the very features you want in your everyday car. A rugged, powerful engine, superb handling, sensible road clearance, positive braking, amazing economy and more interior room and comfort than any other domestic, family car.

Go to your Studebaker Dealer now. Drive the car that has decisively beaten all other makes and models. Buy a Lark and be assured your car will be the same as the one that won the Rally, won the "Car of the Year" Award, and is winning thousands of new friends and admirers across Canada.

Election Officials to Go Out of Their Way to See Voters' Lists Are Complete

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal election officials will go out of their way to see voters' lists are complete for the general election June 18.

Anyone who may have been left off the list, and who wants to get on, can be paid a private visit by an election worker. Formerly, the first move was to put on a public notice.

The change results from an amendment to the Canada Elections Act, one of a number approved by the 1960 session of Parliament.

Under the new system urban constituencies are broken down into revisal districts, generally comprising 15 polling divisions. Then revising agents are named for each district, one nominated by the party that won the seat at the last election, the other by the runner-up party.

OFFICES DESCRIBED

Between the 34th and 18th days before election day—May 31-June 3—the revising officer holds court—the applications brought before him by the revising agents. The officer has a quasi-judicial status, being the agent of the courts, somewhat like a magistrate at that district.

If the officer is satisfied that the person in question is entitled to a vote, he puts his name. If he is not satisfied, he must send the person a registered letter stating the reason. On the 12th day before the election—June 5 — the revising officer hears final appeals from those who failed to get on the list.

Under the old formula, there was one revisal district, as a general rule, for every 25 urban polling divisions. Anyone wishing to have his name put on the election rollsappeared in person before the revising officer, though agents, a practice stanbles dictated he could submit an application through a personal agent.

SERVICE IS FREE

All this will still be possible; what is new is the free provision of agents by the electoral office itself.

"We hope that with this system the revisal agents, a greater service will be rendered the electors in getting their names on the list," an official here. "We think we can reduce the number of names omitted."

There is no change as regards the rural constituencies where an enumerator appointed by the returning officer hears applications from enlisted persons on the 18th day before the polling day.

In rural constituencies the "open list" or voucher system is still in effect. Under it a person whose name is missing vouches—signs—simply by having a neighbor who is listed vouch for him.

Albury

ALBURY — Mrs. Cora Crouter has returned to her home after spending the winter with Miss Audrey Bridgman.

This week: A storm that shook the earth, a new atmosphere, an old enemy, and a satellite's swoodle.

STORMY WEATHER

The earth was shaken by a storm of thy earth-thrower June 4 of last year, and a Columbia University scientist says the storm was caused by bad sea weather off the coast of Africa.

Technically sensitive seismographs at Columbia's Lamont Geological Observatory picked up the seismic waves, Sacks said they were the most violent the world recorded them too.

Dr. Jack H. Oliver says a favored guess as to what caused the earth tremors was a violent storm that lashed the west central coast of Africa in the South Atlantic.

Only by coincidence the Columbia University research vessel, Vema, was in the storm area at the time. The storm tore a rudder away and smashed it against the Vema's stern thrusts, Dr. Oliver said that in some cases earlier waves striking the coast of the United States had caused similar tremors recorded as far inland as St. Louis.

MORE STORM WEATHER

The U.S. weather bureau is at it again, taking a closer look at tornadoes, squalls and severe, local storms.

This is the second season the weather bureau has made a special effort with data from ground observing stations and special planes, to follow storm movements across sections of the United States.

Coming up in the next few weeks—in the hottest part of the tornado season. The closer look includes surveillance by planes and ground stations will allow weather scientists to obtain the direction and velocity picked up the seismic waves, Sacks said they were the most violent the world recorded them too.

Other stations over the world recorded them too.

WESTERN CROCODILE

The University of Oregon scientists were scouting some fossil beds in north central Oregon to chart layers to seek visiting scientists. Then they found it, a group of bones and teeth in rock that had once been clay.

They identified it as the skull and lower jaw of a prehistoric crocodile estimated between 45 and 60 million years old.

Regular Role in TV Series No Plum for a Performer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A regular role in a television series, however attractive, is no plum for a performer who intends to spend his working day in the theatre.

That is the conviction of a tall, red-haired actress named Jeanne Cooper, who as a freelance has performed in more than 200 different television roles and currently is a candidate for an Emmy award for her performance in an episode of ABC's Ben Casey.

"That is particularly true for a woman," Miss Cooper said. "Money can't compensate for experience when you are young. Maybe you are going to live to reach 60, the lines will start to show—and after that it is shabby treat ments."

"You play one corner over and over," she said. "This is bad for the development of an actor—the only way to make native ability and talen grow is by stretching and exercising it.

"But even more devastating, the meaty roles are those which are given to the free-lance performers. The regulars get so bored with their week-in-week-out characters. If a good bit comes along they try to move into it, the director shakes his head and says, 'We're good—but we're not in your character.' Fade in (or Perry, or Ben or Flint) would never do that."

Jeanne says she makes more money as a free-lance performer than she would in a steady part. In addition, she can accept motion pictures roles, almost impossible for series actors, and while in New York this week is looking into some Broadway projects for next season.

Leafs Nip Jets 3-2, Suns Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

High-scoring innings are getting to be a regular routine with Jacksonville Suns.

The Suns exploded for six runs in the second inning Wednesday night and then went on to whip Syracuse Chiefs 7-2 to maintain their lead in the International baseball League.

That was the third straight game in which the Suns had scored at least six runs in one inning.

The Suns belted six hits for their big inning at Syracuse. It was Jacksonville's fifth straight victory over the Chiefs. Although four Syracuse pitchers were rapped for 11 hits, Charley Rabe, who was the victim of the second-inning uprising, suffered the loss.

Joe Schaffernoth threw a seven-hitter at the Chiefs to pitched up the win.

KEN WINGS KEEP UP

In other games, Rochester Red Wings kept pace with Jacksonville by defeating Atlanta Crackers 7-4; Toronto Maple Leafs edged Columbus Jets 3-2 and Buffalo Bisons took a 4-2 decision from Richmond Virginians.

Ron Negray pitched a six-hitter to lead the Leafs. He struck out seven and walked two in evening his record at two wins and two losers.

The Jets took a 1-0 lead in the fifth but single runs in the seventh and eighth innings gave the Leafs the win. Tom Sisk was the loser.

The Leafs tied the score in the second inning on a walk and Sparky Anderson's double, then pushed across the winning run in the eighth when Rocky Nelson stole a second and rode home on Steve Demeter's double to left.

MAY REJOIN ARGOS

TORONTO (CP) — Offensive end Bill Stribling, who didn't play in 1961 after the Argonauts balked at his contract demands, is reported close to signing on rejoining the Eastern Football Conference club this season. Argonaut manager Ken Brown says Stribling has indicated he is prepared to accept more reasonable terms. Stribling came to the Argos originally as a free agent following a layoff of two years with Philadelphia Eagles of the National League.

Flyers Edge Rollins 9-8

Belleville Rolling Constructon Juniors, making their first start against senior softball competition, pushed the RCAF to the extra last night before dropping a 9-8 decision in Trenton.

The game was an exhibition tilt between the two Belleville and District league teams.

Rollins' coach Harold Reid said this morning that he was very pleased with his young club's showing against the seasoned RCAF squad.

The Juniors will practice at the Fairgrounds Sunday morning at 10.30 and open the regular league schedule Monday evening against Joyce Real Estate. That game is slated for 6.30 at the Fairgrounds.

Sex Is Rearing Saucy Head in British Films

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Sex is rearing its saucy head in British films. Even Auntie Aga will have to stick to pantomime.

Things used to be genteel British movie-makers confined themselves to drawing room dramas, the stiff upper lip, the comic understatement, heroic battle scenes. Women were twin sets, tweeds and sensible shoes.

Sexy movies? That was for the naughty French and Italians, specialists in continental debauchery.

Well, the continentals can move over and make way for a new Anglo-Saxon slap and tickle." British films are going sexy. Not so long ago they made a movie called Room at the Top that brought sex out into the open — and created standing room-only crowds—even though they had to import Simone Signoret from France to make the straying heroine seem convincing.

Now there's no holding them. They've made a film called A Kind of Loving, based on the book by Yorkshireman Stan Barstow, that deals frankly with young love against realistic backgrounds, the pubs, shops and smoky settings of the Midlands, known to some as the "stripes-and-pubs belt."

SCENES SIZZLE

This time the girl is a lass, a 20-year old Lancashire actress June Ritchie, and her lover is British actor Alan Bates. Some of their scenes sizzle.

"Sex, it seems, is really here to stay," says The Daily Mail, and The Daily Mirror agrees that the film's "sutiny" new approach must make it the movie of the year. The Daily Mail critic, Quentin Crewe, further comments:

"We are spared no details. Details which a short time ago would have been unthinkable. Yet this is a story which is as fresh and clean as shaking hands."

In the same week as A Kind of Loving, British audiences had a chance to see comedian Peter Sellers in Waltz of the Toreadors, in which the camera also had freedom to roam. But this time the girl is French actress Dany Robin and the film, after Lolita, seems a bit tame to France's Jean Anouilh.

Try, for instance, the week also saw the first British showing of the french film Les Liaisons Dangereuses, starring the late Gerard Philipe. Produced by Roger Vadim, whose ex-wife Annette Stroyberg has a key role, the movie was considered so shocking that the French wouldn't let it be shown outside their country.

Now, under pressure from Philipe's family who need the money they have changed their minds. But the critics say the French film seems pretty tame alongside A Kind of Loving.

Billie Dove Will Return To Movies After 30 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I had seen some of the other girls try to hang onto their careers after they had started to slide. I vowed that would never happen to me. So when I got married, it was very definite. I quit."

This was Billie Dove explaining why she ended her movie career at the height of her stardom almost 30 years ago. One of the screen's greatest beauties, she married Robert Kenaston and never returned to films —until now.

Billie Dove was Douglas Fairbanks' leading lady in The Black Pirate, and she starred in such films as The Yellow Lily, American Beauty, The Heart of a Follies Girl and The Stolen Bride.

The story of her return to films is a curious tale, but she is willing to swear it is true.

She entered a contest and won a movie role.

"I swear that is the way it happened," she said at Columbia Studios. "It's almost too unbelievable to be anything but true."

Last year Columbia conducted a talent contest to bring Gidget Goes Hawaiian. The prize was to be a trip to Hawaii to appear in the new film. Diamond Head.

WINS CONTEST

Miss Dove, whose verse has appeared in national magazines, entered the contest and thought no more about it. One day she was talking to a friend at the Kenastons' Palm Springs house. The friend asked if she ever thought about returning to films.

"Oh, I suppose I might if there were something that interested me," Miss Dove remarked. "I never announced that I was retiring because I think that actors who do so and then return later look rather silly.

"But honestly, going back is one decision I hope I never have to make."

A few minutes later, her mother entered with a letter from Columbia. Miss Dove looked at it and exclaimed: "Oh, dear, it looks as if I'll have to make that decision!"

The Kenastons took the trip to Hawaii, but the rest of the story before that is typical. She may be the only case of an actress cutting down her own part. Columbia wanted her to play a role, but she declined for fear it would be too small. "I'm just enough to keep it honest."

Billie Dove Offers For Club Said Good

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific National Exhibition received four bids for the Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks, Fair Guy committee chairman Tom Steeves announced Wednesday three of them are "very, very good."

But he did not say how much they were for nor how close they were to the $150,000 minimum price set by the PNE for the money-losing club that finished in the cellar last season.

The committee postponed making a recommendation to the board of directors pending clarification of the offers. An extraordinary meeting of the board will be held Thursday to hear the committee's recommendation.

The offers have come from former mayor Fred Hume, former owner of the defunct New Westminster Royals of the WHL, lumber executive Peter Bentley and vending machine broker Harry Ornest. Hume is supported by New York financiers of the National League, Bentley by Montreal Canadiens and Ornest by Toronto Maple Leafs. The fourth offer is described as a token on by a newspaper sports writer.

Secret Yacht A Beauty

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) Th em ystery American Cup Competition was seen by reporters for the first time Wednesday. If the yacht is as fast as she is beautiful, she will be a hard boat to beat.

Twenty workmen are finishing painting of the sleek mahogany hull of the yet-unnamed yacht. It is scheduled now for launching Saturday midnight.

The concept of the 12-metre sloop is one of a wider, lighter design. It was discussed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Tuesday night by co-skipper Don McNamara at a seminar of the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts.

The program included liberal uses of slides to show design and construction along with talks by designer Ted Hood, builder E. Selman Graves and E. Rose Anderson, head of the syndicate which owns the craft.

The yacht, built in secrecy, has a 13-foot beam—a foot wider than Australian challenger Gretel and more than 1½ feet wider than the other existing U.S. yachts that will compete in the American Cup trials.

The America's Cup races are to start off Newport, R.I., Sept. 15.

The nine-team Canadian Football League this year should have its greatest season at the box-office.

That was the confident prediction made after a meeting of the teams' general managers in Toronto earlier this month.

Professional football is spending itself into bankruptcy trying to keep up with the Joneses" and "pretty soon I expect the dam to break, and we'll all drown." The author of this item said it was owner-Harry Wismer of New York Titans of the American Football League.

"More fans watched National Football League games both in the parks and on television in 1961 than ever before, but by no means have we reached our potential." So says NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

All of this is familiar talk.

It was first heard about 10 years ago when go-for-broke Canadian teams shopped for players in the U.S. and sparked a player war with the NFL. It passed over with no one really hurt although player salaries took a big hop both in Canada and the U.S.

The AFL entered the picture in 1960, loaded with money and ambition.

It survived its first season with all eight clubs intact, but at a cost of about $3,000,000 to a band of young men who have the money. The millionaire club owners said it was a price they expected to pay to try to break the monopoly held by the rich and well-established rival NFL.

The company soaked another deficit in 1961 although figures were not made public.

Attendances were down in many Canadian parks last year despite introduction of a partial East - West interlocking schedule. The general managers didn't spell out, at least for public consumption, how they figure on 1962 being a bonanza year particularly with the cost of players still high and travelling and other costs going up year after year.

The NFL certainly is in the best financial shape of the three pro leagues.

Attendance hit an all - time high of 2,805,159 in 1961 with an average crowd of 40,674 at each of 69 regular-season games.

"From 1953 to 1958, Los Angeles was very successful with big crowds of 70,000 and 75,000 accounting for a good share of our attendance," Rozelle said. "Although the Rams were not shifting their biggest stadium in the league is full capacity our attendance still went up. That is a healthy trend."

It sure is and the CFL and AFL have a long way to go just to break even on a year's operations.

'United' Reaches Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Sixteen members of the Sheffield United soccer team arrived in Toronto Wednesday and found most of the members of the Ontario all-stars team they are slated to play Friday are old friends.

The visitors recognized such names as Jim Brown, goalkeeper for Kilmarnock, Willie Muirhead, formerly with Hibernian, and Davie Caldwell, of Morton.

On the team's current tour this side of the Atlantic it has won both games, defeating Philadelphia 4-1 Saturday and a German-American team 3-0 in New York Sunday.

LEAFS LOSE CATCHER

TORONTO (CP) — Catcher Pete Daley, on option to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League from Washington Senators, has been transferred to Raleigh in the North Carolina League, the Leafs announced Wednesday. Daley was third catcher on the Leafs' roster. He played 73 games with Washington last year.

Mystery Car at Mosport

TORONTO (CP) — Mystery cars will hold the spotlight Saturday when the sports car racing season officially opens at Mosport Park 60 miles east of here.

The sponsoring British Empire Motor Club said Wednesday night two new cars, one from Toronto and one from Montreal, are complete mysteries, except for the fact that they've entered in the 10-race card.

The first new racer is entered by Dave Greenblatt of Montreal, who will also drive a modified Jaguar XKE. Greenblatt said the car is similar to the Italian Birdcage Maserati but has a 6,000 c.c. engine.

The second car, entered by Dan Shaw of Toronto, is billed as a Cadillac Mark V. Only two of these cars were built—one is now owned by a Montreal driver and the other was demolished by Shaw in a race last year.

Favored to win the major races were Francis Bradley, driving the Lotus 19 in which Peter Ryan won the Canadian Grand Prix last September, and reigning Canadian champion Ludwig Heimrath in the rugged Porsche RS60. Both are from Toronto.

Canadian Forced Out Of Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A bird crashed into the goggles of rookie Ed Kostenuk Wednesday, ending his hope of being the first Canadian in the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race since the Second World War.

The 23 - year - old Victoria, B.C., driver definitely is out of the race, said Dr. Thomas A. Hanna, speedway medical director.

Dr. Hanna said the plastic goggle lens was smashed against Kostenuk's left eye, scratching the cornea and causing some bleeding around the iris. He also had an enormous "black eye."

Kostenuk was on a practice run in the Leader Special, which Rodger Ward drove to third place in last year's race. He did not lose control of the car and drove over a mile to the pits where he was given emergency treatment, and then taken to an eye specialist.

BIRD IN THE EYE — Rookie driver Ed. Kostenuk of Victoria, B.C., ruefully checks in the mirror after a doctor patched up his eye. Truck by a bird while he was making a practice run at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The doctor said the injury ended Kostenuk's chances of competing in the 500-mile race May 30. Kostenuk didn't know what hit him until he managed to drive his car into the pits and mechanics found feathers in his goggles. (AP Wirephoto).

WIDE GUINEAS

DUBLIN (AP)—Arctic Storm a 20-to-1 chance, won the Irish 2,000 Guineas Wednesday. The American-owned sabring, 5-to-4 favorite, failed to show and will probably lose his place as joint second favorite for the Epsom Derby. Arctic Storm finished the mile 1¼ lengths ahead of Captain Cuttle, who started at 25-to-1. Catchpole was third.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An identified group will appear before the Ontario Racing Commission in Toronto Thursday to make overtures for the opening of a harness racing track in the Windsor area.

Magistrate Tupper Bigelow, commission chairman, confirmed that the group would be heard but refused to identify the principals involved. The hearing will be closed.

The proposal is understood to involve a $5,000,000 sports complex in suburban Oldaway which would provide a track and grandstand for harness racing and possibly curling and bowling facilities.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lindsay Fraser of Forest, who says he is only 74 although others say he is older, drove Attorney General C to victory in the sixth race at Western Fair Raceway Wednesday night.

The veteran sulky racer has confined his driving to jogging horses of his stable in workouts recently. However, he took over when his son Wick was sent down for three days.

Attorney General C, a seven-year-old gelding owned by Lindsay, returned $31.20 for a $2 bet. El Flash was second and Flash Hat third. Time for the mile was 2:10.2, fast for D class pacers.

A daily double of $192.80 was produced when Spitfire Grattan won the first and Brian Chips the second.

Britain Adopts Ring Rule

LONDON' (AP)—Britain came into the rest of the world Wednesday and forbad boxers to hit when breaking out of a clinch.

The British Boxing Board of Control also ruled that Britons in the future will be able to fight for championships at 20 years of age instead of waiting until they are 21.

Most important of a number of major BBBC rule changes was that a boxer now is liable to disqualification for "failing to break when ordered, or for striking or attempting to strike an opponent on the break."

—TO DEFEND TITLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Ortiz will defend his newly-won lightweight championship this summer against either Flash Elorde of the Philippines or Teruo Kosaka of Japan—and possibly both, it was announced Wednesday. The 135-pound king is considering offers of $60,000 each for the fights, in Manila or Tokyo.

The favorite with the crowd of $4.60, he received a rousing reception as he scampered through the stretch to defeat eight other three-year-olds. He paid $6.10 to win as he ran one mile in 1.39 3-5.

First Electramatic Drive in Outboards

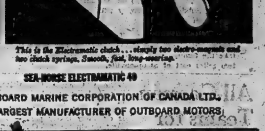
The invention of Electramatic Drive makes the Johnson V-75 and 40 Sea-Horse the most convenient-to-drive-outboards you can buy.

A single, foolproof lever controls the throttle and electrically engages the clutch. The pictures below show how the lever and clutch work. Push the lever forward to go ahead, back for reverse. The single-lever makes it impossible to move the wrong lever or race the motor in neutral. The clutch has two electromagnets. One for forward, the other for reverse. As you move the single lever forward an electric contact is made. Instantly the clutch is activated. Move it back to neutral, and instantly the clutch cuts out. When you move the lever backwards, the other electro-magnet cuts in and back you go.

Will the electric clutch wear out? Hardly. Since electromagnets have no moving parts, wear is virtually eliminated. And the electric clutch action is smooth, instant and totally silent.



Electramatic Drive is available on both the 75-hp V-75 (illustrated) and the Sea-Horse 40. Your Johnson Dealer can show you which of these powerful Sea-Horses offers the measure of power, dependability and economy you want. See him now.

Your Johnson dealer also carries a complete line of Sea-Horse accessories, including generator kits, power-tilt kits, radio-noise-suppression kits and propellers. With almost a thousand dealers across Canada, service is never a problem when you own a Johnson.

SEA-HORSE ELECTRAMATIC V-75

This is the Electramatic clutch . . . simply two electro-magnets and two clutch springs. Smooth, fast, long-wearing.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Most Haystack Muldoon!

The conference with the All-Nations Council will shortly fix the 200 pounds of John Pillbilly Muldoon in the wrestling ring for one tomorrow night and the Paddys and Arkansas travellers should be out in force.

HAYSTACK MULDOON

The scion of the mountain is a bad customer, Haystack Muldoon may get his "mojo" working from this resemblance to the bear-like Indian of the Ozarks, coupled with there the similarity ends.

I don't think Lu Muldoon has ever been bothered by the cleanness of Killarney's lakes, or gumboiled over the green and dells of the famous Irish countryside, for his home address is Hope, Arkansas.

Haystack was born with pounds and pounds of muscle, he is called a big, jolly man, and everybody he meets is "Freighter." He is a good fellow and will stop to rest talking with them on the street.

In fact Haystack often visits hospital where sick kiddies enjoy his whimsies. He attends boys' clubs meetings and other types of youth organizations.

But Muldoon is not exactly the type you would ask for dinner unless you have a larger stomach than a cook's bowels lagging camp. Haystack is the greatest groceries shoveler since Paul Bunyan.

He tips the scales between 475 and 500 pounds depending on the state of his appetite of the day. His personal grocery bill is $30 a day.

Let Haystack loose in the chicken run for a week and there would be nothing but feathers and cock's combs.

Put a dozen eggs, two pounds of bacon, a pound of French fries, two quarts of Java and 36 slices of toast in front of Muldoon for breakfast and he will be satisfied.

Two whole chickens, three pounds of potatoes, four dozen of corn, a giant salad and a large bowl of soup separate the Muldoon hazards at lunch time.

But you ain't heard nuthin yet!

Dinner is the Haystack's best meal. He will intake a three-and-one-half-pound steak after making three bowls of soup disappear as an appetizer. He adds a bread, a pound of butter to the steak course and for dessert two whole pies disappear down the Haystack throat.

Is Muldoon live as a farm and raises hogs and mules. When entering the ring he wears a mule shoe on a long chain around his neck. He carries a heavy "Treasure bag." No one knows what it contains, but stay clear if he swings it.

He wears baggy overalls, a straw hat and a red bandanna. He can hop, skip and jump with the best of them. He makes nevermore George Koverly Friday night.

The main bout sees the Hamilton wrecking crew, the Tobey Brothers, tangle with the classy combination of the Hawaiian wrastegal Sam Steamboat and the popular Billy "Red" Lyons. This is one for the books.

KARTING

Spring is here and so is the popular go-karting. The Shannonville Parkland Speedway is all set for the holiday weekend and the karts will be available for rent by young and old.

Scout car specialist Jerry Beatty will be acting manager over the weekend and Jerry has the place jumping with activity. The paved guarded course will be open on Saturday, Sunday and Monday with a bonus surprise for karters each day.

There is no charge. There are swings for the tiddlers, fireplaces and picnic areas. A fine place to take the family. The Parkland is on Highway No. 2, two miles east of Shannonville.

Giants Win Another

By MIKE RATHEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Giant Musial got the tone for the Cardinals' slaughter of Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday. Musial got the tone that counted.

After that, the story of another victory for the Giants, the champion Giants, who continued their thrilling run over all National League opponents Wednesday by whipping St. Louis Cardinals 12 to 6 in their 20th game.

While the Cards were drooping their heads, the Giants were piling their clubs defeat to 12 games. Musial stepped up to the plate in the ninth inning for a single in the sixth inning for the elusive hit that, like his win, found Red Barrett for the most hits in National League history, 3 for 3.

The 42-year-old left-handed swinger had previously set two league records, one that still was seven runs scored and games played in which he batted above .400 ML records and 19 major league marks.

Kenna's key hit came in for the Giants. The former American League batting king, who battled only .265 last year in his first season with the Frisco Giants, responded to a league-leading .380 with the single that drove in Ed Bailey with the decisive run in the seventh.

Orlando Cepeda then applied the finisher with a three-run homer, his 10th, as the Giants trimmed for five runs. Do what it up. The triumph kept San Francisco's all-time record intact in the unexcelled Los Angeles Dodgers, who won their seventh in succession, 4 to 3, over Boston Colts.

Chesterfield's defending champion Reds took over third place, 6½ games back, by slipping Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, for their sixth straight victory. Al McBean was the winning hurler, combined four-a-five-hitter in Pittsburgh Pirates' 6-0 shutout of Milwaukee Braves. New York Mets beat Chicago Cubs 5-3 in 11 innings.

The Cards got single runs off Juan Marichal (7-3) in the first and sixth and then slammed the door thereafter. The Giants tied it in the sixth when Reposki singled and Felipe Alou homered, then came up with five in the seventh. The victory was Marichal's sixth in succession to be boasting the majors' first seven-game winner. Lindy McDaniel (4-6) was the loser.

WALES MAKE RUNS

The Dodgers stole five bases and converted seven walks into runs to beat the Colts. Maury Wills scored one of two runs in the first on a wild pitch, then came across with the run that proved to be the winner in the third when he singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Wally Moon's single. Joe Moeller (3-2), who got it with another single relief from Ed Roebuck, Dick Farrell (3-3) lost it.

Willie Mays drove in after a walk and Eddie Kasko's single knocked in the clincher for the Giants' seventh win. Five pitchers, including Ford, made it five losses in a row for the Phils. Elston Howard and Roy Sievers' homers for the Phils, Sievers' being the 300th of his career. Sullivan (0-2) was charged with the setback.

McBean (5-4) gave up only four hits in 5⅓ innings but was forced to leave when he hurt his pitching elbow. The Pirates pulled away with five runs in the fourth on singles by Bill Mazeroski and Roberto Clemente, a wild pitch by Dick Stuart, triples by McBean and Bill Virdon, and a homer by Smoky Burgess. The loser was Bob Hendley (3-3).

Preakness Tough Nut To Crack

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE (AP)—The sun hasn't set on Sunrise County.

The dizzy-do colt, who was disqualified in both the Flamingo and the Wood Memorial for interference, still is an important factor in the $150,000-added Preakness Saturday at Old Pimlico.

Trainer Tommy Kelly will attest to this.

Two weeks ago Sunrise County was one of the top contenders for the Kentucky Derby. When Sir Gaylord bowed out with an injury the day before the Derby, Ridan became the favorite at $1.10 to $1, and Sunrise County was next at $2.80 to $1. Decidedly, of course, with Ridan third, and Sunrise County fifth.

Eleven long-odds-ons are expected to start in the 86th Preakness, with George A. Pope Jr.'s Dr. Fred's Sir, Mrs. Woody Jolley's Ridan, and J. George D. Widener's Jaipur the three big colts to reckon with.

WILL HE BEST TEST

"This is going to be the best three-year-old race for three months," said Kelly, a 63-year-old trainer who just missed in the Preakness last year with Globemaster.

With Globemaster setting the pace and leading throughout, Kelly almost was positive of the Derby winner's share. An eighth of a mile from the end, Globe was six to four lengths. Then Carry Back went into top gear, and Kelly's hopes were given by three-quarters of a length.

"After that one, I'm not counting any chickens around these parts before hatching," said Kelly.

Kelly admits the Preakness will be tough to crack for any horse, let alone by Sunrise County, owned by Mrs. Harold Martin of Locust, N.J.

"To make it more tougher, they've been mixed in a couple of fresh horses like Jaipur and that fast grass horse, Vinnie Ridge, who set a Laurel track record."

Cardinals Bid for Cub Star

NEW YORK (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals, ready to stand pat on their field help because of an injury to Minnie Minoso, may make a deal with Chicago Cubs for George Altman, hard - hitting outfielder, it was learned today.

It is believed the Cardinals two years ago, and outfielder Charlie James for the left-handed - hitting Altman, a first-year Altman hit .303, with 37 home runs and 94 runs batted in. He also led the league in triples with 12.

This season, he is hitting .284, with five home runs and 14 runs batted in.

Brogio is 1-0 this year.

Minoso fractured his left hand and forearm when he crashed into the wall in St. Louis last week. He has been placed on the disabled list and will be out at least six weeks. James has been filling in for him.

At St. Louis, Dr. I'C. Middleman said Wednesday the 25-year-old Cuban appears to be out of danger.

Man Sad, Tied Record, Lost Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Stan Musial can't get excited about tying Honus Wagner as the National League's leading hit producer of all time, but The Man figures he's at least struck a blow for modern youth.

"Some of us younger generation guys are showing we have just as good players as some of those old timers," he reflected after swatting a three - run homer Wednesday night to help beat the San Francisco Giants 7-2.

"Look at Kenny Boyer, Wynn and Spahn, Feller and Dihigo and Satchel Paige," he said. "These guys all played 20 years or close to it, and they had good averages or won 300 games or something else and were great."

Musial's own latest step in the path of greatness and record keeping in 1961 with a double off Jim Robbin of the old Boston Braves in St. Louis.

The record-tying hit was a floor to right-centre off Juan Marichal of San Francisco Giants in the sixth inning off a low fast ball that Marichal wanted to keep away from the musical power.

Musial was happy about the hit, but was no picture of joy as he reclined on a rubbing table. "I don't get as much fun out of it when I don't win," he explained. The Cardinals had lost 7-6.

FIGHT DATE SET

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Henry Hall, Detroit, fourth-rated middleweight, will fight ex - European middleweight champion Colin (Cowboy) McCormack in Glasgow June 14. Scouting reporter Peter Kessel said Wednesday. He said the winner would meet NBA champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, at a place and date yet to be decided.

Associated Press Sports Writer

In the baseball-as-they-used-to-play-it corner of the American League, where the hottest pitcher of the moment is a 40-to-1 football rookie with the physique of an ice box, it's —Dave Stenhouse 28, of Washington Senators.

The Shrander, who waited eight seasons before his first big league start came along only days ago, pitched impressively again Wednesday night with a four-hitter that stopped the Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Washington's last win was only seven games and the unbeaten Stenhouse has accounted for three in his starting assignments. The stocky New Englander was touched for an unearned run by the Wallz Sox in the first inning but checked them the rest of the way and finished with a flourish, fanning the dangerous Al Smith for the final out with the bases loaded.

Meanwhile, Cleveland Indians punished their hosts and for overcoming Kansas City Athletics 10-9 on John Romano's two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth. New York Yankees and Minnesota Twins stayed a half - game behind with victories. The Yankees rallying for a 9-8 decision over Boston Red Sox and the Twins clubbing Detroit Tigers 8-4. Los Angeles Angels stopped Baltimore Orioles 5-1 behind the neat pitching of Ken McBride. Jack Spring and Bobo Duren.

WAS MINOR HERO

Stenhouse was a minor league phenomenon if not spectacular success for seven seasons as a farmhand for Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds before the Reds dealt him to Washington this past winter.

After four relief appearances manager Mickey Vernon started him May 6 against the Yankees and he was credited with the 4-3 victory after a yield of three hits over seven innings. Next was a complete-game shutout over Baltimore, 2-1. After 32 innings, he shows an earned run average of 0.87.

The White Sox scored first Wednesday night on Jim King's three-base error on Lolo Aparicio's deep fly and a sacrifice fly. But the Senators pulled even in their half of the first and gained the lead on Early Wynn, going for victory No. 295, with two more runs in the third. The pitcher-batter pressed on as server and King singled in the other.

Both the Indians and the Athletics suffered rainouts after being on strike away from defeat.

The Indians came from behind four times against the Athletics, the last time when Romano connected off Orlando Pena's fastball with two out in the ninth. Cleveland had scored twice against reliever Diego Segui on a 346 pitch, with Don Dillard and Jerry Kindall driving in the Indians' ninth. Woodie Held and Bill Skowron singled and had two homers for the Indians, while Chuck Essegian hit one with none on.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Mike Fornieles had two strikes on Mickey Mantle with two out in the Yankee ninth at Boston but the Bombers, trailing 7-6, ripped from behind and stayed off Dick Radatz straight four. Mantle finally walked, Yogi Berra singled, then Elston Howard and Bill Skowron put the Yanks ahead with singles off Dick Radatz. Clete Boyer belted with a double against Jim Bouton rookie, making it 9-7.

The Red Sox came back in their half of the inning with the run before Marshall Bridges stopped the threat.

The Twins, winning their fourth in a row and ninth in 12 games, peppered Detroit pitching for 13 hits. Right-hander Camilo Pascual now 2-2, gave up Tiger homers to Steve Boros, Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash but joined in the Minnesot sattack with two singles and two runs batted in. Bob Allison three singles and three RBI for the Twins, Bob Allison also patched three hits, and Lennie Green smacked a pair of doubles.

McBride rifled the Orioles on three scratch hits but needed relief after giving two on with none out in the ninth. Spring was tagged for John Powell's two-out single, scoring in the Baltimore run, then Duren struck out pinch-hitter Gus Triandos.

Leon Wagner powered in the first two Angels' runs with a double in the first and his 30th homer in the sixth, and Ted Thomas routed Chuck Estrada with another homer in the sixth.

Pearson Bids For Support Of Coal Men

By ALAN DONNELLY

PORT HAWKESBURY, N.S. (CP) — With jokes, tough words for the Tories and a new cost assistance policy, Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson tried to get a bid Wednesday to swing Cape Breton behind his party.

Winding up a tough day of campaigning, he scoffed at the Progressive Conservative government's request for another chance in office after the June 18 election.

This was "like the young man sentenced to death for killing his mother and father with an axe, appealing for clemency on the grounds he was an orphan."

Mr. Pearson got as much applause from rallies like that as from his public meeting on the problem of dwindling Nova Scotia coal production.

He called for use of Maritime coal in thermal power plants in the Eastern provinces, using money from present transportation subsidies to provide economically-based power for new and existing Maritimes industries.

JAM INTO HALL

An overflow audience of more than 600 jammed into St. Joseph's Hall, Catholic Church hall which applauded him repeatedly.

Mr. Pearson was met by a Scottish piper playing Oal to the lilies as he crossed the nearby Canso causeway to Cape Breton Island just at sunset. Another piper, a Pay Day airliner, 18, led him into the hall here.

When the 400 seats were filled and another 200 persons crowded in, the chairman suggested they sit in a basement room where bookpeakers were set up.

"Now — the woman see the man and hear him," one man shouted. The audience then decided that rather than have Mr. Pearson go to the hot, stuffy hall, Gilbert crowded outside at 8:30 p.m.

Though all three Cape Breton federal seats, existing every present, Mr. Pearson made his strongest pitch for former MP Allan J. MacEachen, 44, at the gathering at Orioux who lost the Liberal nomination candidacy here in 1958 by a count of 16 votes to Conservative Hector McKinnon.

Hopes to return

The Liberal leader will drive on Friday north of Sydney today, Mr. MacEachen, in a brief speech, referred to unemployment in the coal-mining island where he said coal production has been cut by one-quarter under the Conservative government.

He said one unemployed miner had called himself "an artist for Diefenbaker—I draw unemployment insurance."

"This is the most artistic island in Canada," Mr. MacEachen said.

Mr. Pearson, still going strong after a long day of speech-making and hand-shaking, said he has been warned by people so much that "the last thing I do at night is wave to my wife."

The Liberal party was "on the march to victory on June 18—I feel it and you feel it.

"This spirit of optimism should not blind us to the fact we've got a tough, hard fight ahead of us."

He said the Conservatives claim that his criticisms of the economic situation show a lack of confidence in Canada.

LIBERALS CONFIDENT

"The Liberal party has confidence in Canada's future. But we haven't any confidence in the government.

"The best way to destroy confidence in Canada is to return the present government to office so they can mess up our affairs for another four years."

Mr. Pearson said that wealthier provinces of Canada would be happy to share their prosperity—once they regain prosperity—with areas such as this which have had bad luck.

A Liberal government would help the Atlantic provinces by assistance that would enable industry to settle in the area. That would be a better approach than the present annual grants from Ottawa to the four provinces.

LOSES CAP, DROWNS

WINNIPEG (CP) — A fouryear-old boy who took his first unaided steps Sunday after life-long treatment to correct club feet was drowned Monday in the Red River. Abbey Hayden was playing with a friend near a river dock when the wind blew his cap into the river. "Watch me get my cap," he said, and jumped off the dock.

P.M. Promises Special Deal For Nova Scotia

By DAVE McINTOSH

HALIFAX (CP) — A herald-"summit meeting" on the 10% mile highway between Halifax and New Glasgow Wednesday didn't come about.

Nevertheless, it got around that Prime Minister Diefenbaker, driving south to Halifax, and Liberal Leader Pearson, northbound to New Glasgow, would meet one another on side of the road.

The crossing of paths was spotted, however, the two party chieftains didn't even have time to wave to each other as their motorcades passed near Mount Thom, Mr. Pearson was late for his appearance at New Glasgow.

Prime boss following Mr. Pearson by a few miles stopped for lunch at Truro and Debert. The prime minister shook hands with a few of the reporters and then left for his big evening speech here.

The day for Mr. Diefenbaker's caravan neared Halifax, it had grown to 80 from 10 early. A truck carrying 40 reporters, TV cams and tail-gated the prime minister's car for a few miles before the RCMP cut it out of the procession and arrested the driver, who was in ordinary uniform. Any charge to be laid will be laid by provincial RCMP said.

A party official jewellers with Mr. Diefenbaker said he was worried by the closeness of the crowds to the head of the horse. The consumer was being protected by police and "the farmer skinned at the other."

He said the report of a royal commission on price spreads and food products as well as a recent speech of the re-elective trade practices commission have been gathering dust on Prime Minister Diefenbaker's desk.

Mr. Diefenbaker ended his B.C. tour and flew back to Regina Tuesday.

In a press conference earlier Wednesday Mr. Douglas said Saskatchewan would be wiped out in Canada within a year through a huge building program.

CAN SUBSIDIZE

The federal authority should subsidize housing then rent or sell to buyers with the down of the property raised to the income of the buyer.

In a recorded radio broadcast carried on the CBC trans-Canada radio network as part of the three - time election broadcasts and in his New Westminster speech Mr. Douglas commented on Saskatchewan's health insurance controversy.

He said the medical profession in Canada, and the United States, is engaged in the "last desperate stand" against health insurance plans. In Saskatchewan the doctors were fighting tooth and nail against a medical plan which, "when you," would go into effect July 1.

WOMEN WORKERS

About one in four women of working age is in the labor force today, compared with one in eight in 1900.

Bill of Rights For Consumers Is Proposed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — T. C. Douglas proposed a consumers' bill of rights Wednesday to protect Canadians who, he said, have been gouged too long on food and other goods.

The New Democratic Party leader said at a rally attended by 5,00 cheering supporters—he called it the biggest yet held in the June 18 federal election campaign — the bill would include:

Legislation to end price fixing by monopolies and combines and deceptive and misleading packaging and advertising; limited rates of interest on credit purchases; effective antitrust legislation; prohibition of impure or dangerous foods; legislation and financial assistance for consumer co-operatives and credit unions; a research organization to act as a federal consumer groups in product research and a federal minister to represent the interests of consumers in all matters of trade.

LIVING COSTS TOO HIGH

Mr. Douglas, who received a standing ovation as he walked through the almost-filled Queen's Park arena, said the cost of living for the average consumer has risen to a record high. "And it's a record because the dollar means a further loss."

It was the sheerest nonsense to say the rising cost of living was the result of shortage of labor. The consumer was being gouged by "a handful of profiteers" at the other.

Mr. Diefenbaker put in 200 road miles after 185 in New Brunswick the previous day. He will drive about another 100 miles today then sail on Prince Edward Island. Friday he will fly to Windsor, Ont., and hold a public meeting that night in Chatham, Ont.

"A MESS OF PROMISES"

The prime minister said the Liberals would make Nova Scotia, an original province of Confederation, a special ward of the government.

He said Mr. Pearson has promised establishment of a federal department of Atlantic affairs under a minister of the Crown. Such a move would give Nova Scotia "into a department with a mess of promises."

Mr. Diefenbaker stuck pretty well to a speech he planned to tell Atlantic provinces.

He indicated a national park will be established on the Nova Scotia mainland as a partner to Cape Breton Island.

He said full agreement hasn't been reached yet between the federal and provincial governments but that it would be remarkable indeed if Premier Stanfield weren't successful.

There was "an interference" about of "hurray for the Liberals"—during the speech. It was rather thin-voiced and Mr. Diefenbaker either didn't hear it or ignored it.

The prime minister said his party there were willing to forgive Canadians for turning them out of office in 1957.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it used to be said that no stone should be left unturned in an election campaign.

"The Liberals haven't left a stone unturned in this campaign," he added.

The prime minister didn't elaborate. On Monday Mr. Diefenbaker said the campaign was being waged on a high level—"absolutely."

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Why Not Seek A Counsellor?

DORIS CLARK

this, as my assistant four (1) will go home to her husband (2) will get over her confusion (3) "I don't need a marriage counsellor. I just need some advice."

So many of us muddle along the hard way. We think that we should be able to handle our own affairs. That our relations with our children (or husband) are our own private, intimate business.

So they are. And so is the state of our appendix. But our doctor keeps our medical concerns to himself, doesn't he? Then why not put similar confidence in a social worker?

How does a social worker know the answers? It takes more than common sense, a kind disposition and experience to be effective. A social worker goes to university to study human behavior and how to deal with life's complications. His degree means he has spent six years learning and applying this knowledge.

The daily wonder is that people can be helped.

• • •

To illustrate, here is one success story:

After five years of marriage, Marion wondered how she had ever got herself into such a mess. Three babies, a pile of bills, and she and her Joe were practically at each other's throats most of the time.

A neighbor persuaded Marion to call on the family agency. There a social caseworker listened sympathetically, as she poured out her story. Like family-named words Bills say many, she said. She felt tired all the time, and Joe never spoke a civil word to her.

Did she love him? She didn't know. She guessed so. But they were not close any more.

The worker helped Marion to look at what had been happening to her and showed her that worry puts a strain on love.

They discussed practical things, like working out a budget which made provision for paying off old debts—even though it was just a little at a time. Joe came in on later talks.

As time went on, they were persuaded to get out together occasionally. Most important of all, Mary and Joe learned to take time every day to talk things over.

• • •

The happy ending to this true story came to me in this note from Marion:

"A year ago I went to see a marriage counsellor. Had to drag my husband there. But it saved our marriage.

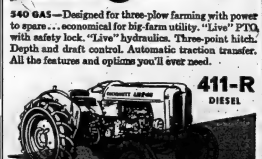
"To other couples who are having difficulties, I'd say do anything to save a home and go. We couldn't be happier than we are today, thanks to our counsellor."

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—My husband passed away in March but never. Now my daughter is being married. Should I wear navy or something dark with white accessories, or would it be proper for me to wear something in a brighter color?

I do not want to give up hope for anyone to think poorly of us for this.—RECENT WIDOW.

DEAR RECENT—No longer does custom call for mourning clothes over a long period.



Your close friends will want you to be serene and look the part at what should be one of the happiest occasions of your life. Wear what sets off your complexion. If the date is set for a warm summer's day, a pretty pastel should fill the bill.

• • •

(Write to Doris, who has her master's degree in social work, for a Canadian resource to meet your problem).

Astrological Forecast

For May 18
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You might find that today's key to success fits in "back door." Indirect approach most favorable. Look for "break" spots. Then make "assault" accordingly.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Tendency toward self-deception evident. See persons surrounding you as they actually are. This takes thinking and courage but you gain by doing so.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): No use trying to "watch the pot." The more impatient you are, the longer it will take to complete the job. Don't ask for favors. You will get what is coming to you.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): You can reach out and capture the elusive today if you make the proper effort. Indications are that you will overcome odds. Apply your wonderful intuition.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't give impression of having chip on your shoulder. Be very diplomatic. Smile rather than frown. Your usual Leo charm and effort bring success.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Tendency to err slightly. Could cause mistake in judgment. Consider all angles. Refrain from project before starting a new one. Be calm, deliberate. Ignore those who want to push.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Much to be gained if you want to multiply social, professional horizons. Don't "play low." Your talents attract unusual person, who can help you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Urge now is to "forge" way into spotlight. Better to let others come to you. There are preparations to be made. Take advantage of time, which is on your side.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Behind-the-scenes activity could work in your favor if you are willing to be utterly frank. May seem difficult to "lay cards on table." But this course is wise and best.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Harmony, friendship stressed. But you may be tempted to "push." But don't. Be diplomatic. Listen to opposing view for best course of action.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A bit of extra effort could be exactly what is needed. No time to shirk duties. Forget the clock. Finish tasks to best of your ability. Reward may be substantial.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): No time for self-pity. Events are turning in your favor, so give them "a hand." Self-expression of the note is key. Fight for ideals and stand by the right.

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . you have creative abilities which could carry you to top. Don't stray off tendencies to "fiddle," to create leaps which fascinates public.

* * *

Commission On Crime Heads Into Long Recess

Confusing, Conflicting Evidence Is Given

TORONTO (CP) — After a four-day week that was short on sittings but long on confusion and conflicting testimony, Ontario's royal commission on crime today headed into a long recess until Tuesday.

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the one-man commission, had Court of Appeal duties today, and the Monday holiday gave counsel and commission officials further time to assess contradictory and puzzling evidence that jacked the record up to around 1,500,000 words in five sitting weeks.

The commission may not have come much closer to detecting hookups between crime and officialdom, in the current phase—but it did hear of:

1. Two policemen, playing a reported game of spy and counter-spy and producing diametrically opposed stories.

2. A policeman and a Crown prosecutor conducting each other on the attitude of the attorney-general's department in the controlling practices.

3. Two provincial magistrates in the influence-peddling and gambling cases—one of the results coming after a dental alibi that was shattered by a two-year-old newspaper item.

4. A mag whose last job was in 1955 and who has not set a week in 1958 and who has accumulated some $80,000 worth of property in that period—a period that mystified the commission.

5. Another police detective job is promoting potato chips at $100 a week but who vacations in Florida, is worth $50,000 and drives a Cadillac.

6. Money in the U.S. gambling bosses Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley at virtually every police operation and the evidence.

POLICEMEN CONFLICT

The conflict between the two policemen developed Thursday when Robert F. Wright, 31, spent his second day on the witness stand, with more to come next week. The former member of the provincial police anti-gambling bureau is questioned by McDermott and Feeley, a conviction of obtaining police information illegally.

Scott also had testified that Inspector George Scott, a squad member whose 1960 work as a bookie agent for the OPP squad included the conversation Scott had testified that, with the Inspector present, he asked Wright if he took McDermott - Feeley money via Wright for planted information to Hoffa.

Scott also had testified that Inspector Scott told him that things were "fixed" with the government for continuance of Windsor-Detroit-Ferlay club chatter at Cooksville, which was being investigated because of the 14 air force cancellation.

Wright contended indignantly that Scott made up the account of the fix. In any case, the Windsor was subsequently revoked.

CLAIMS OWN PROBE

Wright, who claimed he launched a personal and secret investigation in 1960 to trace information that was stolen from the OPP to gamblers, testified Thursday he had told him Constables Kenneth Lamorie and Carman Lawrence of the

SPACE FLIGHT IS DELAYED THREE DAYS

Parachute System To Be Improved

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The round - the - world orbital flight of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter has been delayed three days until next Tuesday to improve reliability of the parachute system of his spacecraft, Aurora VII.

The surprise announcement of the delay came late Thursday night after a midnight review meeting attended by Carpenter, operations director Walter Williams and other Project Mercury officials.

Discussion centred on a question raised nearly three months ago: Why did the small rocket firing parachute on astronaut John Glenn's capsule unfurl at 17,000 feet instead of the intended 21,000 feet?

Mercury officials apparently were convinced at that time that it was a random failure, not likely to happen again, and no parachute changes were made in Carpenter's capsule.

Plans had been progressing smoothly for a flight scheduled Saturday.

REVIEWS GLENN FLIGHT

But at Thursday night's meeting, officials reviewed the Glenn three - orbit flight and, a space agency spokesman said, began to ask questions about the parachute deployment.

Williams would not say how if there was a possibility the small parachute could pop out even sooner, perhaps during orbit.

If so, it would burn up on re-entry and the 'chute's role in stabilizing forces for the capsule.

Engineers were unable to explain the malfunctions to William's satisfaction, the spokesman said. After a 2½-hour session Williams decided to postpone the flight to provide a backup parachute deployment switch.

The correction involves installing a second aneroid barometer switch which is sensitive to altitude change. When atmospheric pressure reached a certain point—in this case 21,000 feet — the switch expands and causes the stabilizing chute.

Earlier Thursday preparations for the flight were marred by a plane crash near Nairobi, Africa, that killed 14 Air Force men involved in support of emergency recovery operations for the Carpenter flight.

Union Official Charges Hoffa Assaulted Him

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, goes to court today to face an assault charge pressed by a union lieutenant who says Hoffa beat him up.

Samuel Baron says Hoffa hit him, knocked him down and pushed him over a chair.

Baron, 50, told director for the Teamsters' national newspaper division, took his complaint to the U.S. attorney Thursday. Baron, a greying, 13-pounder, displayed a black-eyed left eye, a cut over his right eye and bruises on his face and legs.

Two deputy U.S. marshals stood guard at Baron's home in suburban Silver Spring, Md., through the night. The justice department said Baron asked that the guards be posted.

Queen Suffers Sore Throat, Slight Fever

LONDON (AP) — Two doctors visited the Queen today and later it was learned she will remain in her room for the weekend.

The Queen cancelled two engagements, and for today's.

A palace spokesman said she has a sore throat and a slight fever.

She was seen this morning by Lord Evans and Sir John Weir.

The court calendar published this morning said she plans to attend the Derby at Epsom Downs June 6 and the Oaks, also at Epsom, June 8.

The Queen's official birthday will be celebrated on June 9.

Earlier, it was announced she would on this occasion receive the same honors as those receiving the color. There has been no announcement to suggest she will not take part.

Tunnel-Bridge Will Be Build At Montreal

QUEBEC (CP)—A $50,000,000 tunnel-bridge combination joining Montreal Island to the south shore of the St. Lawrence River was announced Thursday by Premier Jean Lesage.

The project, to start in Sep. tember and be completed in about four years, is part of the Trans-Canada Highway program. It will link the Metropolitan Boulevard—a throughway now existing the length of Island of Montreal—to the South Shore Highway which runs towards Sherbrooke, Drummondville and New Brunswick.

The tunnel will be the longest in Canada—5,000 feet—and the bridge will be "the first of its kind, not only in Canada but on the North American continent."

There will be no overhead steel supports to the 1,200-foot bridge. The asphalt - covered steel roadbed would "contribute to the strength of the structure" instead of being dead weight, the premier said.

Second Greatest Englishman, 90, Russell Still Passionate Rebel

LONDON (CP)—Earl Russell, who called the greatest living Englishman after Sir Winston Churchill, is 90 today.

Age and accumulated experience have not mellowed him. There is no serene reflection on past achievements, no contentment with the present or hope for progress.

Instead, he is striding rebelliously into the twilight of his life with the passionate — to some, irritating — concern for the future of the human race that has depend on nuclear disarmament.

Although many thinkers oppose Earl Russell's ban - the - bomb arguments, few would question his reputation as one of the 20th century's foremost champions of freedom and reason.

As a philosopher and mathematician he can take much credit for the credit for a breakthrough in logical thinking that launched the modern school of analytical philosophy.

As a moralist and social humanitarian he has fervently espoused causes ranging from freer educational practices to pacifism, for which he went to prison in 1918.

Russell now considers all his past causes to be overshadowed by the impending catastrophe of a nuclear war. He is prepared to demonstrate his beliefs by risking abuse, incarceration and, at his great age, death.

Writing in The Observer, Russell set himself as a modern Cassandra, "doomed to prophesy evil and not be believed."

"Her prophecies came true, desperately hope that mine will not."

Election Day Month Away, Leaders Intensify Drive

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is E-day minus 31, one month before the June 18 federal election and a good point to look at the campaign momentum.

In a nutshell, two parties have their machines in high gear and the other two are still getting ready to shift into second.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Pearson, both of whom have been at a hectic pace for more than two weeks, had a typical day Thursday handshaking, mass-streeting and waving their way through two sections of the Maritimes.

In sharp contrast, Social Credit leader Robert Thompson visited Quebec City, made a small group and drew hardly more than a glance from motorists sightseeing beside the cathedral.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party chief, was quietly campaigning in his home riding of Regina.

Both Mr. Douglas and Mr. Thompson have indicated their strategy is keyed to a barnstorming tour, with all the political trimmings, in the last couple of weeks before voting day. They're busy laying the groundwork for it now.

Today it was more of the same for the major party leaders, Mr. Diefenbaker in southwestern Ontario for visits to Windsor and Chatham and Mr. Pearson touring the Gaspe region around Mont-Joli, Que.

Mr. Douglas was to remain in Regina and Mr. Thompson has a night meeting scheduled at Quebec, Oct.

Audiences in the Maritimes Thursday night heard the Conservative and Liberal leaders cover the same theme—industrial development.

Mr. Diefenbaker, ending a busy day on Prince Edward Island, told a crowd of 2,500 in the Charlottetown arena his government's plans to assist

Kennedy Opposes de Gaulle On European Unity Issue

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says, in effect, that French President Charles de Gaulle can get all the "grandeur" he needs from a truly united Europe and an Atlantic partnership protected by a powerful U.S. nuclear deterrent force.

Firmly opposing de Gaulle's drive for a separate French nuclear force, Kennedy outlined ideas of a third world political body, Kennedy said Thursday he would regret any move toward a European military alliance—with Europe on one side and the U.S. and Canada on the other.

"I am confident that Atlantic unity represents the true course of history," he said in a speech before a trade policy group Thursday night. Canada, Europe and European countries not to take U.S. military aid for granted.

U.S. Will Wield Big Stick To Make Ally Accept Pact

WASHINGTON (CP) — Leading primary and secondary trading factions likely will meet today in a new effort to work out a coalition government. This time the United States will be using the big stick in keep the Boun Oum government at the conference table.

Informed U.S. sources said the Kennedy administration has made clear to Laotian Premier Boun Oum and his defence minister, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, that if a new clash breaks out, the U.S. will protect the king and the common people but will not pledge support to the Boun Oum regime.

Phoumi, in particular, has taken into U.S. disgrace because he rejected American advice and reinforced the northern stronghold of Nam Tha, thereby routing the Pathet Lao from a breach of a year - old cease-fire, sweeping Nam Tha and other surrounding areas before it.

Rejected by the U.S. is the Laotian argument that the Pathet Lao had already breached cease-fire terms before reinforcements arrived, by bombarding Nam Tha continuously and by refusing to move back from the town's outskirts.

President Kennedy, at his press conference Thursday, said there are great hazards of a shooting war in Asia and his objective is to bring about a diplomatic solution to lessen the Asian danger.

Expressing hope there will be a national union government formed in Laos, Kennedy rejected that no further breaches of the cease-fire have occurred and that the three princes—Boun Oum, Neutralist Souvanna Phouma and leftist Souphanouvong—will meet shortly,

MINING MAN GIVEN 5 YEARS ON FRAUD COUNT

Was Former Owner Montreal Alouettes

TORONTO (CP) — Roy Robertson, 38, mining millionaire and former owner of the Montreal Alouettes football team, Thursday was sentenced to five years in penitentiary for participating with others in a "vicious type of fraud."

Robertson and the others were convicted earlier by an assize court jury.

Robertson was found guilty of fraud and conspiracy in a $300,000 stock manipulation involving Stadacona Mines (1944) Limited. He was president of the mining company.

David Charles Stuart, 35, a North Bay promoter, was convicted of fraud, theft and conspiracy and was sentenced to six years in penitentiary by Justice G. A. Gale, who described Stuart as "nothing but an ingenious scoundrel."

GET 2½ YEARS

Montreal lawyer Andre Begin, 53, drew 2½ years concurrent on each of conspiracy and fraud charges. Harry Bruce Smith, a Toronto lawyer, was sentenced to 1½ years for a reformatory for fraud.

None of the four men had anything to say before Mr. Justice Gale passed sentence. They left Osgoode Hall separately.

The jury had recommended mercy in the case of Begin and Koury. All found guilty were not guilty to the charges.

Mr. Justice Gale found Robertson participated in this vicious type of fraud," said Mr. Justice Gale.

"It is quite obvious when the Stadacona Mines stock was starting to an end, you, Robertson, thought you would have a share of the treasury and with Stuart, devised this scheme."

ASSENT SHRINK

The four were charged after the assets of Stadacona sank to $65,000 from $300,000 in a single day in 1960, giving Robertson control of the company.

Robertson made a profit of $200,000. Stuart drew off $50,000.

The Toronto Stock Exchange suspended trading in the stock after the manipulations, giving as the reason the company's assets had created a transfer of effective control.

West Ontario Drama Entry Wins Plaudits

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Western Ontario entry in the Dominion Drama Festival drew evidence and adjudicating plaudits Thursday night in the showing of I am a Camera.

The London Little Theatre, with its director Jack Merry, as John Van Druten, received compliments on production, acting and the comments of adjudicator John Berry as "a very satisfying evening."

The 7-character play showed Christopher Isherwood's Berlin in 1930 when the Nazi movement was apparent. The setting was that of a faded boarding room in Berlin.

Berry, director of Stratford Shakespearean Festival, said the play was like looking at Berlin of the period through the showing of a camera with its shutter open, read "real actor charm."

The players were Barbara Mc. Berry's appraisal was that Har. Kinnon was "perfect" but did not give the writer's approach to speaking that would be invariably "a pleasure to hear." Timing and groping search for politically-spoken words."

SEATO Lands' Token Forces Are Declined

Thailand Feels U.S. Troops Are Adequate

BANGKOK (Reuters) — The chance of U.S. troops in Thailand being joined by token contingents from the other SEATO powers lessened today.

Reliable sources said that Prime Minister Serit Thanarat of Thailand told his cabinet Thursday that all SEATO countries except France had indicated a desire to send token military forces to his country.

However, it was said, Thailand considered that its armies supported by the United States forces—constituted a sufficient deterrent "to any Communist plan to send troops" across the border from leftist-beleaguered Laos.

Sarit was said to have added that if appreciable forces had been sent to the SEATO countries thanking them for the "wonderful gesture" of their troops offers.

That foreign office sources said that up to Thursday no formal request had been made for any SEATO power to send to Thailand troops, military aid.

U.S. MAY HAVE ASKED

However, the United States Embassy here said that a few SEATO members that they should send some troops and that Thailand had no objection, the sources added.

The sources noted that Thailand had not formally asked the U.S. to send marines to Thailand but had agreed when the U.S. suggested it.

In addition to the U.S., France and Thailand, the other countries in the eight-power South East Asia Treaty organization are Britain, Pakistan, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand.

Meanwhile, the 1,800 U.S. marines who arrived in Thailand Thursday were encamped within 30 miles of the Mekong River which divides Thailand and Laos.

The marines were preceded to Thailand by the 1,000 - man 1st Battle Group, 9th Infantry Group. It came here recently for SEATO exercises and was held in the country by the wake of lertist military successes in Laos.

GENERAL TAKES OVER

Gen. James L. Richardson arrived here Thursday night to take over as operational commander of the U.S. combat units in Thailand.

Described by U.S. authorities as a veteran of guerrilla warfare, Richardson has been serving as deputy commander of the U.S. Army Pacific Command based at Hawaii.

The marines were landed in Bangkok at dawn Thursday and by nightfall had been airlifted 300 miles by U.S. Air Force C-130 jets to Pa Mong Han on a plateau within 30 miles of Mukdan, A U.S. statement declared they would have no offensive role in Thailand is attacked.

Elsewhere, Communist propaganda charged that the marines can move while Japanese Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka in Tokyo that Japan regretted it had not been informed before Japanese Self - U.S. planes were sent to Thailand.

Two Toronto Men Eligible To Hold Office

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario owners may stand for public office. In resort areas even if they live elsewhere in Ontario, the Ontario Municipal Board ruled Thursday.

Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz ruled that two Toronto businessmen with summer cottages in the Muskoka area are householders residing in the area and therefore entitled to hold public office.

The two men, William Bushnell and Robert Dobson, successfully appealed an earlier decision by Judge D. C. Thomas of Muskoka that they were not eligible to serve on a local council because they were not householders under the Municipal Act.

Mr. Bushnell and Mr. Dobson were elected last November to the council of the United Townships of Muskoka Lake. Their election was contested by local residents.

Mr. Justice Schatz ruled that a third appellant, J. G. Houser, was not qualified to be a candidate because he was not the real owner of the land upon which he based his qualification. Mr. Houser admitted this. Dismissing the third and appeal, the justice said Mr. Houser's election must be declared void and the vacancy filled by a new election.

Beware of Greeks Bearing Gifts Moans Bachelor Among 85 Girls

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Eighty-five young Greek girls, all single, and one lone Greek bachelor arrived in Australia today on a chartered immigrant flight from Athens.

"I don't know how it happened that I was the only man on the plane," said George Grassolis, 29.

"It was a bachelor's nightmare—three days, 31 hours, 40 minutes. Like my bachelor life, I like girls, but 85 of them were just too much.

"I only had to look thirty and six of them ran to get me a drink. After we left Singapore I almost asked the captain for a parachute."

George said he would stay with his brother in Sydney and "I don't want to see another woman for at least a month—and then she'd better not be Greek."

The flight was one in a series that is bringing single migrant women to underpopulated Australia.

Chamber Asks Patient Fee To Discourage Abuse Of Hospital Facilities

As result of a motion emanating from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the Ontario Chamber will present a resolution to the Ontario government calling for a nominal daily charge against patients in the courtesy shows of hospital facilities.

The resolution was passed last week by directors of the local Chamber, and later in the week was approved by the Ontario Chamber at its annual meeting in Niagara Falls.

The resolution is aimed at blocking down the vastly increased demand for hospital facilities which has been noted since the introduction of provincial hospital insurance plans.

A system similar to the above was reported to be now in vogue in British Columbia and Alberta.

Local Chamber president Walter T. Elliott gave a resume of the Niagara Falls convention to directors of the Chamber at their regular monthly dinner meeting Tuesday noon.

WAIVE FLUORIDATION

Among the motions passed at the meeting bringing a recommendation by the Chamber to city hall calling for immediate fluoridation of city water supplies.

The recommendation was the result of a recent poll of Chamber members which showed a large majority of members were in favor of fluoridation.

Also at the meeting the chamber directors voted to hand over to the recently organized Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association, the preparation and publication of the annual Highlands of Hastings tourist booklet. The chamber will also turn over to the Association its tourist booth in Bridge St. as can be made of it. The tourist booth is now in storage as the Chamber lacks the personnel to run it.

All-Time High for May Temperature Established

With the official thermometer at the Belleville Water Filtration Plant edging to 85 degrees, an all-time high for May temperatures was established in the city yesterday.

Pump house manager Jim Scriven said he overheated on and just 30 degrees as a high of 85 was predicted and the thermometer climbed to 84.

And heat was in the shade with a slight breeze blowing.

Downtown the temperature must have been nearly over 100, mercy, Mr. Scriven.

Anyway, it was the hottest May record in Belleville, the previous high being in 1944 when the thermometer climbed to 84.

And water consumption in the city rose along with the thermometer. Some 5½ million gallons were being pumped. This is about two million gallons higher than normal for this time of year.

Main reason for the increased water consumption yesterday was attributed to lawn sprinkling and industrial air conditioning units.

Some people also use water on their roofs for cooling purposes. A temperature of 85 was recorded a long way from the all-time record temperature in Belleville.

That was back in the summer of 1936 when the thermometer soared to 104 in the shade.

TO AID WITH INCENTIVES

Mr. Pearson, speaking at Yarmouth, N.S., to 900 persons who had received the attraction of a $1,000 bingo game nearby, said a Liberal government would provide tax incentives and in some cases pay adjustment grants to stimulate industry in the Maritimes.

In a night speech at Niagara Falls, Mr. Thompson said federal trade policies have left Canada in a bad position of trading with the very Communist countries which threaten the Western world.

"We have priced ourselves out of the foreign markets of our friends, and we are forced now to trade with those who have promised to destroy us," he said.

A Social Credit government would work towards reducing tariffs with U.S. and promote a Common Market embracing the entire western hemisphere.

HITS TRADE POLICY

Elsewhere on the campaign trail:—

Trade Minister Hees said at Bellingham, Que., that the Liberals' "darn fool, cock - eyed free trade policy will finish Pearson for all time."

He claimed the Liberal promise to set up a free trade zone with Europe, Japan, the U.S., Australia and New Zealand would put Canada in bankruptcy."

Harry Pope, NDP candidate battling for Defence Minister Harkness' seat in Calgary South, called the party's plan to spend $270,000,000 on eight destroyers "a ridiculous waste."

The admirals had "conned" Mr. Harkness into spending millions of dollars to buy frigates, destroyers and helicopters Canada will be utterly wiped out before any of the expensive toys fire a shot in defence.

Real Caouette, Social Credit's deputy leader, said Trans-Canada Air Lines should be sold to private interests because "a dictatory government enterprise should not be allowed to compete with private enterprise." He spoke at Mont-Joli, Que.

COMMISSION

geophysical squad were taking money for information.

Wright said first, in fact, the two men had been named by Scott as giving information on squad activities. Sam Balsam sat a howling alley in St. Catharines.

He quoted Scott as naming the pair after retired Sound Sgt. John Cole of Toronto had told him early in 1950 that Balsam was making money by someone in the squad.

Crooks, at the time was running a motel in Kingston after retiring amid reports—relayed to the commission—that he made a cleanup tipping gambling by radio. Lamarche and Lawrence, suspended on suspicion of gambling connections as the result of Scott's investigation, were allowed to resign at Scott's request, Wright was arrested in 1960.

It was Wright's story — described as "fantastic" by commission counsel Roland F. Wilson—that he paid Scott for information supposedly going to McDermott but which he secretly passed on to Crooks and Lamarche, Meanwhile, he had struck up a friendship of acquaintance with the gambler but gave him tag—unsuccessfully—to get incriminating evidence on Crooks.

McDermott, he said Thursday, had told him at least three that he had information on pending raids on parts of his territory but would not put it accessible to Wright.

CLAIMS LINED PAYINGS

The suspended officer — who had been removed from the force by Chief Police Wm. Stitt—testified in Belleville when he went to work on Scott—said he had about $1,000 of his own savings into the purported attempt to expose OPP corruption, which he claimed extended as high as the commissioner's office.

Outside of Scott accepting bribes in the conspiracy of the his OPP chiefs), Wright conceded that he had obtained no information against anyone.

He said McDermott had given him a consistent brushoff over a period of months, though incidentally he had received a call produced by co o l i e e Thursday between them, most initiated by Wright.

Certain calls had originated with the gambler, Wright said, but the only time he asked for information was to inquire about fixing tickets for speeding on a couple of occasions.

The two magistrates — Provincial Judge Thomas Hall of Toronto—brought the gambling pair together in Belleville when they told of approaches on behalf of accused persons in the Scott investigation, Wright said.

Both men denied saying anything of the kind. Guilty pleas and fines on charges which Shrubb interpreted as confirmation of an earlier prediction by the gambler, though $1,400 seized in the raid on Peterborough's Thicke Club was confiscated.

Quinte Home Builders Hear Two Candidates

The three political candidates for Hastings South were invited to attend the Quinte Home Builders' meeting this past Wednesday evening at Club Casara. Two of them were able to attend Robert Temple, Liberal standard bearers, and Les Digby, CCF candidate, were present to outline the platforms of their parties.

Mr. Temple stressed the disturbing devaluation of the dollar and the lowering of government mismanagement.

Mr. Digby stressed the NDP's plan for hospitalization and medical care.

A lively political discussion took place, which was enjoyed by all present.

It was announced that the 1953 parade of homes would commence on September 7th. -

County Museum Has Record Attendance

All attendance records at The Hastings County Museum were shattered recently when 1,000 boys and pupils from Moira Secondary School in Belleville toured the museum. The occasion for the visit was the special hundreing exhibition currently featured at the museum, 340 Church Street, Belleville.

The students travelled aboard a chartered bus in 14 class groups. Guides for the tours were arranged by the Boy of Quinte District High School Board.

The students were particularly interested in the demonstrations of hundering equipment as well as this display relating to the 23rd Rebellion of 1838, the Coultery collection of fine furniture, silverware, paintings, and jewelry, and other local displays.

The visit was arranged by Gerald Boyce, Museum Chairman and head of the history department at Moira Secondary School, assisted by Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. A. Sargent and Mr. T. S. Ransom.

Shrubb visiting the museum were from the city of Belleville, Thurlow township, Tyendinaga township, Sidney township and Ameliasburg township.

It is hoped that other district schools—both elementary and high—will take advantage of the museum's special hours which can be arranged by phoning Woodland 8-5202.

With this month, the public school pupils from Centenary public visited the museum and last month public school teachers from Thurlow township and Belleville.

Also on a recent visit and tour were members of the Hastings county council. -

The prosecution denied saying anything of the kind. Guilty pleas and fines on charges which Shrubb interpreted as confirmation of an earlier prediction by the gambler, though $1,400 seized in the raid on Peterborough's Thicke Club was confiscated.

He did not believe in a series of NATO sanctioned decisions. One—the American—was enough. Otherwise, Yugoslavia might be followed by other countries in the spread of modern heresy in a very subtle way. I think, effective defence utilitarian may be somewhere weakened."

On the question of a possible political force in European-earth a buffer between the U.S. and Russia, Kennedy said the security of the West is best tied to the Atlantic community and NATO:

"What I would regret would be any effort which would attempt to divide Europe from the U.S. and perhaps finally because I believe that the ocean should unite rather than divide. I do not anticipate that that day would come."

Mohawks To Hold Special Service

DESERONTO — On Sunday, May 25th, an historic event in the annals of Canadian history will be celebrated just west of Deseronto, when the Mohawks of Tyendinaga Reserve will hold their commemorative service on the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

It was in the year 1784, on May 22nd, that Chief Deseronto and his band, in 15 canoes, landed opposite the site of the present rectory.

In the commemorative service the Mohawks will use the communion service presented to them by Queen Anne in 1712. The complete service was divided in 1785 with a portion of it going to the Grand River Band, and the remainder to the Bay of Quinte Band. Each piece is inscribed, "The gift of Her Majesty Ann by the Grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland, and her Dominions in America Queen to her Indian Chapel of the Mohawks."

The service will begin at 10.00 a.m. from the shores of the Bay and the procession will proceed to the cabin where the service will be held. It will include a hymn sung in the Mohawk language.

Vale!

William Herbert Morton is dead.

While he lived, the last thing he would have permitted to appear in The Ontario Intelligencer was even the faintest hint in praise of its publisher.

But dead men are prisoners of the past. It is the past that dictates how their memory shall be treated today and in the future. W. H. Morton's past demands that something be said to rebut Mary Anthony's harsh dictum, that the good which men do shall be interred with their bones.

He was a man of the highest principles, his word was his bond and to loyalty to friends and employees he added good-will to acquaintance and stranger alike.

Mr. Morton was called by his newspaper colleagues the "Dean of Publishers." To the members of the staff this was understandable. It is understandable, too, that many beyond the staff perimeter called him the "Dean of Citizens," for a life spent worthily is measured in deeds not years.

Mr. Morton was not only the head of a successful business organization upon which many depended for a living, but a staunch counsellor and friend.

We watched, over decades of progress, "our newspaper" grow to its present fine status under his guiding hand and judgment. Some of us, too, grew with him the "lean years" of pre- and post-merger days.

We saw him bring the newspaper ship over troubled seas and watched him prove the path of success in business is invariably the path of common sense and good practice.

Mr. Morton never regarded the staff as mere cogs of the wheels necessary for the successful operation of the business machinery. Rather he wove the threads of friendship, tolerance, patience and understanding throughout the pattern of his association with members of the staff.

He was never too busy to listen to those who, from time to time, had problems. His advice and assistance, sometimes tangible, was freely and generously given.

He believed in hard work. He practised what he preached. He was never happy away from the office, rarely taking time off for a vacation. If he was absent from his desk for a day or two, it was always in the interests of business. Yet, though he possessed such strong sense which informed him almost instantly of any important development in any department of the newspaper, he left each man set his own working pace.

He believed in thrift. Yet, time after time, he would reach into his pocket and produce hard-earned coin he was certain was going to be squandered by some derelict. He had not the courage to utter "No" to a hard-luck story, for fear that, this one time, it might be the truth.

He believed in the free enterprise system and the virtues of profit—yet would permit sentiment to dictate the rent he collected.

He believed in self-reliance—but a man could hardly scatter his employ before he was offered a loan to acquire living-quarters.

From his boyhood days in the rolling fertile hills of Huntingdon Township, which endeared the soil of his native Hastings county to him forever, he came up through the years to the age of responsibility.

The chosen industry beckoned and claimed him. It became part of his life. He modestly disclaimed it but his record in various capacities within and beyond the industry as producer, judge and purchasing agent marked him as one of the outstanding men.

Mr. Morton entered the newspaper field in the face of a heavy challenge. It was not a lucrative sphere at the time. There were times, perhaps, when the outlook was not too bright, but he believed as Shakespeare said, "an enterprise when fairly begun, should not be left till all that ought is won."

The rest is history. Perseverance, business integrity and other success requisites Mr. Morton possessed brought progress.

Thomas Hardy in one of his masterly poems, describes an old man looking at the grave of one beloved, dead long years ago, and realizing that, when he died, she would be truly dead, remembered by none.

The sombre splendor of Hardy's matchless words can be lightened when we have the memory of a man in our hearts. For many of us at The Ontario Intelligencer, Herb Morton will live as long as we do, and, when it comes our turn to face the dark, we could ask no greater boon than that our last flickering memories of life on earth should include a vision of him sitting tilted back in his office chair, his thumbs hooked in his vest, his lips pursed, then relaxing to say "Well now, we've got to be fair about these things."

Strictly Personal

Most Movies Are Shallow And Juvenile

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

For years, I have suffered in cowardly silence, afraid that if I spoke up, I might lose my honorary membership card in the Intellectuals' Union and Avant-Garde Marching Society.

What disturbed me was my negative reaction to so many "art films" that were highly praised by the leaders of the I.A.G.M.S. In most cases, these motion-pictures seem trite and pretentious, overly complicated and laboriously directed. But I refrained from saying so, quelling my feeling that I was in judgment and taste in such cinematographic matters.

Now, finally, a 100-percent Dwight Macdonald has come to the rescue and in his film column in "Esquire" magazine that he, too, is bored and irritated by the great majority of art films. He says:

I am in favor of high ideals, but why are they so seldom entertaining in art films? I am also in favor of Truth and Realism, but why are they here always depressing? Above all, why are most art films poor?"

It may be true that most Hollywood movies are unspeakably shallow and juvenile, but at least they have technical proficiency and, above all, they do not pretend to be profound or cosmic or metaphysical.

The art film, with rare exceptions, is a pseudo-intellectual exercise in boredom, from its own sake, and is just as conceited and self-satisfied as the cliché view of life as the grinningly moronic product of the commercial cinema.

As Macdonald effectively points out, the art film has its own cliche as well as Hollywood cliche. Each genre has its own set of conventions, its own kind of patterning, its own predictable scenes, attitudes and resolutions. In rebelling against the conventional, the art-film has often created a no less conventional for no purpose except to show how "free" it is.

Like Macdonald, I am immensely bored by the obligatory opening sequence of the man walking endlessly through a desolate landscape, the obligatory rape-murder scene, the obligatory chase through tangled woods, the obligatory locations — ruined buildings, subways, docks.

Such films are "arty" rather than artistic. They have no more genuine vitality or validity to them than an old Jack Oakie college picture or a Betty Grable musical is horrible full color. Indeed, I would say that the ratio of good art films to bad ones is probably lower than the ratio of good Hollywood films to bad ones.

It is a healthy and heartening sign that so lofty an intellectual as Macdonald has finally spoken out against the pretentiousness of the art film, in avant-garde circles, as in monarchy. It is considered high treason to point out that the Emperor is wearing no clothes.

TRUE RELIGION AND FALSE

In a world containing many bad things, nothing is worse than bad religion. When this source of inspiration becomes corrupted, and men who are supposed to administer in the name of Christ lend themselves to the manipulation of evil forces, then such religion becomes a menace in the sight of all good people.

Back in the Russian church it became previous to the Bolshevik revolution. The Church in that country had for centuries served tyranny and oppression. It was corrupt, venal, and lacking in most of the qualities which would make it a true Church of Christ.

But the Russian Church today is different. It is said to have humbled its heart and to have become a true and living Church indeed. Its leaders realize the mistakes of those who went before, and they are trying now to do everything possible to fulfill their service to the Russian people. In Moscow, churches are said to be crowded, even though the antireligious communists do everything in their power to make and keep the Russian peoples atheistic.

In 1942 the Russian Church began every Sunday using a prayer, one sentence of which is as follows: "We beseech Thee to help on the work of reconciliation among nations, to heal their feeble witness, to our faith, stunted in opposition to Christianity."

The worst enemies of the Christian Church are those who claim to be Christian but who belie their pretensions. The only way we can win the world to Christian faith is by demonstrating in our daily lives that we adhere to that faith, and live up to its demands.

Judge Canada By Paintings

Financial Post

Some people like abstract paintings, others do not. But the two schools might agree that the abstract paintings of one country are sometimes a key to a set apart from those of another. Sometimes, but not always.

A collection of 60 modern Canadian paintings, mostly abstract, has been on view at the National Museum at Warsaw, Poland. And the Polish art critics, whose reviews have been collected and translated by the Polish Embassy in Canada, have found all manner of Canadian qualities in the canvases, like youth, vitality, exuberance.

All of the paintings at the bright colors, Canadian painters use, and Polish viewers find pleasurable excitement in the vivid reds, blues, oranges and purples. What a colorful country Canada must be, he says.

Is this how Canadians themselves talk about it? Is this the impression the painters wished to convey? Perhaps they would say to the critics, as artists without any recognizable nationality, that they have not been successful in this respect. But at least they seem to have persuaded the critics that Canada has a much brighter and livelier country than their own.

Papal Guards Need Recruits

National Geographic Society

The pope's most conspicuous subjects are the Swiss Guards, a picturesque group of soldiers who have served the papacy for 450 years. The Vatican Swiss Guards are recruited from Switzerland's Catholic cantons. Only Swiss citizens may apply, and they must be between 19 and 30 years old, unmarried, at least 5 feet 8 inches tall, and in good health.

The colorful costume they are required to produce a baptismal certificate and character testimonials from their Swiss civil authorities. He is expected to remain in the Guards for two years, but age he must give three months' notice.

The Swiss Guards have their own secluded community in the Vatican, where they live and take the barracks. Most speak a German dialect. They are subject to military discipline.

The corps has existed since 1506 when Pope Julius II and Leonne made a treaty with Swiss cantons. The agreement was brought to the Renaissance. The handsome young guardsmen of the Vatican are descended from battling with artists and sculptors.

On May 6, 1527, the Guards were virtually wiped out in defense of Pope Clement VII, but the soldiers' valiant stand gave Pope Clement time to take refuge in the Castel Sant' Angelo.

May 6 is still "Cores Day", the annual gala on which recruits are sworn in.

Sleeping is strong in the beginning, the Swiss Guards have had their ups and downs over the years. The bodyguards haven't fired a shot in anger since 1870 when Italian troops invaded the papal states. Although they saw considerable action in the Second World War, however, they carried automatic rifles.

Though many Swiss families have a long tradition of service in Guards, present-day youths are less attracted. In the old days, joining was a novelty, boys jumped at the chance to be Swiss.

Primarily the guardsmen are responsible for protecting the Pope and guarding palaces. In daily routine they collect admission coupons for the Vatican ceremonial posts at papal functions and accompany the Pope on his journeys. Swiss Guards are Gendarmerie in the Alban Hills.

Decoy Letter Ruled Legal

Windsor Star

Decoy letters to trap postal workers who steal valuables from the mails are legal, the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled in a 3-2 decision. There will be little disposition to disagree with this, however, by the individuals involved. The mails each year contain millions of public trust, and those who would break it need to be weeded out.

They know when the post office hires them that they have a risk for their services. Let it be said that the great majority of postal workers are scrupulously honest. The few who fall to temptation are the ones like not only rob the public but cause untold suspicion for their colleagues. It is not being vindictive to say they get what they get.

Various questions were shouted as planes were heard to remark: "Nothing happens until somebody gets mad." Yet city officers argue the full case, but be it noted, one of both the U.S. Congressman Thor Tollefson, thinks there is such a thing as getting too gentle.

Talking to a convention of pen and ink salesmen here, Tollefson said that the sale of a billion ballpoint pens a year "is free rubbish." Some pens might be all right if they all held up and were put to good use. He added:

"What is wrong is the public's habit of throwing away every desk drawer in the country".

Selling these pens fosters the product quickly winds up in the discard. All makers and sellers of good pens need to remember that quality products are what count.

To Your Good Health

Morton's Toe Named After Doctor Thomas G. Morton

Dear Dr. Molner: What about "Morton's Toe"? I drive a truck and sometimes the pain is so severe that I can hardly apply the brake.

I had a pair of arch supports fitted but the doctor claims my metatarsal arches are only increasing pain under my third and fourth toes, especially on my right foot, and that pressing on the bones started the trouble.

After seven months I still get pains every day. Is surgery the only cure? — C.R.

Morton's Toe (or Morton's Disease) is named after the surgeon, Thomas G. Morton, who first described this trouble — painful foot usually involving the base of the fourth toe.

The cause: Apparently a relaxed or faulty arch, causing pain as calluses on the ball of the foot, the bones pressing on the joint and perhaps pinches or irritates a nerve there.

Nerves affect, and, if present, a plaster wart (wart on the plantar part of the foot, or the callus aggravates things.

It's not surprising that people who have fallen arches or damaged foot is agonizing; I would doubt, though, that they are starting treated the trouble.

The first effects to alleviate the trouble include shoes built up with padding to support the arch. A metatarsal bar in the shoe sole sometimes helps. Exercises and massage, strengthen foot muscles, and hot applications to ease muscle spasm may be beneficial.

But when these are not enough, it sometimes is found that the pain is basically due to a neuroma, or tumor of the nerve in that part of the foot, and surgical removal of the tumor is the obvious recourse.

Dear C.R.: Is salt in pets after seven months with the special diet, I certainly would say the next visit should be to an orthopedist — a foot specialist. He may or may not find surgery advisable, but there's no reason why you should have to endure suffering.

Diarrhea: The occurs in both men and women, but more often in women, perhaps due to their different, which allows a little more support as men's. Besides, you know the reputation women have for cramming their feet into shoes a size too short or too narrow. Fortunately this usually doesn't occur until after age 30.)

Dear Dr. Molner: You haven't had a diet for chronic diarrhea. — J.W.

No, because, despite certain quacks, I don't think diet has anything to do with arthritis in the usual forms with which we have specifications:

1 — A high-protein diet helps, just as in almost any condition of health or fitness.

2 — If the patient is overweight, a reducing diet is desirable. Every pound of fat overweight sets off the painful joints.

3. A low-purine diet is

Capt. F. Woodcock Tells Advisory Board for Blind Of His Trip Around World

By GLADYS WARD

"No other country in the world can boast of a national organization for the blind like ours", Capt. F. J. L. Woodcock told the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind at its annual meeting in Trenton on Wednesday night. Captain Woodcock had visited many countries as a representative of the World Veterans' Federation, and recently returned from Bangkok, Thailand, where he attended the annual meeting of the Federation as a council member of the six organizations in Canada.

Captain Woodcock lost his sight and his hearing in one ear in the Dieppe raid of World War II. As platoon commander with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, he was attacking the town itself when a direct hit struck the leading craft. Capt. Woodcock was taken prisoner, was five days and months, and released on the first exchange of prisoners.

Travelling alone and blind presented many difficulties when the captain journeyed around the world, and the language discourses doubled the problems. As the National After-Care Officer for War Blinded, Capt. Woodcock was interested in discovering how the blind were treated in the various countries he visited.

In Greece he found that the blind were hidden, and it was only after great persistence that he was taken to a U.S. chicken farm managed by the blind. In Italy he visited a blind school which had been donated by some wealthy person. Norway had excellent facilities for the blind. Japan had a national training centre which combined adults and children for training. It also had a placement program there.

DISMISS DISABLED

The most shocking discovery he made was in Bangkok where a government law provided that anyone with a disability of any kind be dismissed from service. The people were friendly and polite, and most hospitable, and the Captain enjoyed the exotic food and visiting the temples and other interesting places.

"The World Veterans' Federation is still fighting, but this time for peace," said Capt. Woodcock. "The feeling back of it is that veterans should understand best what war means and they have instigated many forms of direct aid to underdeveloped countries. They try to siphon their help to the grass roots level. One project of the New Zealand group was to supply pumps for a land settlement scheme.

"Put yourself in the position of illiteracy which is common in these countries. You have nothing to lose. You believe any promise made by anyone. It is a breeding ground for Communism. Our organization makes no profits; we just have the satisfaction of trying to alleviate hardships."

"Col. Baker is known around the world for the work he has done with the blind. I came home feeling proud of Canada."

Chairman of the Board E. S. Fairman presided at the meeting which commenced with a banquet prepared and served by the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in Trenton.

Mr. N. M. Sprague offered the invocation, and Alderman Claude Graham extended a welcome on behalf of Mayor McDonald of Trenton. He sent his personal regrets for his absence, with the hope that the meeting would have beneficial results for the blind of the area.

Introduction of the head table and the Advisory Board was made by the chairman. Special guests included Robert Wright of the Canadian Legion, President McDonald of the Rotary Club, President Reid of the Kiwanis Club, and Chief Taylor of the Trenton police force.

GUESTS ON BOARD

Secretary Mrs. George Wishart reported that Mr. A. D. Archibald and Mrs. Leslie of Tweed, were retiring from the board. Their replacements were Mrs. C. W. Coleman and Mrs. Harvey Frid of Belleville and Mr. Merritt and Mrs. Hooker of Tweed.

Three people requested forms to will their eyes to the eye bank.

Mrs. Wishart read reports from Bancroft, Deseronto, Frankford, Madoc, Marmora, Shannonville and Stirling. Mrs. M. J. Walker reported for Foxboro, Mr. N. S. Sprague for Trenton, Mrs. Porritt for Tweed and Miss Myrtle Peck for Belleville. The reports showed that many groups had contributed to a successful year, including the IODE, Women's Institutes, Kinette Clubs and church groups. Visits were made to each blind person, and gifts were given at Christmas. Canvasses were undertaken in most communities.

The home teacher, Miss Virginia Phillpotts, reported that five people had attended the class in ceramics regularly, and in the fall when classes resumed they were going to learn the use of the potter's wheel. Her main duties were to teach crafts, Braille and Moon type, and to teach the newly-blind to accept their condition and to learn to substitute fingers for their eyes. Some mothers of blind children had asked to be taught Braille, as they could write to directly to their children at the Ontario School for the Blind in Brantford.

Assistant field-secretary Don Ferguson explained the dual purpose of the C.N.I.B., to provide special services for the blind, and to prevent blindness. The C.N.I.B. was anxious to know the cause of blindness, and to aid the visually handicapped, because sometimes these were just eye-service cases requiring glasses or an operation. Three types of reading were available. There was a wide selection in Braille, and in Moon type which had large characters impressed on heavy paper for some whose fingers were not sensitive enough to read Braille; and talking books, which were on records. The Board has several talking books on loan in the county. The library is going to switch to tape recordings which will makes it easier to operate.

The Belleville Transit Commission allows the blind to use the buses without charge. On taking a blind person and escort can travel on one ticket. They also have concessions from the theatres, where they are allowed free admission. Lake Joseph summer camp in Muskoka had 300 in attendance last year and more are expected this year. Rehabilitation services are given and employment training for young people.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

In his report Fred Secretary P. I. Thurston of Kingston paid tribute to the many people who contributed by making a successful year. The Lions' clubs, Kinsmen, Kinsmen Queens, Board members and many other organizations had contributed to the happiness and welfare of the blind. To measure success, one must consider rehabilitation, residential care, recreation and research. Since 50 per cent of blindness was due to preventable causes new ways of prevention were being explored. With educational programs and visual surveys, steady progress had been made in the past few years. The eye bank had been started, and the Wise Owl club of Canada for industrial workers had been formed. The National Council had decided on a tribute to Col. F. A. Baker, the F. A. Baker Foundation which would provide scholarships and funds for research into the prevention of blindness. The International Prevention of Blindness year for the less fortunate nations deserved support and understanding.

Mrs. J. Gould contributed to the program with a piano solo.

OFFICERS NAMED

Mr. T. J. Fleury brought in the new slate of officers for the nominating committee with the following results: immediate past chairman, Mr. E. S. Fairman; chairman, Mr. N. M. Sprague, Trenton; 1st vice-chairman, Dr. H. E. Welch; 2nd vice-chairman, Mrs. H. Rollins; 3rd vice-chairman, Mrs. R. G. Jackson; 4th vice-chairman, Mr. H. G. Frid; secretary, Dr. Joan Brookhill; treasurer, Miss Elinor Rollins; campaign treasurers, Mr. W. T. Simpson and Mr. T. W. Hetherington; welfare convener, Miss Myrtle Peck; public relations, Mrs. M. Since the new chairman lives in Trenton, it was decided that the signing officers for the Hastings County Advisory Board would be Dr. Welch, and Mr. W. T. Simpson.

The speaker for the evening was introduced by Mr. Fairman and appreciation was expressed by Dr. Welch, who also thanked the ladies of the church for providing an excellent dinner. Appreciation was also given to the city of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the Town of Trenton for their grants in recognition of the work for the blind.

Total registration of blind in Hastings County is 130.

The financial summary showed: total cost of all services; including Field Secretaries, Home Teacher, Office Staff, Driver, library, employment, residence supplementation, etc. for the blind under the Board's jurisdiction — $15,037.50.

BGH Social Service Director Gives Talk on Social Work

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Edmondson Hall, Belleville General Hospital, at 2.30 p.m. on May 15th. The president, Mrs. W. F. L. Jones, was in the chair.

Mrs. J. Buchan expressed her thanks to the Hospital Board for the luncheon they gave for the in-hospital volunteer workers and auxiliary on May 10th. Mrs. Buchan by courage presented to her at this luncheon.

Mrs. J. Casey, convenor of the Op" Shop, reminded all members that fabric, clothing, etc. is needed and would be accepted until the end of June. Pick-up service for donations can be arranged by phoning either Mrs. Casey, WO 8-6921 or the "Op" Shop, WO 2-6115.

Mrs. H. Murray reported on the excellent work being done by the Coffee Shop and its willing staff of volunteers.

Miss Alison MacEwen, director of Social Service at the Belleville General Hospital, was introduced by Mrs. J. Buchan. Miss MacEwen was born and brought up in Montreal.

She received her Bachelor of Arts Degree at Bishop's University, and her Master's in Social Work Degree at McGill. She has spent seven and a half years Miss MacEwen has been at the Montreal General Hospital as head social case worker, then as supervisor of social service.

Recently she joined the staff of the Belleville General Hospital as director of social service.

Miss MacEwen spoke to the interested audience that the old idea of social work enlisted the girl-next-door, or that of the bridesmaid, but smaller.

Today social work is helping people to help themselves. This is carried on on three levels — personal, family relation uses the natural groups in the community; group work promotes group work and the case worker deals with person-to-person work.

CASE WORKER

In person-to-person work the case worker is the chief instrument in helping help. She must have an adequate education to begin with, she must possess emotional equilibrium. The social worker must always give, never take; in dealing with her client and through discussion of the problem, help him make up his own mind.

In hospital work, with its emphasis on illness the social worker supports or helps with the medical staff.

Social problems are many, other times accentuated by it. Short term or chronic illness makes long term work with regular interview necessary to be of help to the patient.

In the team-work approach to hospital work, the doctor, nurse, therapist and psychologist fit their efforts to help the patient. At times the nurse is the best source of information for the problems involved and is the person who can begin treatment to combat these troubles. The social worker frequently works along with and through the nurse and in this way helps the patient get his social function better as a family unit.

VARIOUS TYPES CASES

There are various types of cases referred to a social worker in a hospital. First of all, there are patients with complicated medical problems, who must be aided over difficulties leading toward their eventual discharge from the hospital. Then there are patients with permanent physical handicaps, who are not so acute medically and At these illness may be aggravated by social problems which the worker can discuss with the patient. Aside from illness and handicaps, there are various kinds, such as marital or family problems, or distressed or overcome by problems. A patient's fear of treatment can be relieved by the social worker, whose aim is complete adjustment of her client to normal activity.

Miss Neville Berry, on behalf of the auxiliary, thanked Miss MacEwen for her most instructive talk on the work of the new department of the hospital.

The meeting closed with light refreshments.

Machpelah Rebekah Lodge Holds 'Outer Space' Tea

PICTON — Decorations were "out of this world" when Machpelah Rebekah Lodge held a social tea in the I.O.O.F. Hall Wednesday afternoon. The theme was, "Outer Space," with the "Pied-Et" tea honoring U.S. astronaut John Glenn. These famous teas have had many novel themes and are so popular reservations close days in advance.

On Wednesday, 280 guests were in a pleasant time in the rooms which appeared to be artistically decorated halls and rooms. On the stairway was a huge sun with a "Welcome" in yellow and white revealing what awaiting visitors would see: outer space, complete with planets from Venus, spruce from Mars, novelties from Jupiter, heavenly home baking and fancy work from Saturn. These gay booths were in the two hallways and offered a wide variety of items which sold very quickly.

At the foot of the stairs leading to the hall stood "John Glenn," a model in typical astronaut suit, with outstretched hand.

Long silver rockets pointed the way to the top where guests were welcomed by the Noble Grand Mrs. Garfield Whitney, vice-president Mrs. Ray Hicks, District Deputy president, Mrs. Raymond Perry, Jr., whose light colored dresses were enhanced by corsages of brown 'mums.

Silver predominated in the hall decorations. Clusters of star glittered beneath lights and there were giant white "sparklers" with silver tinsel antennae.

About the walls were clearly arranged stars and moons with glitter, and miniature rockets which appeared to be in flight. There were large globes of the world with space craft circling them, space helmets, and other items used in outer space travel.

The tables, with white cloths, were centred with large silver stars on which were placed a sputnik (apple wrapped in silver foil) with four rockets for antennae and colored life-saver (candy) Novelty napkins carried out the space theme.

As always the refreshments were in keeping with the high standards set by the Rebekahs.

A single strand of pearls, the gift of her bridegroom, was the bride's only ornament.

Miss Karen McGuire, Tweed, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, while Miss Carol Ann King, of Tweed, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Both were similarly attired in aqua rayon chiffon over taffeta fashioned with draped neckline, white hats and gloves. They carried crescent-shaped bouquets of roses tinted to match their dresses.

Miss Eloise McGuire of Tweed also a sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, wearing pink rayon over taffeta, with matching headdress. She carried a bouquet similar to that of the bridesmaid, but smaller.

The two little flower girls, Miss Karen Levick, of Tweed, and Miss Wendy Yanch of Toronto, were sweet in their short white frocks with aqua trimming headdresses, and carrying baskets of pink and white roses.

Mr. Maurice Courneyer of Tweed, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Messrs. Lorne Meeks, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, of Tweed, and Joseph Horrigan, uncle of the bride, ushered the guests.

Master Michael McGuire, of Tweed, brother of the bride was natty in long grey trousers and dark coat.

BGH Social Service Director Gives Talk on Social Work

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Edmondson Hall, Bellevile General Hospital, at 2.30 p.m. on May 15th. The president, Mrs. M. F. L. Morton, was in the chair.

Mrs. J. Buchan expressed her thanks to the Hospital Board for the luncheon they gave for the hospital volunteer workers on Hospital Day, and the lovely corsage presented to each.

Mrs. J. Carey, convenor of the "Op" Shop, reminded all members that donations were needed and would be gratefully received the end of June. Pink, blue and white articles can be arranged by phoning either Mrs. Carey 962-W-3 4-6931 or the 'Op' Shop, WO 2-3331.

Mrs. H. Murray reported on the excellent work being done by the Coffee Shop and its willing staff of volunteers.

Miss Alison MacIlwee, director of Social Service in the Belleville General Hospital, was introduced by Mrs. J. Buchan. Miss MacIlwee was born and brought up in Montreal.

She received her bachelor of Arts Degree at Bishop's University and her Master in Social Work at the University of Gill. For the past seven and a half years Miss MacIlwee has been at the Montreal Children's Hospital, first, as a Social Worker, then as supervisor of social service.

Miss MacIlwee outlined the staff of the Belleville General Hospital as director of the new department of social work.

Miss MacIlwee told her interesting address on the activities of social work entailed the giving of material aid on the part of the hospital. The social work is helping people to help themselves. This is carried on on three levels: community organization on which she is working in any community; group work promotes participation activity, and the case worker deals with person-to-person work.

CASE WORKER

In person-to-person work the case worker is the chief instrument in the process, he said. She must have an adequate education to begin with and must possess unaffected cordialness. The social worker observes the patient's home life, in dealing with her client and through discussion of the problem, helps the client to his own mind.

In hospital work, with its emphasis on illness the social worker operates as a team with the doctor.

Social problems are sometimes brought on by illness, other times accentuated by it. Long term or chronic illness becomes long term work that a regular interviewer necessary to be of help to the patient.

In the team-work approach to hospital social work, the doctor, the nurse, the therapist and psychologist join in their efforts to help the patient. At times the nurse is the best source of information about the problems involved with the person who can help most to combat these troubles. The social worker frequently works with the patient and his family and in this way helps the patient and his family unit.

VARIOUS TYPES CASES

There are various types of cases referred to a social worker in a hospital. First of all, there are patients with complicated medical problems who must be aided over difficulties leading toward their eventual discharge from the hospital. Then there are patients with unmanaged physical handicaps, who are not socially well- adjusted. At times illness may be aggravated by social problems, which the worker can discuss with the patient. Aside from illness itself, maladjustments of various kinds, such as marital or family problems, can be referred to become by proper help. A patient's fear of treatment can be relieved by the social worker, whose aim is complete adjustment of her to normal activity.

Miss Nellie Merry, on behalf of the auxiliary, thanked Miss MacIlwee for her most instructive talk on the work of the new department of the hospital.

The meeting closed with light refreshments.

Devotions opened with the Scripture lesson as read by Mrs. Heidebrecht. Mrs. Lindeman read an article concerning the merger following by prayer. Devotions closed with the singing of "The Church is One Foundation".

The Rev. J. Lindeman presented the topic of the meeting on the merger, giving many statistics to help to better understand this action. Before there were nine major Lutheran Church bodies and, at present there are six. The new church will be called the Lutheran Church in America, which is made up of four major Lutheran Church bodies. In the future there will be three major Lutheran Church bodies. One by reason of geographical barriers this union was unable to come about money.

Taking effect January 1st, the United Lutheran Church Women will be known as the Lutheran Church Women, with the executive being elected for two years also following the calendar year. There will be only three major committees.

Mrs. Guest gave her report of the 41st annual convocation of the Eastern conference, held May 9th at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Ottawa. There were 36 delegates and 172 visitors making a total of 210 people attending the convention, including five persons from Bellevile.

PICTON — Decorations were "out of this world" when Machpelah Rebekah Lodge held its annual tea in the I.O.O.F. Hall Wednesday afternoon. The theme was, "Outer Space." Centre piece was a model of the U.S. astronaut John Glenn. These famous teas have had many town themes and are very popular reservations close many weeks ahead.

QUESTION:

Could you please advise me? This concerns a roast of pork. I have given a rule 1 hour per pound at 325 deg., and still the last two patches through it but seems to be cooked. Have cooked one weighing 5½ lbs. as long as 6 hours and still it is red. What is the reason for this? If you set it, could it harm you? How long can you keep a roast of pork in the refrigerator or freezer part safely? — Mrs. Fairish L.

ANSWER:

I have had the same thing happen. The rule to go by is 30 to 35 minutes per pound. A very fat roast takes longer to cook than a lean cut, because heat penetrates fat more slowly than lean.

	Ready-to-Cook	Hours to Cook
	in lbs.	325 deg.
Loin	3 - 5	3-4
Shoulder	5 -8	3½-6
Ham, whole	10-24	3½-6
Ham, half	5 -12	4
Spareribs	3	2

If your pork is in the oven at 300 for above times it is well cooked and safe to eat. Fresh pork should not remain in freezer more than 4 to 6 months on the average.

Mutual Aid Association Holds Annual Dinner-Dance

DESERONTO—This year the annual banquet and dance of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Mutual Aid Association was held in Deseronto with the Deseronto Fire Department as hosts. Almost 180 firemen and their wives and friends from the various departments gathered for the highlight of Mutual Aid activities in this area.

The guest speaker was introduced by Deseronto Fire Chief Ed Sweetnam, who also welcomed and appointed by the Deseronto Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion who catered for the supper. Full justice was given a bountiful supply of turkey, done to perfection, and served with a full complement of the trimmings.

Following the dinner, Mayor Sweetnam paid tribute to the Deseronto firemen for their active participation in Mutual Aid activities and their initiative in outfitting themselves with new equipment.

Warden Fox of Prince Edward County, thanked Chief for the great service being done the communities by the Deseronto firemen. He told of how readily his council agreed to the formation of a "team basis" for the use of firemen in case of an emergency in that county.

Warden Varty of Hastings county, praised the volunteer firemen for their most important and obedient role in the welfare of the public. He compared volunteer firemen to the former fire fighters that were retired to a milk route, freed from the hazards except to the milk wagon. He said volunteers could be compared to that hero when there was the alarm sounded the volunteer dropped whatever he was doing to answer the call for help. He also told of how pleasing the Hastings County council were to be asked to assist in the formation of a team basis because it was an expenditure that would repay the cost in the initial fold in time of an emergency.

The main speaker for the evening was Arthur Duncan of Batawa. From the moment of his opening remarks this past master of the art of public speaking had his audience eagerly anticipating his every word. He expertly combined the things with his witty remarks and, from the eager and gusty applause, it was manifest that his talk was too short.

DANCING ENJOYED

Following the dinner the tables were cleared from the floor and dancing was enjoyed by the crowd until the midnight hour. So great was the enthusiasm that not one couple left before the playing of the honor waltz.

Well, he called here and he's a nice enough chap, But I can't walk out with him. It's not that he's short, He's of average height, It's me. I'm afraid to have to bend down to talk to him. I feel like a mother that has him he's a good boy! I just don't get that "protected" feeling a girl wants when she's with Ray was polite enough to ask me out, but I wouldn't relish getting a stiff neck from looking up at me. And to whisper, I'd have to stand on tiptoe!

Mother don't worry.: I'm sure there's a big guy I can be comfortable with, who'll also have the virtues, she mentioned.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. D.L. — She's too conscious of her height.

Carol L. — I have six feet of it to be conscious of!

Mrs. D.L. — I have a beautiful daughter, 23 years old, who is married and divorced when it comes to one thing — meal. Whenever we ask her to meet someone nice we've heard of, she only makes one condition about him. "How tall is he?" Nothing about his brains, looks, the formation of a team basis character, disposition of the because it was an expenditure that would repay the cost in the initial fold in time of an emergency.

The Council: We've heard, alas, of "dying by inches," but Carol's Carol will die by inches and lets them keep her miles away from the important things in life. There, including a varied and stimulating social life, seem to be passing her by. And all because she has never come to terms with, never accepted, her own "inadequacy-complex." Instead, she lets it block her.

Since self-acceptance is the first law of good mental health, Carol may require psychological counselling to achieve it. But if she's as bright as her mother claims, maybe she can resolve her cockeyed scale of values by herself. What she needs is some of the philosophy of Pepper (fancy our quoting him to a smart girl!) who states: "I am what I am 'cause dat's what I am" — and then goes on to other matters.

Once Carol is at peace about herself, she'll realize that going out with men is a person-to-person proposition, not a public deal, rather than just what sort of figure the pair will cut before Mom and Dad. After all, in the long hard stretches of a marriage, it doesn't matter a jot whether, because both will have to do lots of bending. Thus it is how well matched they are portant. It's what's inside the frame which counts. As well as her suitors, must check up on.

This is not to say that we do not sympathize with Carol. Her problem is an outgrowth of today's era in which conformity types, including the backsweep tail-boy tiny-girl perfect couple ideal, makes a sweet but clear vision and common sense of the real requirements of acceptable love, regardless of footwear pair up devotedly for life. Face to face, they see eye to eye!

Ladies, No Law Against Holding Tea Party for Your Favorite Candidate

OTTAWA (CP) — Go ahead and hold your meet-the-candidate party, ladies, it won't land you in the jokey.

Under the Canada Elections Act, as revised at the 1960 session of Parliament, it is permissible for anyone to stage a party at which a federal by election candidate is guest of honor.

While this holds for the June 18 election, it wasn't always so cut and dried. In fact, during previous campaigns a good many people approached such parties with trepidation.

The act makes it an indictable offence, punishable by a fine of $2,000 or two years in jail, or both, to "corruptly give a person "meat, drink, refreshment or provision" for the purpose of influencing his vote.

Many thought this could be construed as prohibiting social gatherings where refreshments were served and a candidate was present. The quandary was resolved when the act was amended specifically to allow tea gatherings, although that name wasn't used.

FOOD AND DRINK

The amendment excludes from the regulation a candidate's regular meal, his election expense, "provides food such as sandwiches, cakes, cookies, and drink such as tea, coffee, milk or soft drinks at a meeting of electors assembled for the purpose of promoting the election of a candidate."

Also excluded is "any person other than an official agent who at his own expense" provides such light refreshment at a meeting of electors.

At a meeting of the Commons committee which recommended the change, Richard A. Bell, Progressive Conservative MP for Carleton, said that all sections of the act this was probably broken more often than any other.

"I should think if this were enforced in its own terms, there probably would not have a member in the House of Commons today."

Another rule that has been abolished is one saying a candidate could not hire taxis to drive voters to the polls. However, it is still unlawful for anyone to pay a voter directly or indirectly for his or her conveyance, or for any loss of wages or earnings incurred in casting his ballot.

Sunday School Lesson

A Matter of Morals

By ROY L. SMITH

Throughout the Roman world of the first Christian century there was a belief that mankind was living at the end of an age, and that some terrible cataclysm was impending which would mean the destruction of civilization or at least its complete revision.

Into this atmosphere the early Christian Church came with its doctrine of an early return of Jesus who was to remake the world and establish what Jesus had called "The Kingdom of Heaven." The announcement of such by the Christians was met with ridicule in some quarters, indifference in others, and skepticism in still others.

The first generation of Christians believed that the Second Coming was to occur during their lifetime, but when that did not happen according to schedule, the second generation began to doubt. Then scoffers inside and outside the Church began to attack the integrity of the Church, the early leaders, and those who had been responsible for the spread of the doctrine.

By the time the scripture of this week's lesson was written the whole matter had become critical. And our author is trying to stem the tide of doubt and skepticism.

UNDERLYING ISSUE MORAL

In many instances, however, the underlying problem was one of morals. A considerable body of Christians had grown tired of the disciplines that inevitably imposes upon the life of the individual, and thousands of those outside the Church were critical because the Church was constantly confronting them with moral demands they were unwilling to accept.

That which they declared was an intellectual problem—the impossibility of accepting the Christian doctrine of the Second Coming—was actually a refusal to accept the personal moral disciplines that Christianity and the Church imposed.

The problem is also modern. A young man of my acquaintance from one of the great universities challenged me, following a lecture in the University Chapel, saying, "I would like to be a Christian, but I cannot believe in the Second Coming, the Virgin Birth, the deity of Jesus, and a lot of other things that the Church teaches."

I had heard some of these statements before, coming from other students, and I thought I therefore approached the young man from what proved to be an unexpected angle. "Suppose it were possible," I said, "to show me to produce documentary evidence, signed by Mary herself, which proved that Jesus was miraculously born. Would you then be willing to commit your life to His leadership, and would you be willing to pattern your life after His, fulfilling all His moral requirements?"

The young man seemed to be quite honest, and he proved to be utterly frank. Confronted with the real issue, he replied: "No sir, I do not think I would. You see, there are some things in my life I would have to clean up, if I were to admit Jesus Christ to the mastery of my life, and I am not ready to do that."

Face to face with the real issue, he showed his true colors. His was not an intellectual, but a moral problem.

EVERY DAY A JUDGMENT DAY

It is a common practice with a certain type of evangelist to lay great emphasis on the doctrine of the Judgment Day. It was said of the preaching of Jonathan Edwards that thousands of men went to heaven with their hair standing on end. And there is a legitimate place in Christian preaching for some of the element of fear. But at least we ought to face a simple fact. Every day is a Judgment Day.

A young man who had played fast and loose with his marriage vows came to his pastor with an honest statement: "Yesterday has caught up with me." Another youth, similarly entangled, said, "I have played the fool." And an older man who had lived barely inside the law for 20 years admitted: "I had it coming."

The complexes which introduce slavery into our lives are of our own making. The evil we think eventually comes home to roost. These things do not "need to be argued; they are experienced. They are not theory; they are fact. And the sooner we face the facts the sooner we can hope for redemption.

The International Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 20 is "The Day of the Lord," Psalms 135; 2 Peter; 3 Jude.

Teen-Age Canada

These 'Guards' Are Guides

By JACK HUTTON

"It's pretty hard to avoid being impressed by Canadian history around here," 19-year-old Don Elliott told me. "It's all around you."

He spoke against a background of cannons, blockhouses, parapets and uniforms that all date back to the last time Canada was at war with the United States.

This week I visited Fort George in the Niagara peninsula of Southern Ontario and found several teen-agers who have their summer jobs all carved out.

Don and two other "guards" will guide thousands of American tourists, vacationing school children and others this summer around the fort which was originally built in 1797.

Enlarged by Gen. Sir Isaac Brock in 1813, the fort was captured by an American force May 25, 1813, and recaptured by the British in December, 1813. It has been recreated for tourists.

"This is my third year here," said Don, a Grade 13 student at nearby Niagara District High School. "And I guess I know this fort like the back of my hand by now. I can close my eyes and see each blockhouse."

His job (which will continue on weekends only until school is out) is to stand just inside the massive fort gates and make sure tourists have bought tickets outside. All summer he will wear the red jacket and cap of an 1813-1814 British soldier.

Who visit the fort most often?

"We get mainly Americans here," said Don. "It's strange that a lot of people living 50 or 30 miles away have never seen the fort, but American tourists always make it a point to come in."

FOINTED CANNONS

The cannons of the fort still point across the Niagara River in the direction of the old American fort, Fort Niagara, where American forces threatened Upper Canada during the War of 1812-1814.)

"It's funny how many of them didn't know about Fort George—or the number who have never even known that we and they were once at war," said Don.

"Those who do know agree that we won the war. But once again there are a few who will argue pretty hotly that they did. My only comeback is to ask them who's still in this fort. That stops the conversation right away."

The fort, which strategically controlled the Niagara peninsula during the brief war, bears evidence of past drama—a powerhouse almost blown up by lucky American shots, the two guardhouse cells, and the stocks in the compound.

What I asked, most impressed Don after three summers spent studying the story of a war which happened 150 years ago?

"I think it would be the officers' quarters," said Don. "The furniture in them still would look very good beside anything we have today. I wouldn't mind at all having a room like they had."

(One story about Fort George is that American officers were dining on the Canadian side of the river when war was declared; their polite British hosts insisted they finish eating before going back to Fort Niagara.)

My final question to Don was, "Have you decided what you want to do after you finish school?" I should have expected his prompt and firm answer.

"I want to be a high school teacher," he said. "And I'll teach history."

THEATRE THRIVING

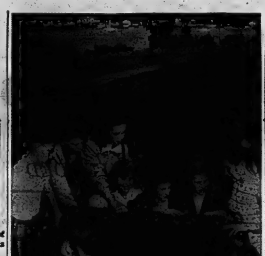
Our East coast friends tell us that too many people overlook the music which young people are producing there.

"Road House"—the only teen-age dance hall in Newfoundland—is offering four hours of music every Saturday afternoon in St. John's, Nfld.

Two hours of this are broadcast and usually mean a surprise for listeners. Samples: local bands have shown up and one program featured a twist instructor. Several local groups are excellent.

Names to watch from Newfoundland: Mary Lou Collins, a 17-year-old who started recording at the age of 9 and has carved out a blossoming singing career; the Lincolns, a group of high school musicians, and the Ravens, an often-heard group in their early 20's.

PANHANDLING BLUES



Have you heard the one yet about the chap stopped by a panhandler who wanted 25 cents for a cup of coffee. "What's going on?" asked the gentleman. "Don't you know coffee's only a dime?"

"I know," said the bum. But I've got a date."

WELL EQUIPPED

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—The New Zealand battalion stationed in Malaya could probably move easily even if army transport were withdrawn. Cars are cheap in Malaya and when the battalion due to return shortly after a two-year stay there, 160 soldiers have given notice they wish to ship their cars back with them.

Housing Hints

Q. How much of a down payment is required when building under the National Housing Act?

A. Basically the borrower must provide the difference between the amount of the approved NHA loan and the full cost of the house and lot. CMHC requires that all applicants and purchasers must provide a minimum equity of 5% from their own resources. For a homeowner applicant the minimum equity is 5% of the value or lending value established by CMHC and for a home purchaser the minimum equity is 5% of the purchase price. It would certainly be to the borrower's advantage to provide from his own savings as large a down payment as possible. Secondary financing sometimes spells trouble for new homeowners.

Q. How is an NHA loan repaid?

A. The arrangements provided under the National Housing Act for repaying a loan are one of the major benefits offered to prospective homeowners. Generally, loans are repaid over a period of 25 years, but the Act also provides for 20, 30 and 35 year loans. This long period for repayment has brought home ownership within the financial range of thousands of families who might not otherwise have been able to build or buy a home of their own. Payments are made in equal monthly instalments covering principal and interest plus one-twelfth of the estimated municipal taxes for the year.

No Need for Embarrassment

DEAR DORIS:—My husband took me to a Legion dance where everyone knows one another. When it came to the first dance, my husband decided to help sell tickets. I sat three quarters of the first dance out when another bashful gentleman asked my husband if he could dance with me. My husband said he could, so we finished this dance.

I felt very embarrassed as this was the first dance, but my husband said this was quite in order. I am still wondering, so please let me hear from you. — DORIS CLARK

EMBARRASSED.

DEAR EMBARRASSED — Be glad your husband carries his share of the load—and takes care of you too. Other people will take their cue from you. No need whatever to be embarrassed—just proud.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Two of our favorite high school teachers are leaving this year and we would like to get each of them a present. One is a music teacher and the other a French teacher who is getting married.

Have you any suggestions as to what we could get them within the limited budget of a student? ANN.

DEAR D AND L—It depends on how much money you have to spend. A gift which is often given to people in such positions as teachers is a leather briefcase. Since the French teacher is getting married, a gift for her home would be appropriate, such as a little bedside clock, a pretty serving plate, book ends, or a cup and saucer. If the teacher enjoys reading, you could give an order on a book store for the amount of money you can afford.

If all these ideas are far too expensive, there is nothing wrong with buying a half dozen handkerchiefs bearing the initial of the recipient.

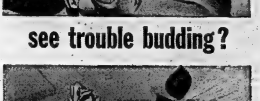
Farewell Gift Presented By Friends

2ND OF SIDNEY — On Saturday evening neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny McEwen to wish them well before moving east of Napanee to a larger farm.

There was no program prepared as everything happened so suddenly. The older people just visited with each other while the young people listened to record player.



Mrs. Wilbert Hart read an address to Johnny and Ilean wishing them success in their new venture and hoping they would be happy in their new home.

A beautiful rocker in scarlet was presented to the McEwen family by Mr. Orm Moran, on behalf of Johnstown and the 2nd of Sidney.

Mrs. McEwen thanked everyone saying she, as well as Johnny, greatly appreciated it and asked all to come and see them in their new home.

Fleming Appeals to U.S. And Europe for Equitable Solution of Market Problem

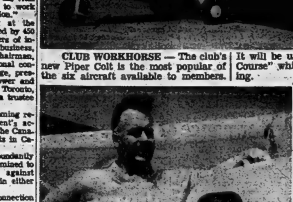
By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

NEW YORK (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming appealed to the United States and European countries Thursday night to "work for an equitable solution" of Britain's application to join the Common Market.

Addressing an annual economic meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, in the Canadian minister traced the development of Commonwealth trade, stressing that many Commonwealth countries are dependent on Britain as a market for their products.

Fleming declared:

"In the absence of effective safeguards there can be no doubt that the economies of many members of the Commonwealth would be seriously affected, and this raises questions as to whether the Commonwealth as a vital instrument in international co-operation and as a source of strength in the free world might not be seriously impaired.



"I should think that it is clearly in the best interests of the United States as the leader of the free world and of our European partners in the defence of freedom to see that this does not happen.

"Surely it would be the height of folly to allow narrow interests to paralyse action or blind doctrine to stand in the way of a fair and equitable solution of a kind which would not be imposed.

This weekend is "open house", for the Prince Edward Flying Club and the general public is invited, to attend the club's displays at the Picton Airport on Sunday. The program is planned to coincide with the Canadian Flying Clubs across Canada this weekend to show the public just what activities they promote. Free plane rides are being offered to club members.

The local club has a membership of almost 300 people from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Tamworth, Tweed, Stirling, Madoc, Napanee and surrounding communities in the area and many walks of life are represented.

It is a non-profit organization dedicated to the promotion of flying in Canada, especially private and commercial pilot training and light aircraft operations. Besides training the novice there are a number of activities for qualified pilots to improve their ability. Night flying, instrument flying and cross country flights are a part of this advanced training.

Franco May Have Hard Time Keeping Lid on Iberian Kettle

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Social tensions resulting from a clash between the the world and the new form the background for the series of strikes now agitating Spain, western dictatorship.

For those who remember the civil war—and no mature spaniard can forget the indiscriminate killing of those dreadful days—there is chilling significance in the fact that the present unrest erupted in the coalfields of Asturias, the northwestern province that was the cradle of the pre-war conflict.

Franco, who has held the iron world started July 20, 1936, when he led the Nationalist rebellion. Liberalization, United States and other Western governments have given dollar aid totalling $421,000,000.

The economy has boomed, investors today are looking to Spain for a mimic economic miracle, smaller but similar to the revival in Germany, Japan and Italy. But industrialization has made rapid strides—but inflation twists the screw on low-paid workers.

Up to now, this has been bottled up by police repression. There seems to be an anti-machiavellist philosophy.

The regime may be changing in the last few years, some 120,000 Spaniards have left Spain for West Germany, Italy, Switzerland and France. Skilled workers left behind can thus command higher wages, leaving employers with the choice of greater grievances.

Spain's important industrial force jobs with middle - class liberal groups resentful of the reactionary grip of the army. The army, Franco may have a hard time keeping the lid on the liberal kettle.

OMA Endorses Saskatchewan Doctors' Stand

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association Thursday night passed a motion endorsing the stand of Saskatchewan doctors who have resigned from the provincial Medical Care Insurance plan.

The resolution said the act "has been manipulated to the point of civil conscription on both subscriber and doctor . . . and prevents the doctors in Saskatchewan from practising medicine outside the act of which they disapprove."

It added the doctors' actions "are entirely justifiable" because they were designed to protect professional and individual freedom.

Howie Young Remanded on Assault Count

KITCHENER (CP)—A charge of assault causing bodily harm against Howie Young, former Detroit Red Wings defenceman, may have been mixed up in a fracas during a Memorial Cup playoff here, was adjourned Thursday to May 28.

Young is charged with assaulting Police Sgt. Camden Bignell May 8 during a game between Hamilton Red Wings and Edmonton Oil Kings in the Canadian junior hockey final.

Sgt. Bignell, who attended the game with his son, said the hockey player, who spent much of last season with Edmonton of the Western League, jumped on him, punched him, tried to gouge his eyes and bang his head on a cement floor.

He said he was attending the game with his son when he saw Young standing on a railing trying to catch Ritee being thrown on the ice.

Sgt. Bignell said Young was being escorted out by a special constable when a scuffle took place between Young and Hamilton coach Eddie Bush.

BURDENED TESTIMONY

Sgt. Bignell added that Bush bumped into Young pushing him against a wall. The officer said as he went to see whether he could help, a fist was made for a policeman to report to the Hamilton bench.

After getting a hold on Young's arm, Sgt. Bignell said he was pushed in the eye by a hockey stick wielded by an Edmonton player. Then "I either tripped on the mat or Young's leg and fell with both arms under me."

"The accused jumped on top of me and started punching me. With his left hand he tried to gouge my eye, nose, and mouth then grabbed my hair and bounced my head on the cement floor. I came to in the dressing room."

Sgt. Bignell said he was taken to hospital and returned to work on May 14.

Auditorium manager H. M. Crosby testified Young swore at him as he and other officials pulled him off the ailing Crosby, whose description of the crowd as "bush leaguers" brought laughter in the court, said he had no complaint so far as the police. The fracas broke out as he was telephoning.

Fare-Cutting On Railways Encouraging

HALIFAX (CP) — Early results from the Canadian National Railways' fare - cutting program designed to get vacationers back aboard passenger trains "have been encouraging," railway officials said Thursday.

Faced with dwindling traffic in the age of the family car and jet aircraft, the publicly-owned railway launched an experimental fare scheduled May 1 that cut ticket prices as much as 33 per cent on the main line between Montreal and Halifax and on all other routes in the Maritimes.

The first two weeks saw passenger jumps as much as 115 per cent, and extra equipment was hustled into use to handle the traffic. On some days the load factor was 100 per cent.

"The results have been really encouraging," said H. C. Grayson, vice - president of the CNR's Atlantic region. "It's the best news we've heard in a long time."

The CNR says many passengers interviewed by railway officials took the train because the fares were so low it would cost more to drive their cars over the same distances.

EXTRA PASSENGER CARS

On some lines the increases have exceeded the railways' expectations. One Halifax-to-St. John train carried 119 per cent more passengers than it did a year ago.

Dining car crews on the ocean limited served 107 per cent more than in the same period last year.

Three types of fares, depending on the day of travel, are offered and all are cheaper than previous fares.

One-way rail tickets for coach travel between here and Montreal cost $13, compared to $29.35—cheapest available previously.

21 Ridings To Nominate On May 22

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-one electoral constituencies, covering more than 30 per cent of Canada's land area but only six to seven per cent of her population and eligible voters, hold official nominations Tuesday, May 22, for the June 18 federal election.

Nominations in the other 262 of the 283 constituencies, two of which return two members apiece, close Monday, June 4, two weeks before the election.

The Canadian Elections Act fixes close of nominations in the large, scattered constituencies for four weeks in advance of the vote. However, it also provides for a shift to the following day in event the scheduled Monday is a holiday—thus it's Tuesday this time because of the Victoria Day holiday.

The extra two weeks is needed in the 21 constituencies, lying across the northern part of the country, to get voters' lists printed and then to deliver them and other election supplies in areas where snow is not virtually no land transportation facilities.

COVER VAST AREA

The largest in area of 3,085,753 square miles, slightly more than four-fifths on Canada's total area of 3,851,809 square miles. However, their population at the 1961 census of 2,282,384 was slightly under seven per cent of the Canadian total of 18,238,247. Number of eligible voters for the June 18 is not yet known. In the last election, 1958, voters' lists for the 21 showed 549,051 eligible, slightly more than six per cent of the Canadian total of 9,131,000.

The largest is Ontario, which stretches from Lake Superior to Hudson Bay, has the biggest population for an area of 412,582 square miles.

Others in the 21 include Cochrane-North and Kenora-Rainy River in Ontario.

Advance unofficial nominations for the 21 constituencies show a field of at least 88 candidates which may be increased when nominations close Monday.

Conservatives and Liberals are contesting all 21 seats.

The New Democratic Party has 15 candidates listed so far, including Douglas Fisher in Port Arthur. There are also two Social Credit candidates and two Communists.

Prince Philip Unveils Plaque At University

MONTREAL (CP) — Prince Philip unveiled a plaque at the University of Montreal Thursday and left for Newfoundland.

The Duke of Edinburgh will "study" of industrial communities, Queen's privy council.

The conference, a 23 - day tour, is expected to be made from June 6 in Vancouver, is conducted by the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

Mr. Fairbank told delegates that the Canadian people must have a minimum of "guarantees of their rights" were measurably only in Quebec.

The general atmosphere outside Quebec seems "one of increasing concessions and the French-Canadian is always faced by the long-drawn discussions over near-Albertaism that greet every measure looking for more bilingualism, as happened for stamps or money."

New Contract for 8,200 Workers of 66 Southern Trucking Firms Agreed On TORONTO (CP) — Union and company representatives Thursday reached agreement on a new contract for 8,200 workers of 66 Southern Ontario trucking companies.

The men, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) will vote on the new agreement May 27.

A vote in favor would bring to an end months of bargaining that started after the previous contract expired Sept. 1 last year.

Agreement was reached Thursday when union and company representatives met to consider recommendations brought down Wednesday by a federal conciliation board.

The companies, represented by the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, agreed to accept the report.

Union representatives agreed to present the proposals to the membership with a recommendation, at meetings to be held May 23 to 27.

A joint press statement released after the meeting said:

The union has also agreed ... to maintain a no-strike position during the course of these proceedings."

Besides the conciliation board's recommendation, it was decided that all conditions previously agreed to would be included in the contract.

IN FIVE LOCALS

The 8,200 men affected are members of five Teamsters locals: Local 91, based in the Kingston area; Local 141, Oshawa; Local 879, Hamilton; Local 880, Windsor; and Local 938, Toronto.

The conciliation board recommended a wage increase of 20½ cents an hour for skilled mechanics, 25½ cents for dockmen and checkers, and 24½ cents for all other hourly-paid employees. The increases would be spread over the next three years. In addition, the board recommended a lump sum payment of $60 to all employees covered in the previous contract.

Improved fringe benefits are included in the proposals.

Waldorf-Astoria Employees End Wildcat Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Service employees ended a strike at the Waldorf-Astoria Thursday, and the world-famed hotel quickly was restored to its routine of elegance for its 1,000 guests.

Wednesday, its public rooms, rests were closed, and 8a banquet room put plenk-and-wicker baskets for guests who paid up to $30 a plate for this meagre fare.

The strike began Sunday in a dispute over fringe benefits, tips, and snowplilled Tuesday into a fully settled wildcat walkout of some 900 waiters, bartenders, bellhops, chamber maids, elevator operators and kitchen help.

The result was quiet chaos, a catch-as-catch-can problem at hotel life such as never before confronted the stately Waldorf. Clerical and supervisory employees kept the hotel functioning for two days.

The worst weekend ever at the Waldorf began Saturday when waiters walked out for 90 minutes in protest over having to pass the plate for banquet tips in the grand ballroom. They demanded a flat percentage of banquet receipts as their tip.

A compromise was reached. But again on Tuesday the waiters walked out after eight of the union officials called a new repeatal for the Sunday demonstration. This time they were joined in sympathy by other service employees.

The New York Hotel Trades Council, the over-all union organization for the service employees, condemned the strike as unauthorized from the outset. It finally persuaded the strikers to return to their jobs at the end of the eight walkout.

Negotiations under conciliation procedure.

Food Shortages Plague Eastern Europe, Balkan Countries in Bad Shape

VIENNA (AP)—Eastern European countries face a grim economic fact of Communist life: There is not enough food.

Though not on the verge of starvation as in Red China, many people in the once fertile rich Balkan countries seem worse off today than they were before communism took over.

A survey "shows two factors responsible: farm collectivization in general and this year's bad weather in particular.

With the exception of Poland —which has no collectivization Czechoslovakia is the only one throughout Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union has been compelled to admit agricultural failures.

Albania — Heavy rains delayed spring planting. In some areas, tractors could not be used for planting and the government appealed to farmers to use oxen.

Bulgaria — The government announced a large-scale campaign to increase wheat production to remedy an acute shortage. Bulgaria for years some 750,000 acres are to be made available for growing feed grains. The regime admitted that this year's production of meat, milk and eggs will be insufficient to feed the population. Wool is also in short supply.

Czechoslovakia — President Antonin Novotny announced that large quantities of food will have to be imported to spread while the country's agricultural resources have not been fully developed and nearly complete collectivization. Bad weather this year was followed by an unprecedented cold spell. Communist Party leader Rudolf Slansky admitted meat shortage, among other things, was caused by cattle dying from delayed wheat sowing in some areas.

Hungary—Premier Janos Kadar recently disclosed a split in leadership over farm policy. Old methods and timing of farm collectivization, which were imposed with the 95 - per - cent mark last March. Fodder shortages was blamed for the drop in meat production. Prices for vegetables and fruit were 15 to 20-per-cent higher than last year.

Rumania — Although farm production is running 50 per cent years ahead of the 1965 schedule, President Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej reported that the government is depending on the remaining 5.9 per cent of privately-owned farm plots as meat, milk and vegetable producers. A substantial number of cows, many pulled into the spring weather did severe damage to autumn-sown grain and collective farmers installed double shifts to save the crop.

Welland Youth Implicates Two In Robbery

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Welland youth Thursday implicated Joseph Osborne, Welland man in an armed robbery after his mother began screaming in court that her son's lawyer were not involved in it.

Gerald Larable, 18, convicted of the charge of armed theft was sentenced to two years less a day in reformatory. He was ordered to testify on a similar charge against Mr. Osborne and John Rand they all took part in the $460 robbery of a Simpsons-Sears here Feb. 14. Saturday, he first said that the two others were not involved but Osborne and Bill Hackett of Welland.

Mrs. Osborne called the lawyer Larable, a widow, cried "Oh Gerry" several times. She was removed from court by hysterics. Her shouts were heard throughout the building.

Larable was then led in tears to his mother's witness room.

Recalled to the Crown, Larable testified it was Rand and Osborne who were involved. He said he invented the other names.

The youth told Assistant Crown Attorney A. J. Baker-Beall that Osborne took the Essance company, Rand armed with a sawed-off shotgun. He said they later divided the money into three $150 shares.

Larable told Mr. Baker he was afraid of Osborne and Burman. He said he initially gave false testimony because he received $150 in exchange from Rand, while in the local jail that "if I didn't say that, he'd kill me."

TV—Radio Column

Television to Give Repeat Performance of Spaceflight

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, which did such a well-planned job of covering John Glenn's space voyage has a repeat performance in the trip of the Aurora 7. The number of network commentators—and much of the color and technique used—will be the same, just the date will be different, astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter.

This reporter proposes to watch the take-off from Cape Canaveral. Then I shall follow the flight with the help of radio which is able to cover the progress of the capsule just as well, even if it doesn't employ lights and moving arrows to demonstrate the way the space ship is travelling.

When Glenn was zipping around the world, television had the largest audience in its history. This time it may be radio's turn.

ABC's Howard K. Smith, in his program Wednesday night, took a look at his own industry, television, and its problems. Although he talked fast, Smith did not seem able to solve television's difficulties with the ease he invariably displays in coping with foreign relations, the national economy or Algerian outbreaks.

In fact, the best Smith could offer was the hardly original suggestion that television have more programs like Close-Up, CBS Reports and White Paper. Then, like starring great prestige for the network that broadcasts each, have not proved to be big audience-grabbers.

Turley Tosses Three-Hitter

Yankees Nudge Sox, Share Lead

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just when it was needed most, the New York Yankees' balance of hitting crew put an exhilarating lift in the American League sweepstakes from two hapless prospects who this time topflighter battling his way back up and a brand new ballgame ace.

Bob Turley and Marshall Bridges collaborated on a sparkling three-hitter Thursday as the Yankees squeezed by Boston Red Sox 3-1 and into a share of the league lead with Cleveland Indians.

Turley, making his first start since last July, allowed only two singles over seven innings and Bridges, although momentarily layroed by a line drive that ricocheted off his head, fielded up for the victory. Throwing right-hander Gene Conley lost a tough one when the Yanks got to him for tainted runs in the final two innings.

In the only other AL game scheduled, Baltimore Orioles hammered the rookie who can't hit them two weeks ago, beating Bo Belinsky and Los Angeles 6-4 although the getting without a hit for the last six innings.

BAD LONG FUSE

In the six games prior to the masterful Turley-Bridges performance, the Yanks lost four as their pitching was shelled for 40 runs and their drive to take early command of the pennant chase was stopped cold.

Turley made three brief relief stints this season before drawing Thursday's big assignment. Powerful and poised, he faltered only in the second when singles by Jim Pagliaroni and Gary Geiger and Carroll Hardy's sacrifice fly produced the lone Boston run.

Turley was lifted in the eighth for pinch-hitter Roger Maris, out of the regular line-up with a pulled leg muscle. Maris flied out, but the Yanks went on to gain the tying run. Joe Pepitone, who had three of the five New York hits, started the rally with a double and went to third on a wild pitch. Tom Tresh followed with another double.

Mickey Mantle walked against the hard-luck Conley in the ninth, raced to third on a stolen base, coupled with Pagliaroni's bad throw to second and scored the winner on Elston Howard's fly.

IN BADLY BEATEN

Belinsky, boasting an impressive 5-0 record that included the May 4 no-hitter against the Orioles, was soundly trounced at Baltimore Thursday night. The colorful southpaw gave up a walk and successive homers to Jackie Brandt (Boog) Powell and Jackie Brandt in the first and was lifted after doubles by Jerry Adair and Gus Triandos plus a walk in the third.

Brandt quickly delivered Baltimore's fifth and last hit of the game—a decisive two-run double against Dean Chance.

TV DEBUT

James Mitchum, son of movie star Robert Mitchum, makes his TV debut in an episode titled Genesis on CBS TV Have-Gun, Will Travel, next September.

use LAWN BOY

Lawn-Boy gives your lawn the close-clipped, broadleom look of a putting green because it cuts grass properly. Lawn-Boy's blade is part of the secret. It's made of case-hardened spring steel (like butcher knives) to give you a keen, long-lasting edge that cuts, not rips. Each blade has a special stiffener that stops the turning force from bending it, keeps it level to cut level. Blade height adjusts easily. With most models, you can buy a new grasscatcher that works like a vacuum cleaner to clean as you cut! The result is a lawn that's not just cut . . . but perfectly cut. Your Lawn-Boy dealer will show you.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The worst you can say about the Belleville Fish and Game Association is that President Jack Layzell and his merry men are not easy-going. They do not go around saying other association's projects. No sir, they go out and dig themselves up an original.

This agent nearly fell out of his turkey-stuffed dungarees the other night when Director George "Lefty" Wilson, who still manages that baseball "scrabble" when on a fishing safari, pulled "Project Greenhead" out of a figurative bizz sizz.

In a Mahomet-going-to-the-mountain gesture, the club announced it will raise its own wild ducks, manufacture, to be exhibit, and let the shotgun pellets fall where they may.

Director Whitman and his sacred scientific sir went about the matter in the right way. They got the official O.K. and blessing of governmental departments, in fact, the Tweed district headquarters of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests and the Federal wildlife division boys are heading a helping hand.

They got themselves a hundred mallard ducklings. I don't know where Whitman's mallard hideaway is, but I am told the cute things are healthy and happy. When they are a month old they will be "let out" but will make reservations for return next year.

George tells me the survival ratio in these young birds is very high, nearly one hundred per cent. That means that some 100 fat mallards, at least, will be winging their way "home" next year.

And if all goes well, I am told, the club will go into the hatchery business next year and produce some 1,000 mallard ducklings which will be raised until a month old and then sent on their way.

Mr. Whitman went into the matter thoroughly before taking any definite action. He consulted with an official of the Delta Wildlife Research Station at Lake Manitoba, continuing his investigation of the project possibilities with conferences with a University... of Manitoba biologist.

George knew, as did the majority of duck hunters of the district, that there is a marked lack of suitable breeding areas in this particular part of Ontario, due to low water. Besides a report from Frank Dalzell had it that the duck population suffered a marked decrease last year.

With the green lights popping all around him, aided and abetted by government brass, Mr. Whitman went into action. He scored a "first" for the Fish and Game Club since it is the only organization in Canada to undertake such a project as "Greenhead."

His was working on the well-known hunting fact that wild ducks "set out" will return to the place of liberation. It seems a pity though that the sweltering committee will honor the homecomers with a shotgun serenade.

Chief Forester J. M. Taylor of the Tweed division, Department of Lands and Forests, is in full accord with "Project Greenhead." He has assured Mr. Whitman and his "Projectors" of his full co-operation. The Tweed headquarters will supply supervision and technical assistance. The Federal Department Wildlife Division, will provide bands for the birdies so an accurate assessment of returnees taken by hunters can be made.

The project is another evidence of the aggressiveness of the Fish and Game Association here. That the club is solidly behind the project was noted by the reception given Mr. Whitman's announcement and subsequent talk on "Greenhead."

I talked with some members after the meeting and they were enthusiastic over the idea. "I think we have pioneered a movement that might well be emulated by other fish and game associations whose districts suffer from a lack of proper breeding grounds," said one.

At least the club is helping put Belleville on the map if only through the goodness of a duck's drumstick.

Whip Colts In Tenth

By MIKE RATHEF
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fleet feet of Maury Wills, furnishing another furious fistful for standing Los Angeles, have pulled the Dodgers a step closer to the top in the National League pennant chase.

Held to two hits going into the ninth inning, the Dodgers got rolling against Houston Colts Thursday night on a bunt single by Wills, then whipped the Colts 8-4 in the 10th inning after the swift shortstop got things going with a leadoff single.

It was the Dodgers' eighth victory in nine games, the third in a row in which Wills took charge, and pulled them within three games of the league-leading San Francisco Giants, blanked 5-0 by the third-place St. Louis Cardinals on Bob Gibson's six-hitter.

Wills, who drove in four runs in the first game with the Colts and scored the decisive run after stealing second the next night, came back for still more Thursday night while the Dodgers were being embarrassed by former teammate Jim Golden.

LEAD VANISHES

Wills, a .263 hitter, opened the ninth against Golden with his third single and when the inning was over Golden was gone, the Colts 4-0 lead had disappeared and the Dodgers had sent it into extra innings. Wills then singled to make it 1(00), and scored the clincher on Wally Moon's single.

While the Dodgers were creeping up on the Giants, Cincinnati Reds slid back into fourth place with their six-game winning streak cut off by Philadelphia Phillies 5-4; Pittsburgh Pirates 9-6 in the only other game.

The Colts' relief pitching had with former Dodgers driving in all the runs. Norm Larker accounted for two with a single, Bob Aspromonte's single scored one and Carl Warwick got the other with a homer.

Wills then went to work. His single by Ron Fairly, in the 4 double by Moon scored Golden and brought in Bob Tiefenauer (1-3), who was touched for a single by Tommy Davis. Davis stole second as John Roseboro went down swinging and scored the tying run on a single, one by Jim Gilliam and 10th, Gilliam's single and an intentional walk after Wills got on set it up for Moon's game-winner. Ed Roebuck (3-0) picked up the victory in relief. END WINNING STREAK

The Cards used an unearned run to end San Francisco's 10-game home victory streak after Gibson (5-2) worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth by getting Orlando Cepeda to hit into a doubleplay. Red Schoendienst opened the ninth with a single and pinch-runner Julian Javier stole second and continued to third on a bad throw. Charley Kazmo then stroked a shot to deep short that drove in Javier. Bill O'Dell (4-3), who also allowed only six hits, lost.

Unbeaten Cal McLish, backed by a three-homer barrage, registered victory No. 4 in beating the Reds. Don Demeter's three-run homer capped a five-run surge in the first but put it away for the Phils and handed Jim O'Toole (3-3) the setback. Ted Savage and Sammy White also homered for Philadelphia.

The Braves scored all seven runs in the first inning, chasing Pirates' starter Bob Friend (4-4) on three singles, a double by Roy McMillan and a dropped fly ball by Bob Skinner, who would have been the third out. Then Stuffy Stirnweiss came on and gave up three additional runs on an intentional walk, a single and Howie Bedell's triple. That made it easy for Bob Shaw (4-1), who coasted with an eight-hitter.

So Are Ridan, Roman Line

'Jaipur' Said Preakness Threat

BALTIMORE (AP) — Decidedly, the Kentucky Derby winner, and 10 other top colts tangle Saturday in the 86th Preakness with the odds all heavily against the Louisville star capturing Pimlico's great classic for three-year-olds.

The main stumbling block to California - bred Decidedly is this 1 3-16-mile race appears to be Jaipur, who was purposely withheld from the derby by owner George D. Widener, Jaipur, a leading two-year-old in 1961, has started only twice this year and won both races—the Gotham and the Withers Mile at Aqueduct.

But Jaipur or no; Decidedly still would have powerful opposition in his bid for the second leg of the Grand Turfer-Preakness-Belmont triple crown.

Mrs. Moody Jolley's Ridan, the Derby favorite who finished third at Louisville May 5, could steal it all with his tremendous speed, if, could T. A. Grisson's Roman Line, second in the Derby Tweetsend B. Martin's unpredictable Sompting County or Crimson King Farm's Crimson Satan, the 1961 champion two-year-old who seems to be returning to his best form.

MUST PAY FEES

The 11 officially were entered Thursday at a $1,000 fee and another $1,000 must be paid to start in the race, which will get off at about 5:30 p.m. EDT.

If all start in the classic the gross will be $130,200 with $13,520 for the winner.

The Pimlico track oddmaker made Jaipur as the 5-2 favorite. He made Decidedly and Ridan co-second choices at 3 to 1.

May Move Kansas A's To Dallas

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles O. Finley has discussed with other American League club owners the possibility of moving his Kansas City Athletics to Dallas-Fort Worth, The Associated Press learned today.

It could not be confirmed immediately whether Finley officially requested the transfer.

Finley's proposal, which has been rumored in the works for some time, was made here Thursday at a closed session of league officials and team owners.

Major Baseball Leagues May Develop New System

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's major leagues hope to set up a new player development system, involving 17 associated clubs in the minor leagues, to ensure a steady flow of talent in the big show.

The first step in the new plan is scheduled to be taken today when the majors meet in a special joint session, called by commissioner Ford Frick, to hear the report of a major-minor league committee which has been toiling for over a year.

If the two-year plan gets a broad general approval, steps will be taken to implement it and reclassifying the minors in 1963. The target date for completion is 1967. By that time the majors may have expanded to 24 clubs in either two 12-club or three-club leagues.

Instead of the six classifications now existing in the minors, ranging from class triple A to class D, there would be only three levels in the new deal.

Still to be determined is the number of minor league clubs that each of the 20 major league teams need to provide five would be enough. If they settle on five, that would mean a total of 100 teams with full guaranteed 25-man rosters from the majors.

For several years the majors have been putting $600,000 annually into minor league subsidies. This would be eliminated under the new plan as each major league team would be responsible financially for its own.

English Driver Eliminated

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Jack Fairman of England, last foreign entrant in the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race, was virtually eliminated Thursday when his car was wrecked by Wen Chesebourg of Tucson, Ariz., on a test run.

The car, one of three new rear-engine V8s built by Mickey Thompson of Long Beach, Calif., can be repaired before the time trials this weekend but owner James H. Kimberly of Chicago said he would have to use an experienced speedway driver.

Will Build Harness Track

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club Limited has announced that a preliminary contract for construction of Malvern Raceway, the harness racing track at Campbellville, Ont., has been awarded to Armstrong Brothers Construction Company of Brampton, Ont. Work at the Tuesday said is expected to be completed in time for the 1963 racing season. The club is going to build another harness racing track at St. Catharines, but the open for the 1965 season. There is a possibility that it may be ready by 1964.

Each track which will be equipped for night racing under floodlights and will cost approximately $3,000,000. In its initial stages each five-furlong track will have stabling for 600 horses, living quarters for 200 men and parking accommodation for 10,000 cars. Each grandstand will be equipped with a large enclosed terrace dining room overlooking the racing strip.

District League Opens Monday

The Lowdown On Softball

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville District Softball League, looking for a good season despite the loss of two of last year's entries and a number of topline players, will open the 1955 season at the Belleville Fairgrounds Monday.

Trenton RCAF Flyers, Joyce Real Estate and the Bobcats are back from last season, completing the four-team grouping are the Belleville Rollins Construction Juniors. Lost from last year are the Picton Wells and the Cobourg Merchants.

Monday's opener here will pit the hosting young Rollins Juniors against last year's championship Joyce Real Estate squad. Play, game, and all others at the Fairgrounds until June 1st, will start at 6.15. Lights will be turned on at the Fairgrounds on June 1st and all games will then start at 8.00 p.m. as do all games at Trenton.

All three Belleville teams will use the Fairgrounds as a home field playing on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights. RCAF Flyers will play out of the Trenton Navy Park, in Trenton town, and their games will be played on Wednesday nights. The clubs will play an 18-game schedule and the top three squads will then compete in the league playoffs.

A number of veteran stars will be missing from the league this year but the coaches and managers feel that new, young faces will keep the calibre of ball at close to top level.

Some of the better known stars who have deserted include Johnny Detchkow and Doug Hall, of the Bobcats. Detchkow says he has hung up the glove while Hall is said to be switching to a South Hastings baseball league team. Gary Gower, of Joyce Real Estate, expects to play all his ball for the Kenmore senior baseball team. Bobcats catcher Earl Crookes says he has hung up the gloves for good. RCAF Flyers have lost pitcher Murray John Hughes and ace pitcher Ken Kibblewhite through transfers. Other starting pitchers expected to be absent this season include Bobby Hall of Joyces, Jim "Dinty" Dore and Nolly Campbell, Cobourg, and Roger Chapman of Picton.

The addition of Rollins Juniors is expected to add new faces and new life to the league. Coached by Harold Reid and managed by Phil Vickerey, the Juniors will give the senior clubs plenty of worry, as proven by the fact that they lost a tight 5-4 squeaker to RCAF in an exhibition game the other night. This was their first start of the year.

PITCHING PROBLEM

Reid's chief problem is pitching. He has "Scorry" Vickerey and Bobby Ebbier set for mound duty at the present time. Holovay is a right-hander who has pitched Commercial League ball for a number of years but this is Ebbier's debut as a pitcher. He is a left-handed bum-baller.

Don Holovay, younger brother of "Scorry," is also expected out and will be a welcome addition.

Pete Weston and "Pug" Zeller, who both played on the Joyce squad last year, will give the club some experience. Weston, busy with school work right now, will likely do the catching when he comes out. Keller has one of the outfield positions several up.

Joe Robitaille will handle the catching early in the season and will move to the outfield when Weston comes out regularly. Both are good hitters.

The infield consists of Gary Dugan at first base, "Bucky" Ebbier at second, Don Ebbier at third and Billy McGuire at shortstop. McGuire played in the league last year with the Picton Wells. This infield should be fast and colorful and will undoubtedly improve with experience.

Other players seeking outfield positions include Paul Zabos, Cliff McErlannon and Bobby Dugan.

Coach Reid advises any other junior-aged players of the district that would like to try for a position to "come out and give it a try."

The Joyce Real Estate team is expected to be close to last year's strength. Bill Shaw, Jack Hunter Sr., and Harry Morgan are back out as manager and coaches.

The pitching staff has young Doug Ellis back and after a year's experience last season, he is expected to be one of the ace. Joining him are Pat Macdonald, veteran MVP sleeper last season with Picton, and the RCAF's big right-hander, Jim Butterfield. This could be the loop's top pitching unit.

Alister catcher Claude Carr will be back behind the plate with Chuck Kingston at first base and Jackie Elliott, Jr. at shortstop also returning from last season. Picton's Keith MacDonald and Commercial league recruit Ralph Plane are out for second base and both are expected to see plenty of action.

Bob Davis, a newcomer to the league will likely open at third base. Davis played ball in Toronto for a number of years but was out of action last year. He has been transferred here on his job. Gay Austin, teaching school in Hamilton, will also be back come the end of the school term. Others seeking infield spots are Tom Lynch and Ron Campbell.

Bert Faulkner and Teddy Bachelor, the latter with the Bobcats last year, will be in the outfield, along with Stu Muirhead when he completes his school year in Peterborough. Lefty Wannemaker, of Trenton, Doug Armstrong, of Frankford and Terry "Red" Kellar are also battling for positions.

The Bobcats, coached by Bill Ott this season, expects to have their one-two pitching punch of Bobby Green and Bobby Hunter back in action. Mike Retushelak of the RCAF, who battled with the Cats last season, is debating as to which of the two teams he will play with this season.

Frank "Shiner" Murray will replace Cousins behind the plate while Doug Murray is being given a good shot at the first base job. Floyd Crawford returns to second base and Pat Gilmore will handle the third base job.

Shortstop is proving a problem for coach Ott. He wants to use "Wiener" Brown, Lou Banks and Jackie Hughes in the outfield but may have to move Brown or Hughes in to play shortstop unless another good one shows up shortly.

Earl Clapp is also working out in the outfield and Ott still hopes to have a couple of players from last years' Picton squad come out. They would be a welcome addition.

RCAF Flyers will be coached by Charlie Drake and managed by Dick Dossett, replacing Don McAllister. The latter was forced to give up sport for a year because of bad health.

Jimmie Cole and possibly Ratchelak will have starting pitching jobs and several others are also likely members of the team. Willy Kennedy and Sam Mace are available for catching duties while Roger Drake is back at first base and Doug Alexander at shortstop.

Pepperpot Roy Taylor is working out at third base and Corky Cornacchen at second. Dominic Cola and big "Moe" Mowat have inside tracks on a couple of the outfield positions.

Drake says he has several other real good ballplayers out but had not settled on a starting lineup when this was written.

League Commissioner Clint Bolch, recovering from an operation in the Belleville General Hospital, says he expects to see a well-balanced league with the clubs all having to give their best in every performance to catch one of the playoff spots.

"Play ball".

P.M. Promises Further Help For Industry

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Further help for Canadian industry was promised and an early start on the Prince Edward Island causeway was indicated by Prime Minister Diefenbaker here Thursday night.

"We intend to provide further economy," he said in his election campaign speech before some 2,500 persons in the sports arena here. Some stood along the rafts.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it was the largest audience in Charlottetown in the last 30 years.

Measures he referred to included: An increase in export credit insurance, equalization of freight rates, assistance for more industry to establish in the Atlantic and Western provinces, modernization and expansion of secondary industries, and a campaign to attract plants to produce goods which are now imported.

WOULD AFFECT TRADE

Dealing briefly with Britain's application to join the European Common Market, the prime minister said Canada's relations with Britain strengthen the political situation in Europe but would affect sacrifice of Commonwealth trade preferences. Unless the six countries making agreement agreed to diminish the "ordinary terms" for admission, 75 per cent of Canada's trade with the United Kingdom would be seriously affected.

The part of the 26-minute speech which Mr. Diefenbaker liked best dealt with the 9¼-mile causeway linking Prince Edward Island with New Brunswick.

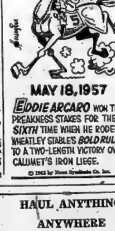
"We are proceeding with the building of the causeway," Mr. Diefenbaker said, without mentioning a specific starting date.

He said the project, including a ¼-mile bridge, will cost 1,200 jobs for six years. $100,000,000 will provide work.

At the end of his speech, however, he said that by Canada's centennial year of 1967 the "Garden of Confederation" will be connected to mainland Canada.

THANKS FOR CAUSEWAY

A big sign on the platform read, "Thanks for the causeway."



Mr. Diefenbaker campaigned quietly at Summerside, 35 miles west of Charlottetown, and at Montague 30 miles east of here. He saved his big pitch for the public meeting in the evening.

He said that nowhere in Canada did 22 years of Liberal "neglect" weigh more heavily than in the Maritimes.

Liberal leader Pearson was talking of a "tarnished record and stagnation." But the Conservative government, he said, was "dynamic, functional and confidential grants to the Maritimes to equalize opportunities for them.

Mr. Pearson was saying the

Canada's Trade Policies Under Fire by Socreds

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Social Credit's national leader used a brief visit to this border city Thursday to belabor Canada's foreign trade policies.

Robert Thompson blamed a trade with Communist countries and said the recent evaluation of the Canadian dollar is equivalent to a 10 per cent increase in Canada's tariff wall.

A Social Credit government, he said, will "begin to negotiate a lower tariff set-up between the two countries and, in the long run, a form of common market of all western hemisphere nations.

The seven-hour visit of the chiropractor from Red Deer, Alta., was not an auspicious time. It was Mr. Thompson's birthday, but Queen Frank Nicula's celebrated fruit trees were in bloom and so was the annual pesticide war attracted the first perspiring tourists to the cool air around the falls.

TOO EXPENSIVE

Later Mr. Thompson looked in on a courtesan show, shaking hands among the small supper-time crowd and drinking ale at a plastic cabin cruiser replica display "too expensive for a politician," his later told reporters.

In an hour - long address to some 1,500 people—in a hall with three times that number of seats — Mr. Thompson frequently referred to the closeness of the U.S. border in Niagara Falls, a Liberal party stronghold of Liberal party support.

Canada is on "treacherous ground" with its policies of international high tariff and "peaceful trade" with Communist countries, he said.

Trade deficits such as this country had been building up with the United States "invite control of our economy from outside," and U.S. investors already control many Canadian resources and industries.

"We have become, and are continuing to become, a branch plant economy."

Mr. Thompson wanted a new deal. "We don't want that old raw deal," the prime minister said, in reference to socialism.

PREMIER PENSIVE

The Liberals were promising a retirement pension of $25 a month for a married couple within a year of taking office, "I don't know when they will get it, but it's a long way off," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Liberal words were the same "six-buck boys" of 1957, a reference to an increase of $6 in old age pension in that year.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Prince Edward Island is entering upon the greatest era of expansion, development and progress it has ever seen.

He said the government will "do everything" to help Maritime industry will not suffer because of the public subsidies in the prime minister received one-of-the most introductory gifts of the campaign.

Mayor Bruce Yeo, a Liberal, referred to him as "Honorable John" and then proceeded to say that "Mike" Pearson is a "very nice friendly fellow." He also mentioned Bob his talented to T. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, who had made a similar offer of a drink.

Pearson Spells Out Policy In Maritimes

By ALAN DONNELLY

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—An election platform to develop new industries and new job skills for unemployed was spelled out in detail Thursday night by Liberal Leader Pearson as he completed his second campaign swing across the country.

Promotion of industrial growth in "certain areas," job training and payment for the unemployed, and stepped-up assistance to municipal development are its key points.

"This is not an election promise," Mr. Pearson said. "It has been Liberal policy for four years."

The Liberal leader, who now has visited every province in just over three weeks of campaigning, flies west today to the Lakehead for a meeting before taking a breather in Ottawa on Monday and Tuesday.

SHARES $80 HANDS

Relaxed and smiling, he shook at least 300 hands during a 138-mile trip through the Annapolis Valley and along the Acadian-settled Fundy Coast north of here.

"According to Tory propaganda, I'm the only one who is able to do these things," he said here. "Perhaps my colleagues who is supposed to have fellow Canadians."

The party brought a round of applause from a full-house audience of 2,700 in a local high school auditorium. They turned out despite the counter-attraction of a $1,000 bingo game a few blocks away.

Mr. Pearson arrived late at the meeting after running behind schedule most of the day, and the endless introductions aboutted "We want Pearson" brought the first prelim-inary speeches before he spoke.

"You'll get him, too, a model of parliamentary conduct and the speaker, Senator John Connolly of Ottawa, prevailed of the Redonel Liberal Federation.

Mr. Pearson referred to election promises by Prime Ministe Diefenbaker — "getting up nearly 100 on his feet" — and Diefenbaker's statements that the Conservative government intended to build on what it had done so far.

PEARSON 'FRIGHTENED'

"Frightened me, that frightens me," he said.

"The Conservative government needs for a married couple with children a year of taking office. "I don't know when they will get it, but it's a long way off," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Liberal words were the same "six-buck boys" of 1957, a reference to an increase of $6 in old age pension in that year.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Prince Edward Island is entering upon the greatest era of expansion, development and progress it has ever seen.

He said the government will "do everything" to help Maritime industry will not suffer because of the public subsidies in the prime minister received one-of-the most introductory gifts of the campaign.

Mayor Bruce Yeo, a Liberal, referred to him as "Honorable John" and then proceeded to say that "Mike" Pearson is a "very nice friendly fellow." He also mentioned Bob his talented to T. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, who had made a similar offer of a drink.

There would be "special unemployment benefits, in addition to a moderate wage, to unemployed people who work satisfactorily in training or retraining courses."

There would be increased federal grants for slum - clearance and low-cost housing, a municipal loan fund and other forms of federal-provincial grants for development projects in hard-up municipalities unable to borrow.

WOUND SET UP FUND

An Atlantic provinces' capital fund would be set up to make grants for basic development projects in the Atlantic area.

Mr. Pearson's campaigning today took him through two Fundy coast constituencies, Digby - Annapolis - Kings, which has been represented by Reverend Minister Nowlan since a 1942 byelection, and Shelburne - Yarmouth - Clare, a traditional Liberal area won by Conservative Felton Legere in 1958.

The Liberal leader stopped at Ste. Anne's College in Church Point, a Roman Catholic liberal arts school, where he told a group of students that one of the responsibilities of a Liberal government would be to ensure that a university education would be available to every boy and girl.

The government "ought to be able to find a little more money for education" along with the $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 needed for defence.

Astrological Forecast

For May 19

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Ambitious today concerning possessions, money matters, could cause actions based on impulse rather than intelligence. Better weigh decisions. Relax tonight.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Friction seems in the "air." You do best by being genial. Be willing to listen, but make no solid commitments. Others may not mean what they say.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): The harder you try the less you are likely to accomplish today. You gain most with relaxed attitude and planning. Get into "swing" of things tonight.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): No time to waste. Telling tales out of school could "catch up" with you. This could be unusual day where emotions are concerned. Maintain charm.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): The road is not completely smooth. But you can accomplish your goal today if you are willing to learn by teaching. May be paradox. But it could work wonders.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Attending social affair this evening could prove rewarding. But you must be willing to exchange opinions, ideas. Congenial times and opportunities are wanted.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Practical matters must take precedence today. Put off other matters until budget is really in order. If one close to you cares, that person will understand and help.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Beating around the bush only a waste of time. Today planning is highlighted. Don't be ashamed to let others know what you are going after. Frankness is key.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Emphasize your position. Let there be no misunderstanding. Others may want to give you a little "shove." But be true to your own ideals.

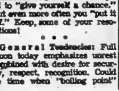
Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You gain much by reading stars today, including various features in your newspaper. Don't be afraid to be alone. No need to "celebrate" just because tomorrow is Sunday.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Lunar position emphasizes your strength. You can go after what you want and gain allies on your mission. Excellent for expressing ideas, investing in own talents.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Favorable lunar aspect . . . today means your long-range views not to become crystal-clear. Don't expect immediate results. Take care while travelling.

• • •

If today is your birthday . . . you are basically independent, original and have a flair for the dramatic. You often are tempted to "give yourself a chance." But even more often you "put it off." Keep some of your resolutions!



• • •

General Tendencies: Full moon today emphasizes unrest combined with desire for security, respect, recognition. Could be time when "boiling point" is reached as far as some international relations are concerned. So called smaller powers, and nations striving for independence, make demands.

SWAN BEHEADED

TORONTO (CP) — A nesting swan was found beheaded in High Park Wednesday and her eggs destroyed. Park officials believe a vandal or maniac committed the act. Deputy parks commissioner Mel Mathews said it was the first time the parks department had been successful in getting a swan to nest.

Nurse, DEW Line Suitor Hooked Up by Ham Radio

VICTORIA (CP)—A romance between a Victoria nurse and her DEW line heartthrob, conducted almost entirely by amateur radio over 2,500 miles, has been revealed by ham radio circles here.

It began casually when Pat Hampleman and Fred Galbraith went on a date here while Fred was on leave from an Arctic outpost. Fred didn't bother, however, to get Pat's address or phone number.

When he returned to his job, several hundred miles north of the Arctic Circle, he had second thoughts. The question was how to get in touch with a girl he hardly knew.

The northern hams called a Victoria amateur station operated by Roy Parrett and his wife Maude. With just the girl's name and the knowledge that she worked at St. Joseph's Hospital, the couple tracked Pat down and reunited her with Galbraith by radio.

It wasn't easy. Fred had to talk over a local radio circuit to reach the ham radio station which meant there were three operators involved in every transmission. Later a radio-phone hookup was made.

"Their romance became warmer and warmer," said Mr. Parrett, "and finally he proposed to her right over the air."

Pat accepted.

"They tried to pick out their furniture by radio but couldn't agree on what they wanted."

The couple also disagreed on where they would be married. Pat wanted Victoria and Fred wanted Edmonton.

"Finally they quarrelled, and just at the crucial moment I lost contact due to a big northern lights display," Mr. Parrett says. "For three nights he tried to get hold of her again but every time I phoned she'd just hang up."

Other radio operators throughout the north and from ships in the Pacific kept calling Mr. Parrett to ask how the romance was going. They persuaded him to telephone Pat's landlady.

He explained to the landlady that conditions during the last conversation had been bad. The landlady coaxed Pat into answering the next call.

"Fred apologized, but then he said, 'I'll listen to what he has to say,'" said Pat, "but don't expect me to answer him."

When Fred called again the atmospheric conditions were almost perfect.

CUPIDS TO RADIO ROMANCE — Roy and Maude Parrett, shown at their radio in Victoria, played the role of cupid in a long-distance romance between an Arctic DEW line employee and a Victoria nurse. The Parretts and other ham operators arranged a 2,500-mile radio courtship for nurse Pat Hampleman and author Fred Galbraith. Fred's proposal was finally accepted and the couple now live in Nova Scotia. (CP Photo).

"Fred spoke first, but then he got nervous and began to mumble. That was when some other radio operator cut in and snapped 'For Pete's sake, tell her you love her!'"

From then on the love affair progressed smoothly. Pat and Fred now are married and living in Nova Scotia.

Indict Hoffa On Violation Of Labor Law

Claim He Collected Million Illegally

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters President James R. Hoffa was indicted by a federal court jury here Friday on charges of violating the Taft-Hartley labor law and collecting more than $1,000,000 illegally. He is involved in two other court cases.

The two - count indictment, which also involved payment through an auto transport firm incorporated in Nashville, was revealed in Washington at Attorney - General Kennedy. The announcement by the Justice official in Washington said Hoffa "shed no sorrow when informed of his latest predicament."

Hoffa, who flew to Chicago by a late night chartered telha after his Washington court appearance, said Harold Gibbons, executive vice-president of the Teamsters, as a substitute at a scheduled Chicago press conference.

INDICTED TRUTH

"If it (the indictment) is anything like the other indictments against Jimmy Hoffa, lawyers in this country," Gibbons said, "the essence of it is anything but the truth."

If convicted, Hoffa could be sentenced up to a year in prison and his fined $10,000 on each of the two counts.

At Orlando, Fla., federal court has under advisement a petition by Hoffa's lawyers to dismiss a federal mail fraud indictment based on a land deal involving Hoffa and others. The alleged release of $500,000 of Teamsters union funds.

Indicted with Hoffa, at Nashville was Commercial Carriers Incorporated, a Detroit auto transport firm charged with selling to the Teamsters Central Pest Fleet Corporation, and Strong Incentive Vending Company, a Nashville business. At the time, Commercial Carriers had a contract with the Teamsters Union.

The indictment charges Hoffa and the late Owen Bresnan, former Teamster vice-president received $100,000 from Commercial Carriers through Test Fleet. The kick - back allegedly was split between Hoffa and Mrs. Bresnan, named in their maiden names.

RATS TRY TO HIDE

Federal indictment added Hoffa and Bresnan hired the name of Test Fleet Corporation to Commercial Carriers, a company in the business of belonging for pallets when the barrel is delivered to the store. The bandits escaped with $8,000 to $4,000, but blood stained notes found showed their escapee route.

The victims were Lake J. Falkes, 58, a veteran of 35 years on the force, and John F. Finnegan, 39, a five-year veteran. Falkon was killed with a single shot through the heart. Finnegan was mortally wounded with two shots in the abdomen and a third in the shoulder.

Pegged Dollar Said Symptom And Not Cure

HALIBURTON, Ont. (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Friday night the pegging of the Canadian dollar is a symptom of Canada's economic problems, but not a cure for them.

"The government is trumpeting the fact that the lower dollar will make our export trade and attract more tourists," he said.

"Quite true, but . . . we shall be faced with ever higher living costs because all our imports will cost us an extra eight cents on the dollar in exchange."

Harkness Stresses Need For Shelters

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Defence Minister Harkness said Friday here a be - bomb group cause him concern, despite their claims of total destruction, in a nuclear war, of any benefit from building fallout shelters.

"The idea of telling people not to build fallout shelters is folly," he said.

Mr. Harkness was in London to attend a dinner in honor of retiring Maj.-Gen. J. A. Dunlap, head of Central Command.

The minister said only a limited number of people take better-than-basic protection, but that the misconception spread by such groups is a key reason why Canadians do not take civil defence more seriously.

2 Detectives Shot to Death

NEW YORK (AP)—All 34,000 city policemen were searching today for the man who killed two detectives in a point-blank gun duel in a Brooklyn bookstore. One of the hunted men was believed wounded.

The detectives, both winners of citations for past heroism, were shot Friday in a fierce blazing exchange of bullets when they burst in on a holdup in the store. The bandits escaped with $8,000 to $4,000, but blood stained notes found showed their escape route.

The victims were Lake J. Falkes, 58, a veteran of 35 years on the force, and John F. Finnegan, 39, a five-year veteran. Falkon was killed with a single shot through the heart. Finnegan was mortally wounded with two shots in the abdomen and a third in the shoulder.

ARREST PICKETS FOR DEFYING COURT ORDER

Three Ships Still Tied Up

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A wild police chase on the Maumee River resulted in the arrest of three pickets Friday for defying a court order but three ships of the Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto remained tied up here.

The vessels are the James Norris, which arrived a week ago, the Northern Venture, which sailed Thursday, and the Manaska, which came in Friday.

Judge Thomas J. O'Connor issued a temporary order Tuesday banning picketing by the Maritime Trades Department (AFL-CIO), but the followed day, the pickets reappeared bearing signs identifying themselves as members of the Inland Boatmen's Union (AFL-CIO).

Thomas Hoolman, personnel manager of Upper Lakes Shipping, said he won't sail Friday morning and charged the pickets had ignored the temporary order. Judge O'Connor then issued another order that all pickets in the vicinity of the docks should be arrested by sheriff's deputies.

CHASE THREE BOATS

The deputies boarded a Toledo police harbor launch and sailed the Maumee, arresting seven men picketing in three motorboats. A 15-minute chase ensued.

Only one motorboat, containing three men, was seized. One boat aped off and the other went in elusive circles to evade the deputies.

Following the frustrating chase, Judge O'Connor issued another order. He told the sheriff to provide sufficient deputies to enforce the court orders and directed the Lucas County commissioners to provide what ever money was needed to hire more deputies.

Meanwhile, Lakefront Dock and Terminal went into U.S. district court to obtain an injunction from Judge Frank L. Kloeb restraining picketing by the Seafarers International Longshoremen's Association (AFL-CIO) from the docks. That is where the Northern Venture and the Manaska were berthed Friday.

The labor difficulties of the Seafarers International Union at it when the Canadian Seafarers' International Union was ousted as bargaining agent for the company's 20 ships and replaced by the Canadian Maritime Union. The Seafarers have protested and have managed to tie up the company's ships here several times since.

The pilot was ordered to turn back. No bomb was found.

These Things Never Bother Much Those Who Just Shun the Clutch

LONDON (AP)— A headbook on love-making has been published for girl guides, likening the perils of love to the hazards of driving a car.

In the cake — "You do not test the edibility of the cake before putting in the icing."

Mixing drinks, coupled with soft lights and sweet music, can be fatal. A boy knows that if he can persuade a girl to drink she will be easier to kiss.

The girls are warned against getting involved in provocative brief shorts and revealing blouses and then bitching life from male drivers.

Discussing dignity, the book deplores party games such as the "drop a spoon down behind your bra and out through your knickers" variety.

It counsels that the way to restore love is through exploring mother's mind.

The book is called "I, for learner" and gives these specific items for a girl:

The art part of married life has been likened to the icing on the cake — "You do not test the edibility of the cake before putting on the icing."

Half Question Answered, Premier Robarts Joins Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the questions in the federal election campaign has been whether Premier John Roberts (Conservative) of Ontario and Premier Jean Lesage (Liberal) of Quebec will get into the fight.

Half of its was answered Friday night at Chatham, Ont., when Mr. Robarts joined Prime Minister Diefenbaker on the platform at an election rally.

"If anyone thinks for one moment that I am less than enthusiastic in supporting you . . . I am here today to assure you (Mr. Diefenbaker) and the good people at this meeting that I am with you all the way," the premier declared.

Liberal Leader Pearson was speaking at Rimouski, Que., on the lower St. Lawrence River when Premier Lesage reminded 300 miles upriver at Quebec City where his provincial Liberals' latest stiff is in session.

The question of Mr. Lesage's participation probably won't be answered properly unless the legislature winds up its session before voting day, June 18. The Ontario legislature isn't currently sitting.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, at a party rally in London, Ont., made the rather startling statement that he doesn't expect Social Credit to win next month's election.

But he quickly qualified it by predicting that the winner will form a minority government, forcing another vote within a year; which will put Social Credit into power. The party lost all of its 19 federal seats in the 1958 election.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, spent a second straight day in Regina where he is making his personal bid for a House of Commons seat.

The socialist ex-premier of Saskatchewan attended a series of afternoon teas in the Rain-Drenched Marines Manoeuvre on Laos Border

Torrential rains lashed the rice paddies where the bulk of the 1,800 - man marine battle group in northeast Thailand is cramped 30 miles from the Mekong River border with Laos.

The marines plodded through deep mud this morning.

U.S. military sources said they are expected to join Thai troops in the exercises this weekend to familiarize themselves with the surrounding flat, arid terrain.

Gen. Paul Harkins, commander of the U.S. command in Thailand, flew to northeast Laos today to inspect the situation. Harkins and Thai Premier Sarit Thanarat met Monday in Bangkok to discuss the latest developments in the Laos crisis.

Harkins is head of the U.S. military assistance command in South Viet Nam, said U.S. officials in Bangkok. Other headkins orders. But he warned that danger still lurks from pro-Communist forces in Laos whose recent offensive brought the Reds within 15 miles of the border.

Harkins is scheduled to return to his headquarters in Saigon Sunday leaving Richardson, an expert in jungle warfare, in command of the U.S. military buildup in Thailand that is expected to reach 5,000 men.

Communist radio broadcasts claimed Royal Laotian troops attacked and drove back pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels from an area near the royal capital of Luang Prabang earlier this week.

But reports from Laos indi-

Fine and Jail Those Helping Refugees

HONG KONG (AP) — British authorities Friday ordered heavy fines and jail terms for Hong Kong residents caught helping refugees escape from Communist China.

Conviction for infiltrating the border area or interfering with official efforts to send the refugees back to China carries penalties of up to $980 or two years in jail.

The order was issued as border sources reported that more than 200 refugees crossed illegally, it was announced that the day's temperature was subsiding.

But she still was expected to remain in her room for the weekend.

Tulip Festival Opens Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Tulip Festival opened Friday to the tune of band music and singing by pretty girls with more than four million blooms in west just too good.

The hot and humid heat down on the opening ceremonies along the picturesque, man - made Rideau Canal had officials worrying whether the tulips would wilt.

One of the red-coated members of the Canadian guards regimental band fainted under the weight of his huge beardskin busby in the 90-degree heat, his plumed tube clattering to the ground.

It was so hot that Mayor Charlotte Whitton suggested that dark-skinned Betty Gibbons, the queen of Ottawa's civil servants, "probably wishes she were back in her cool native Barbados."

Record Heat Will Continue Over Holiday

Canadians Will Honor Two Queens Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP) — The heat wave continued throughout Ontario Friday and weathermen said today a sizzling Victoria Day-holiday was in prospect.

Temperatures were expected in the 80s and 90s in Southern Ontario as the record-breaking heat wave went into its sixth day.

Toronto was the hottest city in Canada Friday at 94 degrees. The previous high, 91 degrees was registered in 1895.

Toronto city officials agreed to open five of the six city-operated swimming pools today, a week early. Some schools moved their classes outside.

The cooling trend, at least Monday night, was expected in Northern Ontario, where the centre of high pressure that has been responsible for the tropical weather has diverted minor storms.

Victoria Day should find many Canadians in the middle of a heat wave this year but fireworks and ceremonies will still honor two Queens, the Commonwealth and Canadian citizenship.

All provinces except Newfoundland are scheduled to make Monday a multiple observance with many meanings included in the holiday's original celebration of Queen Victoria's birth on May 24.

The traditional retains the actual date of May 24 as the holiday, in 1952, the Canadian Parliament decreed the holiday would be commemorated on the Monday preceding May 25.

In 1953, the same Monday was fixed for annual observance in Canada of the birth of Queen Elizabeth II, whose actual birth was April 21, 1926.

Commonwealth Day was celebrated for 35 years on May 24 as Empire Day — will be marked in Canada's schools by special Citizenship projects. Reports of parades and other processes the day is also known as Citizenship Day.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted that 28 persons will die on the country's roads during the holiday weekend.

Air Fares Will Not Be Upped First of June

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased air fares out of Canada, originally announced for June 1, will not take effect at that time, a spokesman for the Air Transport Board said Friday.

The International Air Transport Association announced the increased fares earlier this week, reflecting the rising value of the Canadian dollar. The increase fares would apply to all trans-ocean flights out of Canada.

The increase hinged on approval by the ATB, and the Canadian member of the board has requested more details before granting this approval. He is also concerned that Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines were going to make additional submissions.

Bertrand Russell Describes His Longevity as a Fluke

LONDON (AP) — Philosopher Bertrand Russell, who celebrated his 90th birthday Friday, describes his longevity as a fluke.

"It's nothing more than a fluke I never took exercise," he said in an interview. "However, it must have something to do with the glands. Mine seem to be all right."

The lean pink-skinned whose unconventional opinions have made him a storm centre for a half century, flouted a habit "I'm a smoker. I've smoked a pipe the whole day long, almost without ceasing, for at least 70 years."

A half-empty bottle of whisky stood on a highly-polished mahogany desk in his modest London home.

"And I like alcohol," he added. "And I like it."

Does he feel much different now than at 80, 70 or 60?

"Not particularly," he said, but certainly different than at 60. I used to take long walks. I could do that at 80. I can't do it now."

At his age, many men think a great deal about the past. But not Russell.

His present mood is concerned with the future," he said. "You have life insurance, don't you? I have a personal interest in the future."

Serenity in the present world can only be achieved through wisdom in handling what is conventionally expected, I become more and more of a rebel."

A lifelong pacifist, Russell these days is the highly-active spokesman for Britain's nuclear

Boston Mother Tosses Children From 9th Floor

Boy, 7, and Girl, 3, Thrown to Deaths

BOSTON (AP) — A mother killed her two small children, police said, by throwing them from a ninth-floor room of the Statler Hilton Hotel Friday night.

Moments after the tragedy, police said, the woman appeared at the room clerks' desk in the lobby and reported "I just killed my children."

Police identified the woman as Mrs. Ann Peters of Worcester. She is about 30 years old and a former mental patient.

The children, Norman, 7, and Marguerite, 3, died within minutes after they landed on a busy street at the rear of the hotel.

Police said Mrs. Peters broke down mentally under the strain of a broken marriage. The Peters have been separated about a year.

The husband, Theodore, a truck driver, lives in Worcester and immediately headed for Boston, about 50 miles away, to be at his wife's side.

Police said Mrs. Peters would be committed to Boston State Hospital for observation. No charge was placed against her.

W. H. Morton Laid to Rest, Many Pay Final Tribute

Mr. W. H. Morton, publisher of the Ontario Intelligencer, was laid to his rest in sun-swept Belleville cemetery Friday afternoon.

A sorrowing cross-section of the life of the city and many from outside its environs passed to pay their tribute to one of its outstanding citizens.

The funeral service was held in Bridge Street United Church with the minister, the Rev. H. M. Davis officiating. Mr. Davis also conducted the graveside ritual.

The hush of a filled church auditorium was in itself silent tribute. Tangible remembrance were noted in the array of floral beauty.

Business, industrial, professional, political and municipal life of the city honored the memory of Canada's oldest newspaper publisher.

MANY FROM OUTSIDE

Many personal friends and former associates of the late Mr. Morton came from outside points, including, of the sports paper staff occupied a special section of the auditorium.

Active pallbearers were heads of the newspaper's departments. They were Gordon Abbott, Record Payne, city editor Claude D. Tice, advertising manager Fred Barnes, composing room head Cecil Ling, press room chief Lorner Mount and sports editor Lorne H. Carver.

Honorary bearers were Stuart C. Corbett Miller, Vincent Boyle, Lee Grills M.P., Elmer Sandercock M.L.A., Lieut.-Colonel P. H. Wills and Frank Mowbray.

His simple but impressive eulogy, Mr. Davis recalled the fact that almost forty years ago Mr. Morton celebrated the 50th anniversary of his birth. Tributes were then paid to him at happy occasion," Mr. Davis said.

"One of the expressions or designations used to describe his many achievements was the 'Dean of Publishers.' To those who knew him this was not an empty title. It was the product of his wise, faithful and diligent application to industry."

"If, as someone has defined it," Mr. Davis said, "a citizen is one who puts more into the world than he takes out, then Herbert Morton has truly changed and embellished the meaning of citizenship. As the head of a widely-circulated medium of communication and information, he disciplined his public trust with integrity, dignity and sincerity of purpose."

Mr. Davis pointed out that integrity was a natural quality of Mr. Morton in breathing His signature on a document was as binding as a contract. His paper was binding within his own terms of reference. "His word is as good as my bond."

The minister said many became friends of "Bert's" kindness were made in his 90th birthday celebration.

"Kindness and fairness are qualities that help grace a life that has been active in its own competitive world of business. It may be easy to be liberal in thought and deed in the exciting and demanding world of administration in this modern day. But this quality of kindness, of fair consideration long by those who were the recipients of his practical good will."

LIVED QUIET LIFE

"Mr Morton lived a quiet life," Mr. Davis said. "Being the head of an organ of publicity, he himself shunned publicity. In the life of the community or the province his ability and influence have always been more widely recognized had he not deliberately withdrawn from the limelight."

"I cannot help but think of Mr. Morton when I read the words 'attributed to Longfellow" the minister said. These were "The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can well, and doing with whatever you can do without a thought of fame. It will come at all if it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after."

"So calmly and so quietly in this simple service, we mark the honoring of one whom we have known and revered through the years; and with courage and faith we leave him here to move away from this hour to accept the reward for his privileges and responsibilities of the unlived days before us, with the full assurance that all is well with us and our loved ones when our lives are under the guidance of God in those likeness we have been fashioned."

A police motorcycle escort headed the lengthy funeral cortege as it proceeded slowly to the cemetery.

In simple tribute police officers stood at the entrance as the funeral procession went by. Construction workers along Dundas Street paused and stood with bared heads.

At the graveside Mr. Davis said the simple committal prayers with a large gathering paying the last tribute.

Parkdale Area To Celebrate Victoria Day

"A city means the death of community spirit" — so say the theorists of modern day living.

Maybe so — but not yet in Belleville. Some 300 Parkdale residents and local area business firms have blithely ignored the theorists by planning a traditional Victoria Day celebration.

Sponsored by the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association, Belleville, this year's fireworks display will commence at dusk on May 21st, at the Parkdale Community Centre grounds.

Announcing the annual Parkdale affair, Association president J. F. Norman noted that expenses are met through canvassing local homes and business firms. A silver collection is also solicited from those attending from other parts of the city.

"The response to our canvassers this year, from local residents and business firms has been excellent," declared Mr. Norman. "This is a healthy sign of interest in the areas of community goodwill and interest existing in this part of Belleville."

Mr. Alec Glover, chairman of the Parkdale Victoria Day Committee, stressed the fine spirit of co-operation which is evident. He also noted the instant response tendered by the Belleville Police, Parks, Fire, and Police Departments, when the necessary assistance was requested.

"The members of the committee, and volunteers, have done a magnificent job," continued Mr. Glover. "Their enthusiasm and support have made my task a pleasure."

Further meeting on the Victoria Day Committee are Mr. G. Burnett, Mrs. B. Dren-hand by Mr. Kilco, Mr. F. Greene, Mr. H. Hodgson, Mr. R. Holden, Mr. C. Ross, Mr. G. Thompson, Mr. L. Wesgant.

Ivanhoe Section Of Madoc Road To Be Paved

Disher-Farrand Ltd. of Toronto, have been awarded the contract for the paving of the Ivanhoe section of the Madoc county road, it is announced today by Clarke T. Bollina, M.P.A. for Hastings East.

The paving to be done is on the 4.76 miles of development road, which was rebuilt last summer.

Mr. Hollins announced that tenders will be called next week for grading, granular base, reinforced concrete paving, concrete base and hot mix paving on 401 Highway from two miles west of Marysville to Napanee, a distance of ten miles.

Also to be called shortly are tenders for No. 500 secondary highway from Herron to Mc-Arthur's Mills in North Hastings for a distance of 3.25 miles. Tenders will be for grading, drainage, granular base and necessary structures.

Police Request Motorists' Help Over Holiday

With district highways expected to be crowded with holiday week-enders, Provincial Police Inspector A. McDougall today urged the co-operation of all motorists in observing all traffic regulations and thus assisting in keeping the accident rate down.

"The Provincial Police would appreciate the co-operation of all motorists, as only with co-operation in observing traffic regulations can we hope to make this safe accident free weekend," he said.

But patrol officers will be prepared to put a few teeth into their request for motorist co-operation, and highway patrols will be out in full force throughout the long holiday.

The Inspector noted that the police radar equipment will be out to check up motorists who indulge in burning up the highway with excessive speed.

Socreds Have Candidate in H-Frontenac

Gordon Hughes, of Carleton place, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hughes, Mount Pleasant Grove, was nominated Social Credit candidate for Hastings-Frontenac, at a meeting held in the Orange Hall, Tuesday night. The acceptance speech he noted "we are endangering our free-dom by the socialization of the debt system; we must see that our children are freed for this burden to-day."

Chairman of the meeting was Rev. Bert Mercer, Minister of Lindsay, while the speakers were Mr. Hughes, Mr. Ross Rowland, Rev. R. H. James, Social Credit candidate for Lanark, and Mr. Ernest Hamilton, candidate for Leeds. The latter noted the Social Credit plan for assistance to farmers; the setting up of a municipal bank revolving fund which would loan interest at 2% to municipalities. "Liberals and Conservatives are of the same heritage — they will take our country into bankruptcy" he noted. Mr. Ranson said that Social Credit plans to take over the Bank of Canada loan money interest free, and thus put money into circulation to boost the economy.

With Mr. Hughes' nomination, a total of four candidates will be contesting the election in Hastings-Frontenac representing Liberals, Conservatives, New Democratic Party and Social Credit.

Brighton Gets Dial Service Sunday Morning

Dial service comes to Brighton in the small hours of Sunday morning.

At 2:00 a.m. the new Meade dial system which goes into action and some 1,250 local telephone subscribers will have dial telephones at their service.

At the same early hour, new seven-digit telephone numbers become into use in Brighton. The completely new numbering system will replace designation 475 before them, followed by four other figures.

Although the conversion of Brighton's telephone system from manual to dial operation took over a year to prepare, the actual changeover Sunday morning, will take less than two minutes to complete, with virtually no interruption in service.

Rural service in a wide area around Brighton will also be greatly improved as a result of the changeover. In addition, to receiving dial service, rural customers will benefit from the change because the number of parties sharing the lines has been reduced.

At present, the building houses sufficient dial switching equipment to serve some 1,400 telephones, but the exchange has an eventual capacity of 3,700 terminals, each representing a telephone number.

Pearson Pledges Price Supports, Easier Credits

Ontario Premier Gives Support To Diefenbaker

Socred Leader Expects Close Election Race

BRMOUSEL, Que. (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson promised Friday night improved agricultural price supports and easier credit for self-help farm co-operatives in a speech staged at the Lower St. Lawrence farming area.

Speaking entirely in French, he said farmers need capital and credit and "present conditions are far from offering the progressive farmer the means to improve his farm and to operate it with modern facilities."

A new Liberal government, he said, would "first of all improve present price support measures."

Mr. Pearson spoke to an audience of 450 in a 1,000 - seat municipal auditorium. The night's earlier Prime Minister Diefenbaker had a capacity crowd in another hall about the same size.

Earlier in the day, during a flying visit to Riviere-du-Loup, 65 miles upriver from here, he promised a south-shore section, a deep-water seaport.

He pledged his party to build the port—not just carry out studies on it—if the transport board regional development program.

The Liberal leader also promised to maintain year - round navigation in both the north and south shores of the lower reaches of St. Lawrence. It would be "not a casual task, but a necessary one."

Mr. Pearson arrived at nearby Mont Joli airport after leaving a flight in his chartered DC-3 stricken from Yarmouth, N.S. He then transferred to a smaller DC-3 chartered from Quebecair for hop to Riviere-du-Loup and then back to Rimouski.

He directed all Friday's campaigning to Winnipeg's four seats unsatisfactorily held by long histories of electing Liberals before they were captured by Progressive Conservatives one in 1957 and the other three in the 1958 Conservative landslide.

FLIES TO OTTAWA

After his speech, he flew to Ottawa for a three-day rest over the holiday weekend.

The use of butter is lessening "to an alarming degree," he said in his speech, and a Liberal government would pay consumer subsidies or else offer efficiency payments to producers —preferably the former — so that butter "can be offered at a price which will use up the surplus."

He also promised encouragement to co-operative marketing plans to help farmers sell their produce and said easier credit facilities for co-operatives are "of prime importance."

Farm co-operatives to purchase machinery and supplies at lower prices required sole-lease farmers financing.

Mr. Pearson was accompanied on the platform by Liberal candidates in Rimouski, Riviere-du-Loup - Temiscouata, Matapedia-Matane and Gaspe-Bonaventure Ridings.

At Riviere-du-Loup, Mr. Pearson's auto cavalcade drove past a group of pickets with signs promoting the deep-sea port idea and winter navigation.

Both proposals were covered in his brief speech in French to an audience of 100 at a city hall reception. He was greeted there by Mayor Rosaire Gendron, the Liberal candidate for Riviere-du-Loup - Temiscouata.

His promises were greeted with silence. Mr. Pearson did not say where he proposed to build the port. Districts protests of the idea say it should be at Gros Cacouna, a few miles down river from Riviere-du-Loup.

He said such a port is needed to serve the whole region along the river here stretching back into the New Brunswick county of Madawaska.

The reception hall stage at Riviere-du-Loup city hall was decorated with a large sign "for a prosperous county, vote Rosaire, vote Liberal."

Mr. Pearson signed the guest book a few pages removed from the page signed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker at a civic reception 10 days ago.

From the city he visited the cemetery where Ernest Lapointe, former justice minister and Quebec lieutenant to prime minister Mackenzie King, was buried. Mr. Pearson put a wreath of red and white flowers on the headstone.

CHATHAM (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker today ends a strenuous five-province week of campaigning after a personal call with Ontario Premier Roberts of Ontario.

"I am with you all the way," Mr. Roberts told Mr. Diefenbaker on the platform of the Chatham armories last night.

The prime minister said Mr. Robert Presence on the platform with him "spells unity" on the national and provincial Progressive Conservative parties.

He jumped to his feet to shake hands with Mr. Roberts after the premier read a prepared statement which said, in part: "If anyone thinks for one moment that I am less than enthusiastic in supporting you and the great campaign which you are leading in this country, I am here tonight to assure you that there is the people at this meeting that I am with you all the way."

CROWD APPLAUDS

The crowd of about 1,000—some 100 seats in the stifling armories had been sold—applauded loudly.

Mr. Roberts said he was "delighted to demonstrate the solidarity of our Progressive Conservative party."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the premier's presence at Chatham "would be a disappointment to many. He said the Liberal "machine" failed to detract from previous statements of support by Mr. Roberts.

Today the prime minister campaigns in Western Ontario and tonight will be visit Fergus, Arthur, Mount Forest, Durham, Hanover and Guelph. He is scheduled to return to Ottawa tonight for a two-day rest before going to Toronto and the West next week.

CROWD ENTHUSED

Three times Friday Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the attendance at his meeting in Charlottetown Thursday night.

The Canadian Press reported the crowd filled Charlottetown Sports Arena as it 2,300.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a press conference on his plane today from Fort William that the audience was 4,600.

The prime minister said in a speech he had under-estimated by 1,000 and the crowd had numbered "over 6,000."

Earlier, Mr. Diefenbaker said some newspaper accounts of his Charlottetown speech were "slanted" to give the impression that Conservative meetings were cool, calm and without enthusiasm.

MISLED INTENTIONALLY

Here, he referred to Liberal Leader Pearson "and his friends" and to the "distortions" by political cartoonists.

The afternoon meeting in the Riverdale Collegiate Institute Memorial Centre at Windsor lost some of its punch because of a faulty public address system and a scorching heat.

Mr. Diefenbaker arrived, a crowd of about 1,800, in the centre of the auditorium was on hand. But while Mr. Diefenbaker was making hasis with some 300 adults, most of the children drifted away. They had been waiting for about two hours.

Some of the adults left, too, before Mr. Diefenbaker began to bear little, if anything.

The centre of the riding of Liberal Paul Martin, long-time Liberal cabinet minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker concentrated his attack on Mr. Martin. He said Mr. Martin had been in Saskatoon to speak as a "farm expert."

"He speaks with more authority the farther from home he gets," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

clear disarmament campaign—the noisy bits - the - bombers. Eight months ago he "went to jail for six days for defying the London police and for being a public demonstration.

"I'm concerned over the fact that the Soviet propaganda East and West are heading for the extermination of human race and as long as I have strength left in my body, I'll fight it against them."

What were the greatest years of his life:

"Those are a pleasant today as ever," he replied. "Yes, I've been; had it more pleasant personally than now. Of course, if you mean the physical, well then the 20s—the 20s are the great years."

His voice trailed off, then resumed with mounting agitation.

"We been doing a lot of talking in the atomic times. I want to talk about world problems. Please let me say this . . . certainly of the bombs today is that no one seems to have say time to do any thinking. This is not unusual in the political arena and there's not a soldier in the Canadian army knowing anything . . . anyone who has time to study and think has realize that the great danger he that mankind is about to be caught napping. Time is short, at least not enough of them, don't you think? I'll stop now. I want to awaken them."

homes of supporters before attending the meeting.

The holiday weekend will provide a respite for Mr. Frost and Mr. Pearson although observers report both look fresh and in good shape for rest. They plan to spend the weekend at their homes, picking up the campaign trail with visits to Toronto Tuesday.

NOT TAKING BREAK

The other party leaders, who have been vote-hunting at an easy pace so far, are not taking the break. Mr. Low, Socred, in Montreal today en route to a nominating meeting in Quebec West Sunday. Sunday electioneering is popular in Quebec, Mr. Thompson plans a visit to Unity, Sask., Monday.

The Socred chief devoted most of his Rimouski speech Friday night to agriculture, explaining the Social Credit platform of improved price supports and easier credit for self-help farm co-operatives. He termed the second item "of prime importance."

He spoke to 450 in a 1,000 seat municipal auditorium. Tuesday night Prime Minister Diefenbaker addressed a capacity crowd at a Rimouski meeting drew a capacity crowd to the same hall on about the same size.

Mr. Pearson said the Liberals would set up a "non-partisan" economic research bureau to study and forecast farm markets and price conditions, advising farmers of the findings. He also pledged a deepwater port on the St. Lawrence, with winter navigation.

At London, Mr. Diefenbaker speaking to 1,500 persons gathered in a hot, stuffy hall, he said the Liberals have been "downgrading" Canada for political purposes. They were contributing to "the fear of a slump" by talking "darkness and gloom."

Mr. Thompson injected a new topic into the campaign by laying down proposals for a radical change in the senate.

He would replace the present lifetime appointments with fixed terms, possibly six, those who worked well, five senators who did not appear at least two-thirds of sittings and let the provinces name half of the Senate membership, which now totals 102.

The present system of Senate appointments "has turned into one useful adjunct of government into an old people's home for retired politicians without influence." (Naming senators is a prerogative of the prime minister.)

Henry welcomes letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter received. This week's winner is Mrs. W. Wilkie, of West Hill, Ont., who receives a copy of "Beaver Business" by Glen Rounds, published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry:—I am a girl of 13 and my little friends went to tag along with me. What should I do about this problem.—DISCUSSED.

Dear Discussed — Let them tag along. They have other friends their age and won't be so your tail every task. Be keep these friends, 'cause a friend is a friend big or small.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My son is 4 and is afraid to play with the boys on the street. He is always playing with the girls. How should I stop this trouble?—MOTHER.

Dear Mother—I don't think your kid is afraid of all boys, just one bully. Find out what he is and see if you can't show him right don't invite him to the party your son will be getting. To this party only invite some nice males, no bullies, no fraids (girls).—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I have three sisters that always tell on me. For instance, when my father sent me out I got an old pack of cards and I got scissors and cut out the spades, diamonds, clubs and hearts, and they blabbed on me. What should I do?—LOU.

Dear Lou:—Your parents have three angels watching your steps. Why don't you watch your own steps and disappoint the angels? Good luck Devil.—HENRY.

Mixed Jitney Will Open Bowling Year

The greens are in excellent condition, the clubhouse has been renovated and cleaned throughout, the lawns are closely clipped and everything is in fine shape for the opening of the bowling season on Victoria Day. There will be a meeting at 8 p.m. this afternoon, starting at 1.30 o'clock, immediately after which tea will be served.

During the interval the executive of the club under the president, Bill VanTassell, has held many meetings and the members will see a number of changes, with the biggest one to come. It has been decided to better the lighting of the greens and to this end a purchase has been made of new shades. Many of the shades on the greens at the present time are worn out, being eaten through by the weather, while causes a terrific outlay for new bulbs, due to weaker dropping through the shades onto the bulbs, which causes them to explode.

At a recent meeting the chairmen of the various committees were appointed and with the enthusiasm seen, a good year is ahead. Several changes will be made in the rules for tournaments, but these will be announced at the first tourney held in this city.

W. J. "Skip" Gilbert again will continue as chairman of the Saturday afternoon Jitney Mixed Triple Tourney, an efficient secretary, will be handling the names and as he will have the help of several members, who have been given lists to call, when any special event is being staged. Otto Smith, as usual, will be chairman of the John Shaw Memorial Tournament and Harold Wade will be general chairman of the Corbin Gold Cup tourney. For this tourney, extra work will be done to increase the entry list and already there are indications the entry this year will be the biggest in some time.

Every new and prospective member is invited to be on hand to officially open the other season of a fine pastime.

from wholesale invasion planned by the then Five Nations Confederacy.

The at-section Indian Confederacy will again receive a royal spirit of bread and cheese, at annual fulfillment of a pledge made to the Indians by Queen Victoria more than 100 years ago.

Shortly after the start of her 63-year reign in 1837, Victoria pledged that on her birthday all peoples would be equal and that each member of the Six-Nations band would receive a quarter loaf of bread and a wheel of cheese each.

Last year, about 700 pounds of cheese and 700 loaves of bread were distributed to the 6,309 Indians on the Oshweken reserve near Brantford—a little short of Queen Victoria's quota.

Victoria's pledge of equality was echoed in 1939 when Commonwealth nations around the world decided to mark her birthday also as Commonwealth Day. Incidentally, May 24 is Commonwealth Day in Canada, but it will not be a public holiday.

Thursday night too, Peter Boce of Toronto was rushed to the Trenton hospital when the car he was driving was involved in a broken collision with a pick-up truck at Bayside. Mr. Boce's injuries were not considered serious.

Two Miles Of New Curbs Will Be Laid

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Alderney said yesterday that this year's program to provide the town with two miles of new curbs (four miles when you consider both sides of the road) was progressing at a good rate. The two miles of curb represents more than Trenton has laid in the past 20 years.

Mr. Alderney said that $28,000 had been allocated in the year's budget estimates to curbing. The federal and provincial governments will pay 75 per cent of the labor costs in connection with the curb program and this work done before the end of this month, under the unemployment relief works program. The workmen are installing curb at the rate of 200 feet a day.

Last year, Mr. Alderney obtained council's permission to buy curb forms and have men from the public works department install the curbs, rather than letting contracts for the work. Mr. Alderney said yesterday that this method was more satisfactory and saved the town roughly one-third of the cost. Local labor is employed and the men thus gainfully employed might very well be unemployed otherwise.

Commenting on progress in the installation of trunk sewers on Front and Sidney Streets, the engineer said that when the Thomas Company of Belleville was doing an "excellent" job and making marked progress. The Front Street sewer should be completely installed by mid-June.

A Pretty Kettle of Gruel

The world moves too fast for so many of us that we should have felt nothing but sympathy for the Weekly Scotsman of Edinburgh, Scotland, and the Leader-Post of Regina, Saskatchewan, in their failure to keep pace, were not the subject of their lamentable backwardness the present status of porridge.

When it comes to porridge one would have expected the Scotsman to be much more up-to-date than merely hep. As for the Leader-Post, anybody from Saskatchewan should know his oats where cereal grains are concerned.

Alas, and alack, the Weekly Scotsman notes with approval that modern food freezing methods have caught up with porridge and the Leader-Post compounds the misapprehension at considerable length, setting forth all the advantages and disadvantages of being able to put porridge on the breakfast table by following the simple instructions: "Empty the contents of this package into boiling water and simmer for 15 minutes."

Neither the Scotsman nor the Leader-Post shows any awareness of the fact that it has long been possible to empty oatmeal into boiling water and produce porridge as quickly as the traditional three-minute egg.

Where have the editorial writers of the Scotsman and the Leader-Post been all these mornings? Do they never come out from behind their newspapers while the little woman is slaving over a hot stove to put breakfast on the table? Is it possible that the Leader-Post writer may be able to plead avoirdupois instead of non compos mentis and win an acquittal on the grounds that medical opinion prescribes toast and coffee, though he would much prefer oatmeal. But for the editor of the Scotsman to spurn porridge in favor of other breakfast fare, even if it were a kipper, would surely be akin to treason.

To find him applauding the advent of frozen porridge would give good cause for controversy even if this did speed the arrival of the oatmeal on the table. But when it delays this moment for a whole twelve minutes—well, we ask you, what can be the matter with the man? And please, no mystic mumblings about the evils of speeding three-honored processes. Porridge, whatever may be said in its favor—and naught will even be whispered by us, a Sassenach porridge, or decided without fear of contradiction, is not whisky and even the most ardent defender can hardly claim that a block of aged frozen oatmeal is infinitely to be preferred to the three-minute variety.

Will Unemployment Disappear?

Prince Philip's Second Commonwealth Study Conference, in its second day, produced at least one speech which provided material for lively controversy.

Dr. Arthur Lewis, vice-chancellor of the University of the West Indies, said the early decades of industrialization are inevitably a time of bitter social strife. It is well that we remember that, when we are apt to despair of conditions in backward lands.

Dr. Lewis said that, if industrial development continued, easier times would come. One reason he gave was that social differences would become less important, because a mature economic system places its highest value on performance, not status or affiliation. One can see why, if performance is more valued, status would not depend on it, rather than being, apparently, dependent upon something else—birth or wealth, presumably. But this is an interesting yardstick by which to judge the maturity of our own economic system.

Dr. Lewis also gave an additional, and it seems to us more important, reason why continued industrial development would bring easier times. As more and more capital accumulated, he said, "unemployment must ultimately vanish."

Is this true? Can it be proven? Do present trends confirm this theory? We should have thought that this development, greatly to be desired, was precisely what was most in doubt today. Automation, which certainly involves the accumulation of a vast amount of capital, appears to be threatening to increase the number of unemployed, rather than to reduce it to the vanishing point. It is true that in the past industrialization has created more new jobs than it has abolished old jobs. But are we justified in assuming that this trend will continue? Isn't this question, whether or not the previous job-making tendencies of the increased use of machines will hold true of the future, precisely the most important, and most complex, question now facing the nations with advanced technologies?

PC Army's Battle Orders Listed in Campaign Memo

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—The planning of military and political campaigns can't be entirely dissimilar.

Take "Campaign Memo No. 9."

It was posted by National Conservative Headquarters here in the capital on May 1—four days before Prime Minister Diefenbaker fired the official opening gun of his fight for re-election to the seat of Federal power on Parliament Hill.

It reads like the battle orders of a General Officer Commanding in the field to his unit commanders.

It concerns the visit of the Prime Minister to any and all constituencies.

Issued over the signature of National Organizer Allister (Gramercy) Grosart, famed as John Diefenbaker's key campaign strategist in the victories of 1957 and '58, this "Memo No. 9" marks the day of a prime ministerial visit to any constituency second only in importance to election day itself.

And perhaps, in truth, a campaign call by the PM is almost any riding might just be that . . . for the Conservatives still in office, and for "policies" up securely the "safe" seats, sew up any political holes in touch-and-go ridings, and beef up the battle in those constituencies where it looks like a losing fight.

THE DETAIL

"Memo No. 9" is directed to all "Candidates, Campaign Managers, Constituency Presidents, Provincial Committees and the National Campaign Committee," and it sets out 15 prime points to be closely observed during the Prime Minister Visits Your Area.

Point One: Sets out the duties and responsibilities of the trivumvarate in what is described as "another" of the "Chief" campaign cavalcade, the Travel-Communications Unit, under the Director and the Advance Man.

Point Three: Spells out the hotel headquarters accomodation required; usually a small, two-room affair for the PM and Mrs. Diefenbaker, 10 other rooms for the official party, and at least three working press rooms.

Point Four: Sets out the ground rules for meals. . . . "this time is one of the few the PM has for relaxation. . . . so he and Mrs. Diefenbaker must be alone, except for special invitation or clearance in advance, no arrangements whatsoever should be made for intrusion at normal meal times . . . of particular importance, there are to be no private dinners at the home of anyone else, with special guests. . . . in case of fire, arrivals or very early breakfasts, it is hoped not to provide snacks for either party."

Point Five: Directs that while Mrs. Diefenbaker will be visiting appeals with the Prime Minister in certain "special cases," she will be "available" for teas and receptions when he is otherwise engaged.

Point Six: Lays it down bluntly that "there must be no factions at any hall after evening meetings."

Point Seven: Deals with the Prime Minister's actual arrival . . . "where possible, there should be a band . . . and with welcoming signs and slogans . . . and a banner proclaiming 'Welcome Prime Minister to (your area).'"

Point Eight: Specifies the designated local representative of the Progressive Campaign as "Joe," with the final troublesome responsibility of "settling any differences" that may arise.

Point Nine: Here the "Tour Marshal" gets his marching orders . . . responsibility for providing case, all clearly marked to avoid confusion and delay . . . and for keeping the whole party on schedule.

Point Ten: Warns that "there have been occasions when the Prime Minister has been driven in cars that were not made by any standards — and the same applies to some of the drivers" . . . and serves notice that the cars "must be carefully selected, and the drivers professionals where possible."

Point Seven: Cautions that a three-hour daily work period must be scheduled to allow the PM to attend to his official responsibilities in communication with Ottawa, prepare his speech, dine and rest" . . . and makes it plain that "unless there are very special reasons" there can be no "breaking" of this routine. "please remember that while the day of the Prime Minister's visit is hectic and full for all concerned it is actually only one day for those in your area, but for us it may be for them, but for the PM it is from 14 to 18 days of hard, steady campaigning."

Point Twelve: Notes that "while your management is given to ideas providing color, warmth and human interest to speeches, for all concerned it is actually only one day for those in your area, but for us it may be for them, but for the PM it is from 14 to 18 days of hard, steady campaigning."

Point Twelve: Notes that "while your management is given to ideas providing color, warmth and human interest to speeches, for all concerned it is actually only one day for those in your area, but for us it may be for them, but for the PM it is from 14 to 18 days of hard, steady campaigning."

The PM system: "those always with the PM . . . have yours three hours in advance. . . . Any 20 minutes before meeting, then regularly up to the moment of use . . . for instance, Mrs. Hall will have a technician on hand."

Decorations: ". . . make every effort to give the hall, and particularly the platform, a warm and atmosphere as possible . . . very effective to have large 3-D signs reading slogan reading 'John Diefenbaker, Prime Min. for all Canada' or 'We Want John Diefenbaker.'"

Advertising: ". . . the PM's visit should be well advertised by the radio and TV spots and in radio and TV spots and flashes . . . the content should take the form of an urgent invitation to everyone to come and meet and hear the Prime Minister . . . experience has shown that the sure and certain way to build a full audience is to have a committee of women phone every single name in the book and issuing a warm individual invitation."

Other points specify the duties of "warm-up" is the maximum . . . and "most important there be no 'thank-you' speech, since Joe will finish his speech with a climax which it will be extremely hard for anyone else to improve on."

There are other items . . . but this is the gist of it. We are going to underline that planning and directing a campaign can hardly be an uncomplicated rest-cure.

TEST OF CHRISTIAN BELIEF

What does it mean to be a Christian?

The New Testament states the requirements by saying that we must believe on Christ if we would be saved, and believe in Christ, and to believe in Him means to be His friend. And to be His friend means to obey Him. It all comes down to the end, to a personal relationship with Christ which implies a will to be obedient to His commands.

Christians are friends of Christ and they take Him as their friend. The test of belief is one's willingness to follow.

Molotov Case Mysterious

Montreal Gazette

Molotov is one of the old-line Communists who has never wavered in his devotion to Stalin, or Stalin's memory. He is quite unrepentant, even when Khrushchev launched the celebrated attack on Stalin. But what is most significant is that Molotov seems to have the power, at least very largely, to stand up to Khrushchev. Since Molotov was demoted to a minor post in Vienna, Molotov was summoned back to Moscow for the 21st congress of Russia, and being publicly attacked and repudiated by Khrushchev. He was singled out for the most savage blame, as being one of those who were most responsible for all that went wrong in Russia. He was called "political corpse."

Yet the corpse remains surprisingly active, and quite influential. Though attacked repeatedly by Izvestia, the journal of Khrushchev's regime (edited by Khrushchev's son-in-law), Molotov has replied by circulating a paper of his own. There he claims that the standards set by Marx, Lenin and Stalin are the only right ones! Russia is endangering her future by the policies of Khrushchev. Molotov calls for a direct confrontation with Khrushchev before their colleagues, on the merits of the whole knowledge and experience.

In the meantime, the Chinese Communists, having many difficulties with Khrushchev, have been praising Molotov highly. He, and not Khrushchev, is to them true Communism.

Rumors about Molotov's behavior have been persistent. He remains in Moscow. Rumors of his bad health have proved false. He is not dead. He has a heart attack, only a cold. He appeared in the Kremlin's last election, to cast his ballot only half an hour before Khrushchev entered the same polling booth.

This strange man, in the next few days will walk out and give locking out behind phonetic glasses, remains upon the Moscow scene. His presence in official corpse suggests that he may have some influence still with Communist leadership, and that Khrushchev may be given no best trial before the outward confidence would seem to indicate.

To Your Good Health

Removal of Torn Portion Of Cartilage Gives Relief

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has a torn cartilage in his knee. An operation has been suggested.

Could you give us some information, too, because we are confused. Do the sharp pains come from a torn knee or surgery? How dangerous is the operation and what are the complications? What, exactly, is cartilage? — Mrs. M.S.

Cartilage is a fairly tough, smooth, elastic sort of material — not muscle, not bone, not tissue. One kind of cartilage gives shape to your ears. Lots of families fish "frogs" are a cartilage.

In the knee (and other joints) layers of cartilage provide the smooth surfaces on which the bones slide so slickly.

The knee, however, is particularly subject to damage if subjected to pressures from certain directions, such as in a fall. Blows in football, basketball and other sports, can rip, loosen or even tear a piece loose from the cartilage.

Such injury hurts! And the pain persists. Sometimes prolonged immobilization will permit self-correcting healing, but this cannot be relied upon — and in any event, not too many people can afford the time to do this, especially since some success cannot be guaranteed.

Removal of the torn portion of cartilage is the usual surgical relief. Some years ago, before surgical techniques had developed to their present high state, there was sensible reluctance to "cutting" the knee, but this no longer is so.

The operation is not dangerous but it takes time before healing is sufficient to permit carrying the full weight on the leg. After all, with each step most of your weight has to be supported first by one knee, then the other.

Therefore one of the questions to be considered is how long your husband can afford the temporary disability while the knee heals after the operation. Nurses like to be busy people.

Since the operation is an "inserted" one, not one in emergency, you can choose when to have it available.

Dear Dr. Molner: Even a small amount of milk gives me severe cramps and diarrhea. I thought milk agreed with everyone. I've tried various substitutes, also buttermilk with a little soda discomfort. However, they do not take the place of fresh milk. — Mrs. M.H.

Milk is a wholesome food but subject, like everything else, to the adage that one man's meat is another's poison. Some people are allergic to milk. Indeed, I could point out two men in relatively young adults who as babies were fed on soy bean milk because cow's milk bothered them.

Buttermilk has the same amount of calcium as whole milk; drink it if it is less annoying to you. Have you tried condensed milk? It sometimes is well tolerated when whole milk is not. . . .

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the cause and cure for a carcinoma in urinary organs? This is a very annoying situation in a woman 73. — Mrs. C.H.N.

Cysts, annoying indeed. Carcinomas are bloody growths in the urethra or outlet from the bladder in women. Some result in gynecological cancers do, in a while case removal by cauterization may be required. The cause is uncertain.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P.O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill., for my booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15c in coin to cover handling and postage.

Dandelions Are Praised

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

In a few more days, we hope, the trees will be in bud, the fields will be green once more, and the dandelions will be springing their headlong and on the lawns and just about everywhere else. Dandelions are fine; we have said more out the value of this humble, commonplace flower than the amateur gardener regards as spread for and some of his most serious enemies.

Of course everyone realizes the dandelion is rather rank and coarse in its growth but most of the garden has worse faults. The only fault the dandelion has is that it is considered so common. If they were delicate and rare they would be cultivated at great expense and trouble, new colors and varieties would be developed, and finally the plant would develop into an important commercial property.

People claim the dandelion is a troublesome weed especially in lawns. If farmers only went back to the dandelion to contend with they would not worry much. The seed is spread for and with the wind, of course, and this makes it difficult to control dandelions completely. But they are out of bloom and out of sight, before any harm is done and this area is harvested.

Besides all this the dandelion is one of the brightest heralds of summer we have, and we would like to have it valued accordingly. They suffer the penalty of being commonplace, and the real beauty they offer to the world is unjustly scorned.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two elderly businessmen came around the corner just as the home-going bus drew away from the curb.

It would be ten minutes before the next one arrived. The two of them looked at it, and, furious. He banged his brief case against his leg and growled: "Now I'll have to walk!"

The other man nipped into the car, eager, hustling.

The tall, calm man turned to me.

"You would hardly believe," he said, "that that old boy is starving eighty. I'm only seventy-five myself. I marvel at him."

So we stood marvelling to ourselves until the bus came.

What if the Swiss British scientist may be right in his theory that our universe is nothing but one atom or particle in a supermiverse. And that the electrons we wifty-nilly use for targets are really infinitesimal universes. It is unsettling to even think that we might at this moment be whirling around in someone's super-cyclotron.

A Lift For Living

Conditioning Our Conscience

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Although the Creator puts a conscience in the original equipment of each person, God does not guarantee to keep it in condition. A conscience, like our bodily organs, needs care and exercise to keep it fit. And the conscience must be watched even more closely than the body, because its illnesses do not always make themselves known by aches and pains.

A sluggish liver gives one a dyspeptic feeling of discomfort, but a sluggish conscience may give us a kind of exhilaration. It may even make us feel that we are having the time of our lives, with no inhibitions to give us pause. The persecutors who stoned Saint Stephen, the Spanish Inquisitors who burned nonconformists at the stake, the Puritans who banished Roger Williams — those were all consciences and yet they were cruel. No, it is shallow thinking to say glibly, "Let conscience be your guide." Conscience must be exercised and cultivated if it is to be trusted.

What is involved in exercising a conscience so that "it is void of offense toward God and toward men," to use St. Paul's words? First of all, we would agree that it must be kept free.

FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE

Freedom of conscience is one of our most highly boasted goals. The settlers of this land fled from countries where churches exerted pressure on men's thought and worship. The Pilgrims and Puritans had emigrated from England where a state church made many difficulties for dissenters. The Huguenots came to the Carolinas from France where Roman Catholicism, the established religion, but Protestants under heavy disabilities. The Roman Catholics found in Maryland a freedom which they did not enjoy in England under the control of the Anglican Church. And the Quakers, who settled in Pennsylvania, came out of persecutions and prisons almost everywhere. America was settled by those who wanted to be "in heart and conscience free."

And, thank God, the principle of conscience free from ecclesiastical control has been pretty firmly established on the North American continent. The separation of church and state is a concept which no one dares challenge openly; but we must always exercise ourselves lest it might be undermined in practice through popular prejudice or the local predominance of some one religious group.

But even if we can keep conscience free from both church and state domination, its freedom would not thereby be guaranteed. Some consciences which are unaffected by state and church influence are still not free. Their freedom is like that of a stray dog that has no master and therefore follows almost any passerby who whistles to it. So many persons fall in behind any passing prejudice or whistling crowd. Such are the persons of whom mobs are made. Such are the pliable weaklings who play into the hands of demagogues, the demune, rabble-rousers. Yes, and such are the people who fall a big basket of say beckoning temptation.

TRUE RIGHT MASTER.

To be free, a conscience must have the right master. No finite authority, election or nation can function in free and orderly fashion until it settles the seat of sovereignty. Who has the last word? The President of the United States, seldom only one object — the national flag. Then our Chief Executive recognizes the sovereign power of the people, "We the people" can elect and retire our President.

Yet, when we submit the flag we say, "this nation under God."

When the British Commonwealth crowns a king or queen, the ceremony makes it clear that God is sovereign. Thus to the so-called "free countries" like England, Canada and the United States, our heads of state recognize a Higher Head. Like the apostle Peter, we "must obey God rather than men."

But, as Saint Paul said, to keep a conscience obedient to God requires exercise. It calls for straight, hard thinking. Some people feel that their consciences are clear mainly because their heads are empty.

If you think it is easy to know God's will, ask yourself what God would have you do about Uncle Archer or Carlos, yes, or about your teen-age daughter.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED K. WILSON

Would you recognize the long bubbling warble of a winter wren? Not many people would. Unless the very fine inch long bird is actually seen singing, it is hard to believe that the loud, ringing song could possibly come from such a tiny throat. The sweet, high-pitched voice rises and falls in a cascade of notes to match the real cascade beside which the winter wren so often perches. Listen for it in the April woods. The singer is trying to outdo the tinkling sound of falling water. And if you want to find it, look on a nearby log, or the root of a fallen tree. But before you have spied him the rapid, glorious song may come to a sudden end so sudden that one wonders if he was interrupted. If so, however, this is just his regular habit.

Later on, by midsummer, the singing period is over, and then the winter wren is even harder to find in the depths of the woods. In cool, moist spots, in swamps and beside streams. Unless fortunate enough to hear one of the little bird's trills (a high-pitched "tick" or a long, "stirring") discovery is difficult, because the mottled brown costume is most inconspicuous as the tiny wren hides under fallen logs and low shrubbery and pears into brush piles in its hunt for ground insects. So secretive, it is seldom seen. Although not as common, as its first cousin, the house wren, this bird is not as rare as we might suppose — just clever at evading us.

Citizenship Day Marked By St. Julien

On May 10th, the ladies of the St. Julien Chapter journeyed to their adopted school, Eggleston to help the children observe Citizenship Day, formerly known as "Empire Day".

While the ladies set up the standard, and arranged program, they were entertained by the children singing patriotic songs.

A film showing the life of Queen Elizabeth II was shown by Mrs. C. Cox, educational secretary and Mrs. M. Patterson assisted by Mrs. Julien Chappel.

After a brief talk on the significance of the day, the ladies served refreshments to the children and their teacher, Mrs. Reid.

Pr. Edward West UCW Holds 1st Regional at Ameliasburg

The first regional meeting of Prince Edward West United Church Women was held in Ameliasburg United Church May 9th, 1962. Mrs. O. Sills, president of Ameliasburg UCW, and Miss Hattie Hagadorn, secretary, welcomed the ladies.

Registration, Mrs. M. Sills, vice-president of Pr. Ed. West, opened the morning session by calling on Hazenbush to present its devotional. With Mrs. W. Fox at the piano, hymns were sung; Scripture was given by Mrs. R. Parks and Mrs. L. Hazenbush spoke on "Building On Christ." Mrs. Parks closed with prayer.

Mrs. Ola Sills gave the address. Frances Spear, Trenton, Wellington, was given by Mrs. H. Pierson, dress of welcome. The reply introduced the Bible study for two ways, by participating in the worship part of the service and then in study. Through worship service one gives herself to God and in Bible study God reaches through and tries to help.

Mrs. Spear took as her study the book of Ephesians, "The theme of the book being the Glory of the Church," where Paul spoke of the privilege of encouragement to the Gentiles at Ephesus.

The assembly divided into groups for discussion and answered a questionnaire which was taken about and discussed. It was noted that although the answers were varied, there was all more or less agreed on vital parts. Mrs. Spear closed with a summary and prayer.

INVITATION READ

Announcements consisted of a letter inviting the next regional to be held at Mossmeade in 1963. The invitation was accepted.

Nanaimo South Section Regional to be held May 22nd, 1962, in Grace United Church, Nanaimo.

Mrs. M. Sills asked those ladies with questions to ask, that they be placed in the question box for that purpose and these would be answered later.

Names of the nominating committee for officers of this Regional were given by Mrs. O. Sills, treasurer; Mrs. J. Wannamaker, secretary.

Mrs. C. Sine, Harold, literature secretary, gave an interesting half hour on various new books and especially recommended some that would help the new organization.

GREETINGS BROUGHT

During lunch Mrs. R. Smith-ston, Trenton, brought Greetings from Belleville Presbyterial as did Mr. L. Neddow on behalf of the Ameliasburg Charge.

The afternoon session began with Committee Discussions. Ladies meeting in 3 various groups: Finance — led by Mrs. A. Coulter, Belleville; program led by Mrs. G. Vincent, Picton; co-operation in Christian Education and Missionary Education — led by Mrs. J. Vrooman, Cobourg.

A memorial prayer for the departed was given by Rose Hall — U.C.W.

The afternoon devotionals was led by Mrs. M. Pulver, Miss A. Brickman and Mrs. R. Irwin of Victoria. Psalm and a solo, "The Stranger of Galilee" on the merrichordiane by Mrs. Irwin. Mrs. Pulver gave a reading — Miss Brickman closed with prayer.

Quiet music played by Mrs. Ed. Berry, C.G.I.T. leader.

Roll call was responded to by 19 organizations, followed by a organ selection by Mrs. W. Hendricks of Carrying Place.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. R. Smithson introduced the guest speaker of the day, Miss M. Howse of Newfoundland, Missionary for 33 years to the Indians of Labrador, Delhi, India, 1961. To her the highlights of this trip were: Bible Study and the Educational Conference was held in connection with the Presbyterian Church there are only 25,000 Christians in New Delhi. 70 new churches were built in the North Central last year, and even the Russian Orthodox Church there, had Open Communion — led by the Anglican Bishh — was free to anyone. Over 1,000 Missionaries all — 2,500 people were present.

International Missionary Council became an integral part of the United Church of Churches. This, Miss Howse stressed was particularly significant.

Some people refer to the Ecumenical Movement as the Ecumenical Counterpart of Paul's Missionary Journeys. In opinion is a worthwhile and necessary organization.

Despite, Miss Howse took as her key verse "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and men". Using the light of the answers before verified, there all more or less agreed on vital parts. Mrs. Spear closed with a summary and prayer.

One of Few Women TV Producers in Canada Has To Work Erratic Hours

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Betty Zimmerman, one of the few women television producers in Canada, says her erratic working hours make it impossible to "get involved with the rest of the world." But she likes it that way.

"I've always been taken up with whatever job I've been doing."

For the last 18 months the attractive blonde has been a CBC public affairs producer with CBOT-TV Ottawa. Between university graduation and her present job she worked with the National Film Board and Crawley Films. She also worked in radio and directed and wrote plays.

Betty was interviewed just before leaving for a five-month stay in Britain as winner of an Imperial Relations Trust bursary, the trust was founded in 1937 to strengthen ties between Britain and Commonwealth countries. Betty is studying the broad cultural aspects of television.

After her return at the end of October she plans a reunion with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zimmerman of Winnipeg, and her brother Bill, Winnipeg's chief probation officer.

Betty had violin lessons and studied radio technique in Winnipeg and was bitten by the theatre bug while in high school. The day she graduated with a political science degree from the University of Manitoba she left for Ottawa to work with the film board, staying nine years.

"An interest in the production and of films drew her to Crawley films despite a sharp pay cut. During the next seven years she was involved in the direction and production of TV commercials, public service announcements and the occasional documentary.

When she joined the CBC she expressed interest in educational programs. One of the two public affairs programs she produces weekly is Live and Learn, an educational project done with the co-operation of Carleton and Ottawa universities. The other, Weekend, is a family variety show.

In earlier Ottawa days Betty directed plays for the Ottawa Little Theatre and the University of Ottawa Drama League.

She also acted in and wrote three plays for children. Writing for children was wonderful discipline, she says. "Everything is so clean. Children can't stand loose ends."

STUDIES IN BRITAIN — Television producer Betty Zimmerman, winner of an Imperial Relations Trust bursary, is in England studying the cultural aspects of television. Mission Circle Enjoys African Talk, Slides

The regular monthly meeting of the Wm. Vila M.C. was held in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

President, Mrs. Nellie Bern, opened the meeting after which the business was conducted.

Mrs. Grace Pearson, treasurer, reported $533.12 had been sent to missions this year and that the group had gone over its allotment once again. Mrs. Jean Thompson, who is in charge of the "Wedding Cheer" informed the M.C. that some members would be subject to pay a small fine on overdue books during the past month.

Mrs. Helen Goodwin of Nigeria was in charge of the program for the evening. The group was favoured with a solo by Mrs. Diane Woolley, during the devotional period and a reading Elizabeth Stuart chose as her theme, "Oil of Life". The Scripture passage was read from Acts 1: 1-11 by Mrs. Alice Woodcock.

ILLUSTRATED ADDRESS

The highlight of the evening was guest speaker, Mrs. F. Baldwin, who gave an interesting address to the group by Mrs. Irene Woodcock.

Mrs. Baldwin, who was born in S. Africa and spent all of her life there until 10 years ago when she settled in Belleville with her husband and children, gave an illustrated address on South Africa.

The colored slides taken around the city of Cape Town were much enjoyed by all. The speaker told of the interesting fact that there were white Europeans in this part of Africa than all the rest put together and that it is necessary for everyone to learn the language. Both the African language as well as English. Public schools therefore require a three years' training program.

RICH COUNTRY

South Africa is a rich country with its noted gold and diamond mines as well as modern schools, universities, hospitals, etcetera. The only thing it lacks is a supply of fresh water and this is at a premium during certain times of the year.

The political situation in S. Africa was discussed briefly by the speaker as a huge boiling pot but it is expected to boil over any minute. A solution to the problem will not come easy and even the most brilliant minds do not seem to be completely baffled. Territorial segregation has been the means of building up great tension and fear among the people and the question of racial discrimination being lessened it has been increased enormously.

THE CHURCH'S WORK

What has the church done? It was the first to come and civilize the people but now the government and society have control over the church, and where you find a minister allowing participation, he will soon learn he has been demoted to a small parish or pension.

More and more of the English universities professors are instructing a new generation in Africa because of the existing situation. The Belgians also came to this country because of the political dilemma the country of S. Africa finds itself in, and where murders are being resolutely committed on a legal basis.

The speaker was thanked for her most informative talk by Mrs. Violet Demorest.

Busy Swiss Chocolate Factory Like Child's Christmas Dream

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Bern, Switzerland — In recent years, Swiss chocolate has become almost as closely identified with Switzerland as Swiss cheese. To see what all the fuss was about, we went to see for ourselves off for a tour of the Tobler factory.

A large saporior, Tobler is possibly the best-known Swiss chocolate in North America. Its "Toblerone" bar is found in the highest to deepest retail hut or can tell you there was enough chocolate around the plant to coat all the Alps.

You can sniff the factory for blocks around and the aroma doesn't leave the nostrils for days. If you can stand the thought of fast, you can usually make arrangements through the local tourist office for a visit.

The place is something out of a child's Christmas dream. More than 1,000 varieties of chocolate are produced here. Bars, candies, candied nuts, finished, and discarded (for breakage) chocolate like around the floor, stretching in rivulets and chunks. There are vast mixing machines where pounds of chocolate brown — plus batteries of automated machinery ready in the wrapping department.

MILES OF CHOCOLATE

There are miles of chocolate-laden belts equipped with rubber fingers to remove material automatically — by a skid-lift maker). The special workmen are extended to past member Miss Bell.

The devotional was led by Mrs. M. Griffith and Mrs. Dingsworth. The Scripture was read by Mrs. Dingsworth from John 35: 9-21. A poem, "The Glorious Minority," was read by Mrs. Griffith.

After closing the devotional, Mrs. Griffith introduced the guest speaker Mrs. Hickey, who is associated with the Women's Christian Temperance. She read a poem, "Our Love to Others" and spoke about the work carried out by the association.

Mrs. Reid thanked the guest speaker.

During the social hour, some games were played and won by Mrs. Wiley and Mrs. Dandord. Chocolate decorated cake for the meeting and thanked the lunch committee, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Mayell and Mrs. Twiddy for the refreshments.

"FROM MUSIC-BOXES TO A HARPIST"

"Anything that confirms or extends one's observations on life and character delights me . . ."—Byron.

Have you listened, we did recently, to the pleasing results of modern science that clips on to the phone) which makes "hold-ing the line" fun? Beautiful music instead of cold silence. Marvelous article one muses. Says Mr. H. Schwartz of Rachael's Dress Shop, who obtained this surprising arrangement installed from the Lyric Electric Company. If the line is in use it appears. Besides creating a soothing, pleasant atmosphere for our callers, it aids in shortening hours in a happy frame of mind.

This "captivating concert for the 'on-hold' caller" touched off several interesting incidents that occurred this very day. For later, at the dentist's, our discovered another musical adventure, known as a pain barrier, caused the operator's hand to slip.

It is a psychological sound and complete with earphones. These are worn by the patient who is given a hand control to operate two dials which regulate two distinct separate sounds. One is the relaxing aspect in the form of stereophonic music which has a compensated wave frequency for a soothing effect. The other is a random noise like a waterfall, known as White Sound, to block out disconcerting noises.

"The brain's inability to concentrate efficiently on more than one effort at a time," says my kid, "makes it possible to shut off the dentist's electrical whirr from one sensation by subjecting him to another stimulation of pleasure." Dr. Lawrence Cornell of the present Belleville dentistry who have been using it for years, agreed them with appreciative approval, children especially.

Still later in the day, we were given a letter written by the wife of Reverend Donald Milford Dilling, and sent to her good friend Mrs. [illegible] Belleville, con. 221 . . .

Dilling is now in the service of the Lord, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association, Mrs. Dilling has graciously made it possible to share this letter's content with our readers.

It was written during Mr. Dilling's concert tour in the Far East as a part of the United States Information Service program (USIS), which is playing an invaluable part in letting the people "of these countries know that we are truly their friends and that what we have to offer in skills and culture can be of value to them. All in all it is a most wonderful experience and I am so grateful to USIS and the State Department for entrusting me with this cultural mission.

"The audiences and I really have a gay time together aside from the concert. I am sure that they catch all my silly little jokes in my talk on the history of the many encores and around me after the concert to examine the large and full skirts me in their surprisingly fluent English.

Since her letter is a lengthy one, we shall continue with it, for several weeks, so that we may begin at the beginning and follow through with her delightful tour.

"She writes: "As one final example of the appreciation shown and the fine reception given to these cultural exchanges let me tell you what a leading Chinese business man in Malaya said several times to the American Ambassador Seaborn and me at the close of one of our concerts in a large crowded movie theatre.

"This sort of thing is worth more to the USA than two squadrons of jets."

Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg Credited With Discovery Of 200 Variable Stars

By DAVID SCOTT

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — A down-to-earth grandmother is exploring outer space beyond the ranges of astronauts and sputniks.

Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg, professor of astronomy at the University of Toronto, has been credited with discovering variable stars since before she came to this country from her native Massachusetts in 1935.

She is credited with the discovery of more than 200 variables, which are 10,000 to 15,000 light years away and indistinguishable to the naked eye.

The pulsating stars on which Dr. Hogg's lifetime hobby centres are in symmetrical aggregations of hundreds of thousands held together in a cluster by gravitation and belonging to the Milky Way—a system of 100 billion stars.

Each of the clusters exhibits less than two dozen variables, Dr. Hogg has published two papers on the 1,000 variables known.

Every summer night when there is no moon to fog her plates, Dr. Hogg photographs faint glimmers of light at the Dunlap Observatory in this town 18 miles north of Toronto.

WINTER FOR STUDY —

She sees the 74-inch reflector telescope as her camera. Her photographic plates are exposed at the top end of the 30 - foot long telescope.

The photographs taken by the grey-haired astronomer during the summer are catalogued and during the winter she studies them under various instruments to calculate their brightness, size, speed, and color.

The facts Dr. Hogg amasses on the variables are of particular importance in compiling stellar distances and the mile-measured expert is internationally known in scientific fields for 31 years of work.

Dr. Hogg was born in Lowell, Mass., the daughter of a banker who died when she was 13 years old. A favorite aunt whose hobby was astronomy may well have sparked the interest which has led her niece to astronomy.

After earning her MA and PhD at Radcliffe, Dr. Hogg went on to Harvard where she met her husband — to be, Dr. Frank Hogg, from Preston, Ont.

Following their marriage in 1930, the Hoggs moved to Canada, spent 3½ years at Victoria's Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, and then came to Ontario where Dr. Frank Hogg is the head of the University of Toronto astronomy department until his death in 1951.

WINS HONORS

Tracking down the elusive Cepheids has brought honors to Dr. Helen Hogg.

In 1950 she brought the Annie Jump Canon prize of the American Astronomical Society to Canada, for the first time, the prize is awarded every three years to the woman who has made the greatest contribution to science.

On May 26 this year, she will be awarded an honorary doctorate from the University of Waterloo.

Of her three children, only 20-year-old David has followed in her orbit. He is a radio astronomer on the staff of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, W.Va.

James, 24, trained in chemistry, and the tall wit is a teaching specialist at a Toronto high school.

Daughter Sally, after a brief career in journalism, has married in Orchis and is busy caring for grandsons Roderick, 7, and Graham, 4.

"I love stars and the more I study their behavior the more fascinated I become," said Dr. Hogg.

"But I am impatient it is because many people go through life without looking beyond the world they live in."

"FROM MUSIC-MAKES TO A HARPIST"

"Anything that confirms or extends one's observations on life and character delights me . . ."—Sheron.

Have you listened, we did recently, to the melody-phone (a name less device that clips on to the phone) which makes "holding the line" fun? Beautiful music instead of cold silence, unless while she waits, Betty Lou H. Schwartz of Hollywood's Dress Shop, who obtained this intriguing arrangement luxuriously from the Muzak Electric Company, "like the idea in my shop." Besides creating a soothing, pleasant atmosphere for one caller, it aids in keeping Betty Lou in a happy frame of mind.

This captivating concept for the "waiting" caller touched off several interesting incidents that occurred this very day. For lunch, at the dentist's, we discovered another musical approach to pain relief, namely, earned the musicians.

It is a psychological truism that complete with earphones. Tapes are worn by the patient who is given a choice of music to operate two dials which regulate the distinct and separate speech and the relaxing aspect in the form of stereophonic music (which has a comparatively new frequency for a soothing effect). The other is a garden scene into a symphony orchestra in Wichita Sound, to that end discomfort.

"The brain's inability to concentrate efficiently on more than one effort at a time," we are told, "makes it possible to so distract a person's attention away from pain by switching his thoughts to another stimulus that pain is lessened." The Psychology of the several Belleville dentists who have installed them, agreed with us that the idea appeared excellent, children especially.

Still later in the day, we were given a letter written by the world-famous harpist, Mildred Dilling, and sent to her aged Belleville friends, Mr. and Mrs. Dilling, a native of Belleville, several years ago, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association. Mrs. Deacon has graciously made it possible to share this letter's contents with our readers.

It was written during Mr. Dilling's concert tour in the Far East as part of the United States Information Service program (USIS) which is playing an invaluable part in letting the people "of these countries know that we also truly their friends and that what we have to offer is skills and cultural can be of value to them. All is all it is a most wonderful experience and I am so grateful to USIS and the State Department for setting me up with this cultural mission.

"The audiences and I really have a joy time together aside from the music. I am amused that they catch all my silly little jokes in my talk on the history of the harp and crowd around me after the concert to examine the harps and talk to me in their astonishingly fluent English."

Since her letter is a lengthy one, we shall continue with it, for several weeks, so that we may begin at the beginning and follow through with her delightful jaunt.

"She writes: "As one final example of the appreciation shown and the interest given to these cultural exchanges let me tell you what a leading Chinese business man in Iroh, Malaya said several times to the African Archbishop Soldein and me at the close of two of my concerts in a large crowded movie theatre.

"This sort of thing is worth more to the USA than two squadrons of jets."

Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg Credited With Discovery Of 200 Variable Stars

By DAVID SCOTT

RICHMOND HILL, Ont., (CP) A down-to-earth grandmother is exploring outer space beyond the range of astronauts and spaceships.

Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg, professor of astronomy at the University of Toronto, has been seeking out Cepheid variable stars since before she came to this country from her native Manchester in 1935.

She is credited with the discovery of more than 200 variable stars, including 10,000 to 15,000 light years away and indistinguishable to the naked eye.

The pulsating stars on which Dr. Hogg trains her telescope are the symmetrical expressions of hundreds of thousands of stars held together in a cluster by gravitation and belonging to the Milky Way—a system of 100 billion stars.

Each of the clusters contains less than two dozen variables. Dr. Hogg has published two catalogues on the 1,000 variables known.

Every summer night when there is no moon to fog her plates, Dr. Hogg photographs field glimmers of light at the David Dunlap Observatory in this town 18 miles north of Toronto.

WINTER FOR STUDY —

She uses the 74-inch reflector telescope as her camera. Her photographic plates are exposed at the top end of the 30 - foot long telescope.

The photographs taken by the green-haired astronomer during the summer are catalogued and during the winter she studies them using various instruments to calculate their brightness, size, speed, and color.

The facts Dr. Hogg amasses on the Cepheids are of particular importance in computing stellar distances and the multi-talented expert is interesting ally known in scientific fields for 21 years of work.

Dr. Hogg was born in Lowell, Mass., the daughter of a banker who died when she was 7 years old. A favorite aunt whose hobby was astronomy as well have sparked the interest which has led her niece to astronomy.

After earning her MA and PhD at Radcliffe, Dr. Sawyer went on to Harvard where she met her husband - to - be, Dr. Frank Hogg, from Preston, Ont.

Following their marriage in 1930, the Hoggs moved to Canada, spent 3½ years at Victoria's Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, and then came to Ontario where Dr. Frank Hogg was head of the mathematics department until his death in 1951.

WINS HONORS

Breaking down the elusive Cepheids has brought honors to Dr. Helen Hogg.

In 1950 she brought the Annie Jump Cannon prize of the American Astronomical Society to Canada, for the first time. The prize is awarded every three years to the woman who has made the greatest contribution to science.

On May 28 this year, she will be awarded an honorary doctorate from the University of Waterloo.

Of her three children, only 20-year-old David has followed in her path. He is a Physics student on the staff of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, W.Va.

James, 24, trained in chemistry, and Eric fall will be a teaching specialist at a Toronto high school.

Of her father Sally, after a brief career in journalism; has married in Toronto and is busy caring for grandsons Roderick, 7, and Graham, 4.

"I love stars and the more I study their behavior the more I understand I don't," said Dr. Hogg.

"If I am impatient it is because many people go through life without looking beyond the world they live in."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

PLANNING A GIFT FOR THE BRIDE

Over one and one-half million girls will be married this year. And this means that many more millions of relatives and friends will be pondering the all-important problem of wedding gifts.

When are certain rules concerning wedding presents that it might be well to recheck now that the season is full upon us.

When a gift is sent before the wedding — as it should be, if possible — it is always addressed to the bride, even by those who may not be acquainted with her, and sent to her home. When it is sent after the wedding, it is addressed to both the newlyweds. A namecard or a plain white card is enclosed with a brief hand written message of good wishes. If there is any long delay in sending the gift t- say, weeks or months after the ceremony. It's courteous to include a short note of explanation.

Gifts practical, as well as sentimental, reasons, wedding presents should have a lasting quality. Decorative accessories, ranging anywhere from a crystal ash tray to leather desk accessories are appropriate.

Sterling silver is a traditional wedding present. The parents of the bride usually start the ball rolling with a number of place settings in sterling flatware. Friends who wish to give place settings or serving pieces of sterling should check first with a local bridal registry or the bride's mother for the pattern choice and pieces she needs.

Before having a present initialed, friends should find out the bride's preference in style and whether she's using her own initial or a combination of her initials and the groom's. Again, the bride's mother or the local registry can supply the correct data. If there's any doubt, a gift may be sent unmarked, and arrangements made to have the initialing done later.

A gift of money usually is sent only by very close relatives and friends of the bride and groom. If sent before the wedding, a check is made out to the bride, using her maiden name, and sent to her home. A check sent to the bride after their marriage is made out to both — "Mary Ann and John Jones" — and sent to them at their new home.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. B.U.—Marriage isn't for teen-agers.

Ginger U. — Age isn't sufficient reason to stop us.

Mrs. B.U. — Ginger is only 16 and just because her 19-year-old boy friend has a good job she wants to get married in September instead of going back to school.

I'm trying to tell her that she and Bill can't have any part in the idea of what marriage is all about. She thinks that yearning and pining for each other is all that matters, and that when a girl finds a boy she feels that way about, especially when the boy is making $75 a week, why wait?

I know I should stop them. I know they should go back to their studies and learn more about life and the world. But Ginger thinks she knows everything at age 16. How can I slow her up?

• • •

Ginger U. — Suddenly my mother wants to slow me up. But when I was only 9 she used to brag about all the boys I had. And I've been dating since I was 11.

Now I'm tired of all the silly dressing up, the boring parties, and fighting off the wolves who want to put on the wolf act. Bill is the most perfect gentleman I've ever met. I feel safe and completely at peace with the world when I'm in his arms. Why not stay there forever?

He's a high school graduate and holds a wonderful job as a garage mechanic. We can live on what he makes. And I'll finish school in the evening session. Mother should be glad I'm so lucky.

• • •

The Council: The files of the Family Service Assn. of America include the case of a couple who married at the same age as Ginger and Bill. A year later they were wishing each other dead. And she, pregnant, slashed her wrists in a gesture they had taken on adult-problem movies while they were still chronologically, physically and emotionally in the adolescent stage of their lives.

After reading what we say here, Ginger may insist, nevertheless, that she and Bill are exceptions. Maybe she's right. Maybe hers will be one of the rare teen-age marriages which succeed. Statistics issue the odds to be against her. In general, the lower the age level, the more emotionally, educationally and socially stumbling the marriage proves to be.

But think, Ginger, upon what's really ahead. Less glitter, less idealism and excitement of a wedding. No more dreaming. Just reality. No maybe, it's "some day." The daily imperatives of laundry, meals, dusting, scouring, marketing, plus the responsibility for keeping up Bill's boiler belt at the world. It, that this was the right thing to do. Plus, possibly, responsibility for a baby. This, while your former classmates are preparing for their catalogues and painting scenery for the Junior dance.

In "What About Teen-Age Marriage?" — written for her readers by Dr. Jessie Sakel — she suggests that four conditions are behind it: boredom, jealousy, loneliness and fear. If Ginger sees some truth here, she suggests that she ponder other way to relieve her condition. None of these is a good reason for marriage to Bill, nor will marriage remove them.

To Mrs. U., who wants to slow things up, all we can say out is that the slowing down should have come years ago. Ginger's precocity was a joy at 9. Now at 16 it's a nightmare. Perhaps she can parry for time, get Ginger to learn to cook, to take some premarital counseling and above all, to return to school. In a year, both young people may be more amenable to plans for a marriage that isn't about.

As epilogue we cannot resist offering Ginger these lines by George Meredith. We suggest she share and discuss them with Bill: "To anchor the heart on a shoal certain to be left by the tide as the world moves, is youth's foolishness."

The Golden Years

Sex During Retirement Years Subject for a Short Column

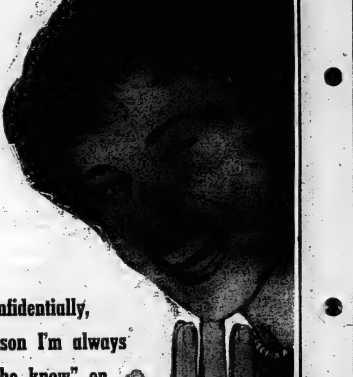
By THOMAS COLLINS

"I am a woman of 58 and have been asked by a man of 60 to marry him. Does he expect sex?"

This is a delicate question. But it is an important one to men and women approaching the retirement years . . . and both the married and unmarried ones. It seems fitting that this column get into the subject, with only kind of information it can give — which is what people voluntarily write in to the column. And the just might be a little more reliable than what people are getting from some other sources.

What people write in to the column would indicate that the woman who asked the question above had better consult a physician. She is at an age when men and women are prone to be troubled by their glandular secretions. Quite frequently, she is a victim of hot flashes, nervousness, irritability and depression.

What people write in would also indicate the following:



MAY BE WRONG

That the jokesters who make fun of the man who is announces that his 26-year-old wife has given birth to their first child are wrong. They may be right, too. But they can be wrong.

That the woman past age 50 or so, if married, isn't too interested in the matter. If her marriage is good, she is tolerant. If it is not she is negative.

That the woman of 35 or so who has not married is strongly sleepy.

I DON'T MISS ANYTHING!

Confidentially, the reason I'm always "in the know" on who is doing what when, where, how and why is that I read my newspaper regularly and very thoroughly!

Your quickest, easiest way to get the most complete and accurate knowledge of what is going on in the world (and out of it) is to follow the example of this little lady and read your newspaper thoroughly, thoughtfully. The latest happening across town . . . the momentous event across the world . . . the newest satellite circling high above it . . . you can "read all about it" at your own convenience, at any hour of the day or night, at your home, office, or on the bus . . . in your newspaper!

Boy Is Short, Girl Worries

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have been going out with a very nice boy recently. The only drawback is that he is shorter than I am. Most of my friends accept this but then there are others who don't and as I live in a very small town you can imagine how hard it is for me.

We always have lots of fun together. Is because he is shorter than I am any reason why I shouldn't go with him? Every time some of my girl friends have made rude remarks, this has been bothering me. — W. P. S.

• • •

DEAR W. P. S.—None whatever. The stature of a personality is what counts. Some of your pals are showing how "small" theirs is.

When out with your shorty, wear low heels and clothes that do not emphasize your height. Low hair-do's and horizontal lines in dress patterns help a good deal. Then forget about the subject of height when you are with him.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I came to this country four years ago, when I was 46. I am a single man. I have been self-employed, in a small way, ever since.

Now I find myself in poor health, and with my money nearly gone. They tell me that immigrants seeking relief or welfare of any kind are being deported. If so, would becoming a Canadian citizen help me in any way, if I could afford the fee?—PAINTER.

• • •

DEAR PAINTER—You can have help. While there is legislation on the books which provides for deportation of aliens without means of support, it is our experience that this legislation has been used very little. Canada wants its newcomers.

After five years here, you will be eligible to apply for citizenship (the fee for processing of certificate being $10). This is the only charge. This is desirable, not only to get support, but for the sake of belonging. You may then vote, move about more freely, and feel a little less like a stranger in a strange land.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—After ten years at timekeeper in a factory I am considering taking up social work. The experience has been broad, but I have no small inheritance from my father's estate, and my wife and I think I could manage to finance the two years it will take me to complete my BA, by working part time.

It has long been an earnest desire of mine to enter the profession of social work. I know this will mean some postgraduate work.

What I would like to know is: (1) Could I then study social work as a part-time student or as a full-time student? (2) What are the prospects of being employed by an agency on a part-time basis, while studying? (3) Are there any forms of scholarships or other means of assistance for one intending to make a vocation of social work?—WAYNE.

• • •

DEAR WAYNE—Such is the need for social workers that Canadian schools of social work will bend every effort to make the course possible for you, providing your personal qualifications are right.

I have known students to work their way through, but this could mean taking five or six years for the two-year course. I have known others to receive bursaries or other help which made the way easier.

Mature men do change their middlestream, as it were, to find their star in another profession.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—When I am older I want to be an actress. Right now I am 13. How old would I have to be to be an actress? Would I have to do grades 11, 12 and 13?

Would I have to go to university? If I did have to, for how many years would the money would an actress get for being in a movie? Whereabouts in California is Hollywood?—SCHOOLGIRL.

• • •

DEAR SCHOOLGIRL—One at a time, please!

You need all the education you can take. Some movie actresses have done very well without a university degree, but the more you know, the more doors are open to you—whatever profession you go into.

From all I hear, the salaries paid to actresses who star are fabulous, but by far the most of them never become more than extra hands and bangers-on who merely eke out a living. You are hired at all. Take a look at a map if you want to find Hollywood.

P.S.:—Most young ladies have daydreams about becoming actresses at one time or another. Don't let it throw you—too far!

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. J. W.—What some women put up with is away beyond me! Why on earth do you want to keep living with a man who breaks your ribs, drinks constantly and is in jail over and over again?

A letter from me is not going to solve your problem. You would be well advised to go to your family doctor and follow their instructions to the letter. Don't break down at the last minute, but follow through. The law is on your side.

• • •

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Non-Figurative Art Is Too Premature Says Artist Who Resigned From Que. Council

By JACQUES TREPANIER

MONTREAL (CP) — Alfred Pellan, one of Canada's well-known artists, has definite ideas about what a painting should look like and he thinks that, due to his resignation from the Quebec Arts Council.

Himself the first recipient of a Quebec government bursary to study art in Paris, Pellan quit the 23-member body that recommends similar scholarships for young Quebec artists, musicians and writers.

He elaborated on the "personal reasons" behind the decision in the artic studio of his century-old home in suburban Ste. Rose.

Although he admits to the surrealist influence of Picasso on his own work, Pellan has no liking for abstract or non-figurative painting.

"As far as I am concerned, non-figurative art is a blind alley. Worse than that, it is provocation.

"Whenever I look at a non-figurative canvas, I feel the urge to complete the work," he said, striking a pose.

Art was decadent the world over. However, young artists were not to blame for trying to do "something new."

"What I don't like is the painter who scorns figurative art. Non-figurative art is too premature."

Pellan's own work has won him recognition in many parts of the world. He has captured numerous prizes and distinctions in the capitals of Europe and has exhibited widely in Canada, the United States and South America.

Born in Quebec City, the painter graduated from the Ecoles Beaux Arts in 1930 after studying there for five years. Of those courses, he carried off first prize medals for painting, design, sculpture, anatomy, advertising and anatomy.

His government bursary provided for a stay in Paris from 1938 to 1940, but he stayed until 1946.

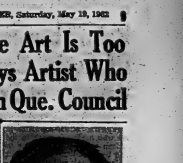
Returning to Canada, he taught painting at Montreal's Beaux Arts school until 1953, then returned to Paris for a three - year bursary from the Royal Society of Canada.

HIGHLY REGARDED

His friend and contemporary, Robert LaPalme—now cartoonist for Montreal La Presse and Journal — describes Pellan as "the greatest artist Canada has ever produced."

"Since he returned to Montreal in 1953, the quality of painting in Canada can be divided into two periods—before and after Pellan."

Presenting the arts council side of the story, the government official who asked that he not be identified said that he had no reason to reproach the arts council in submitting his resignation.



He added that Pellan has certain distinct individualities, and that he has expressed with considerable talent but that his figurative inclinations have made of him "non-figurative ones of certain council members. For that reason, the official said, he preferred to resign rather than continue in the company of those who don't share his ideas.

Pellan now is painting several murals commissioned by a Montreal architect. When they are finished, he plans to return to his regular painting.

"I have enough canvases to complete," he said. "I won't move a step from here this summer. There's plenty of work ahead of me."

KEEPING WATCH

LONDON (CP) — A closed-circuit television system has been tried experimentally in the members' rooms of the House of Commons. It may replace the annunciator boards that indicate the debate and the name of the member speaking at the time.

QUITS ART COUNCIL

Some viewers on painting prompted artist Alfred Pellan's resignation from the Quebec Arts Council, a 23-member body that recommends scholarships for leading artists, musicians and writers. Pellan, one of Canada's leading artists, disagreed with members of the council who support abstract or non-figurative painting. — (C.P. Photo).

Robt. Thompson, New Head Of Social Credit Party, Believer in Free Enterprise

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—An Alberta boy who made his start in the African hinterland is bidding to lead the Social Credit party out of the federal political wilderness.

Robert F. Thompson stepped into the Social Credit leadership last July, only three years after his return from 15 years as an educational leader in Ethiopia.

Since then he has concentrated his considerable skills as an organizer and public speaker on the job of restoring Social Credit as a political force at Ottawa following its obliteration in the 1958 election.

Youngest of the four national political party leaders, Mr. Thompson, 43 on May 17, is making his first try for elected office as a candidate in his home constituency of Red Deer in central Alberta.

But he has a strong association with Social Credit, dating back to 1936-37 when at the tender age of 16 he was one of a select group who attended weekly leadership classes conducted by the late William Aberhart.

FORCEFUL ORATOR

After Social Credit's surprise 1935 election victory in Alberta, he became party organizer in Manitoba the following year and the party solicited five members to the legislature at Winnipeg.

A dark-haired, sad-eyed man of medium height and sturdy build, Mr. Thompson is a precise and forceful orator. He's a firm believer in free enterprise and strongly critical of what he describes as a drift by Canada towards a socialist state.

Robert Thompson's return to Canada from Africa in 1958 coincided with the low point in Social Credit's national fortunes. After having sent 19 MPs to Ottawa in 1957—the most ever for the party—Social Credit was blasted at the federal polls in 1958 though in both government power in Alberta and British Columbia.

With party leader Solon Low in poor health and semi-retirement from the national leadership, the party hoped for nearly three years that either premier Manning of Alberta or Premier Bennett of British Columbia would take over. Finally, both premiers said they weren't interested.

BORN IN U.S.

Mean while, in 1960, Mr. Thompson had been chosen president of the national association and began to put new life in the organization.

At a national convention July 1961, he was the leading first choice as leader, winning on the first ballot in a three-way contest. He e r - up: Real Caouette of Rouyn, Que., a former MP for Pontiac - Temiscamingue, was made deputy leader.

Mr. Thompson was born in Duluth, Minn., of Norwegian parents who had pioneered in Western Canada at the turn of the century. At the time, his father was tending business in the college there.

The family returned to Canada when he was three years old and he grew up on the family homestead at Innisfail in central Alberta.

He became a teacher and a chiropractor. He hasn't practised for more than 30 years but uses the title of doctor—he received a doctor of chiropractic degree at Davenport, Iowa, college—and recently was elected president of the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College in Toronto.

DEDICATED EDUCATION

He styles himself as an educationist, however, and it was in that role he went to Ethiopia in 1943 as head of a nine-member team of American and Canadian doctors, nurses and teachers following the liberation of that country.

Early in the war he had enlisted in the 15th Alberta Light Horse Regiment and later transferred to the RCAF where he served as an officer in the Commonwealth air cadet training program.

In Ethiopia he organized the country's Imperial Air Force training school, for several years was principal of the Emperor Haile Selassie second primary school and from 1946 to 1951 was director of provincial education.

He organized the country's Boy Scout movement—a natural role for the former scoutmaster at Innisfail — and headed a leprosy mission to primitive tribes in east Africa.

He also travelled on special assignments for the Ethiopian government to other African nations and to India, Pakistan, the Middle East and Europe.

He is a member of the Free Lutheran church, but his activities as a layman have had a strong interdenominational flavor.

He and his wife, Mazel Maxine, have eight children, five of whom were born in Africa.

Your Car

Not What But How You Drive

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

Let's say you own a real peppermint car you can depend on to take off in rocket style and leave traffic behind. But then, you match mileage notes with others — especially someone who drives the same model — and you're an also ran.

Tell your dealer about it. May be he can help. Of course he can't reduce the car's gas appetite if you keep it hungering for more. In most gripes about gas mileage, it's a question of how rather than what you drive. A recent test report emphasizes this.

On successive days, two different drivers took the same car, using the same gas, oil, etc., over the same 100-mile course. One was a state road and traffic conditions. Driver "A" averaged in 2 hours and 12 minutes. He averaged 47.2 miles per hour while burning 8.4 gallons of gas, for a rate of approximately 11¾ miles per gallon. Driver "B" took 2 hours and 50 minutes, averaged 40 miles per hour while using 9½ gallons of gas, for a rate of approximately 18 miles per gallon.

From: A.R.: "Is it necessary to replace a spark plug as soon as the firing points are partly worn, even though they may be still correctly gapped?"

(A) For performance it is. A plug with worn electrodes is similar to one which has an over-wide gap setting: it takes a stronger voltage to jump across with the right gauge.

N.P. writes: "If a full flow type oil filter is neglected too long, is it possible for dirt to clog it so that the oil flow is completely blocked?"

(A) It is possible, but most filters incorporate a by-pass to prevent this.

E.D. asks: "Does it mean anything if the generator is noisy?"

(A) Normally, the generator is about as noiseless as a moving part can be. When it's not, mechanical trouble suspects are loose mounting or drive pulley, worn commutator, improperly seated brushes.

From P.C.: "I can hear a squeaky noise which I think is from the fan belt. So no one said that ordinary soap will stop this, is it OK to use it?"

(A) You can use soap, but you can also get a belt dressing which is meant to do the job better. Incidentally, if you have any doubt about your diagnosis, you can double check it by removing the fan belt for a few minutes to see if the noise disappears.

The Rea brothers have been producing Havana cigars in Toronto for 56 years. Lighting up are two of the brothers, Lazo (centre), at 71 the oldest, and Henry, 61 (right), with employee Joe Juarez. Purges, Which Wiped Out Old Soviet Intelligentsia, Told by Author Ehrenburg

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet author Ilya Ehrenburg told today how Soviet intellectuals during the Stalinist terror of 1937-38 spoke frankly only to their wives — "and then at night with their heads under the bedclothes".

Ehrenburg wrote of the purges which wiped out the old Soviet intelligentsia in the April issue of the monthly organ of the Soviet Writers Union, published here today.

It was the first personal account to appear in literary form by a writer who lived through the wave of terror which shook the country during President Stalin's life.

Ehrenburg wrote how he arrived in Moscow Dec. 24, 1937, after reporting the Spanish Civil War.

In his flat that night he was told what was happening: "There was a flood of names and each was followed by the word 'arrested.'"

'DON'T ASK'

Ehrenburg said his friends told him: "Don't ask about anybody. If you are invited to a conversation about them, don't carry it on."

Next morning he went to the office of Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper. "I was convinced, but I didn't recognize a single face.

"In all of . . . advice I asked where this or that person was. One was told: 'Such-and-such's days have vanished.' Another would just wave his hands. But there were those who hurriedly walked away."

Ehrenburg wrote: "In the circle of my acquaintance, no body was sure of the next day. Many a sad farewell was pushed for any occasion with two changes of warm underwear."

He quoted Isaac Babel, a Jewish writer who was later arrested and died in prison, as saying: "Nowadays a man speaks frankly only to his wife — and then at night with their heads under the bedclothes."

To millions of Russians Stalin became a "demigod," Ehrenburg added.

"We thought — probably because we wanted to believe in Stalin, did not know of the people's real violence involving Communists and the Soviet intelligentsia."

He claimed that one night when taking his dog for a walk he met Nina Pastornak, the Soviet author later disgraced for his novel Doctor Zhivago, which became a bestseller outside the West.

Pasternak waved his hands among the snowflakes and said: 'If one could only tell Stalin about the Literaturnaya case.'"

Ehrenburg's only comment on how he survived the purges is:

"If I were a religious man I would ascribe it to God's ways are inscrutable . . . But in an atheist man's fate resembled not chess game but a lottery."

Unfair to Say P.M. Tried to Duck Meeting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Friday he had every intention of having a roadside meeting with Liberal Leader Pearson in Nova Scotia Wednesday.

But he had been told Mr. Pearson was travelling in a bus. He had stopped when the bus approached only to find Mr. Pearson had passed him earlier in a fast-travelling car.

He said at a press conference it would be most unfair and unjust of the Liberals to try to make him out ducking a meeting with Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew here from Charlottetown in four hours.

Mr. Diefenbaker said during his airborne press conference that he had received "wonderful". Crowds were larger than in the 1957 and 1958 campaigns.

He was pleased with election prospects in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Manslaughter Charge Laid Against Welder

TORONTO (CP) — James Murphy, 27, a welder, of Toronto was charged with manslaughter Friday night in the death by drowning of Stanley MacIvor, 26.

Mrs. MacIvor was found dead on a bed in a Toronto rooming house early Friday. Her husband was found dead in a bathtub of cold water on the back of her head. The coroner's verdict was that death was caused by drowning.

Mrs. MacIvor had reported to police hospitals in Toronto and had been living with Murphy in the rooming house.

The autopsy showed two head wounds they have not been determined as homicidal but could not have caused death.

College of Pharmacy Wants Prescription Drugs in Any Health Plan Formed

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario College of Pharmacy told the royal commission on health services Friday that a health care program for Canada should include prescription drugs from the start.

It advised, however, that a nominal charge be made for each prescription to avoid abuse. Such charges had been instituted in Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

The Canadian Society of Hospital Pharmacists urged that the federal government take steps to ensure that compounding of medicines by hospitals is carried out by licensed druggists.

It said that as of last June, 60 per cent of all hospital beds in Canada were without superviced pharmaceutical service performed by a druggist.

All hospitals with 75 beds or more should employ a full-time pharmacist, and an additional pharmacist should be engaged for each additional 100 beds "or major portion thereof."

Smaller hospitals could share the services of a pharmacist.

The College of Pharmacy drew attention to what it termed the increasing number of "physicians' clinics in the province.

"In many of these, medication is dispensed by unqualified persons," it said, which the college believes the commission will agree is fraught with danger to the public and should certainly not be allowed under any circumstances."

Gave Youth Only 5 Years

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheon took a gamble Friday and sentenced a youth convicted of manslaughter in the beating death of a 23-year-old father to five years.

Gary Vern Parkinson, 18, of Courtenay was found guilty in the death of Donald Butler who died in Courtenay Jan. 27 after being kicked and beaten as he lay on the road surrounded by a milling gang of youths.

Parkinson also was convicted of causing bodily harm and given five years concurrent.

The judge told Parkinson he said: "No punishment you can undergo will bring back the man who died. You have to live with that memory. I am going to take a gamble on you, Parkinson. Because of your youth I think you can be rehabilitated. Instead of giving you a heavy sentence I will make it five years."

Maximum sentence for manslaughter is life imprisonment.

OMA Pleads for Prompt, Effective Action to Halt Water Pollution in Ont.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association's week - long annual meeting ended here Friday with a plea for prompt and effective remedial action to halt increasing water pollution in the province.

The OMA adopted a report from its public health committee which said future expansion of present manufacturing plants and new industries will greatly increase the need for unpolluted water. Domestic consumption would increase rapidly as a result of labor-saving devices in the home.

Dr. P. J. Mahony, of Ottawa, committee chairman, urged more liaison between the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the Ontario Municipal Board, saying that in many cases, small towns that tried to follow OWRC advice and improve sewage systems ran into financial trouble with the OMB.

He noted that 40 per cent of the employment in Canada is carried on by industry, and said small towns would have a better chance of attracting industry if they provided clean water and good sanitary facilities.

Earlier, the retiring president of the OMA said the medical profession must maintain the "unceasing vigilance" to guard against encroachments on its professional freedom.

THOSE WHO DESTORT

Dr. R. E. Gregory of Arnprior said doctors must not be deluded by "those who would have us do their thinking, who would make use of expediency to gain their objectives, and by their belief they are working for the welfare of the people would encroach and abrogate the rights of any minority."

He said the outcome of the dispute in Saskatchewan between doctors and the government over the new Medical Care Insurance Act was of paramount importance and would leave an indelible mark on the future of medical practice in Canada.

The OMA's committee on child welfare recommended that a council be set up under the association's auspices to coordinate services and programs for handicapped children. The committee said certain handicapped children could live without expensive hospital care if treated early enough.

Secret Army Attacks Algiers Summer Palace

CP from AP-Reuters

ALGIERS—Secret Army terrorists attacked mobile gendarmes stationed in the Summer Palace with mortar fire today, then fled before a determined counter-attack.

The mobile gendarmes poured out of their headquarters and barracks after the entire district after engaging Secret Army terrorists in an exchange of rifle and machine-gun fire. Gray smoke billowed from the fired into a wooded heights area.

There were no reports of casualties on either side in the fighting.

The Summer Palace once was the home of France's delegate-general to Algeria, but now houses detachments of the mobile gendarmes, a military-type police force.

The mortar shells were lobbed into the grounds of the palace and burst in the lush tropical gardens.

Before smoke cleared away a patrol of mobile gendarmes in armored vehicles raced out of the plush palace grounds into the street.

UNLEASH FIRE

Suddenly rifle and machine-gun fire burst from the gendarmes' armored cars as they roared down the street. The gendarmes unleashed a heavy return fire.

Other gendarme units were rushed into the area to throw a blockade around it as the pelt-ing continued and the Secret Army commandos escaped.

The summer palace, a splendid white walled building in Moorish style and surrounded by a white wall, was long the symbol of French authority in Algeria.

It is not far from the heart of Algiers on a broad, palm-lined street that was once a pleasant strolling place.

The Secret Army commandos launched their surprise attack in what appeared to be an attempt to lure the gendarmes into the open and into an ambushments. The gendarmes came out but went into battle position swiftly, popped down the lids on armored vehicles and fired back.

BOMBS EXPLODE

Seven terrorist plastic bombs exploded in Algiers early today, one each in Moslem and wounding another.

At the European working-class quarter of Bab El Oued, police found the body of a European shot dead. It had been cut by the terrorist Secret Army Organization.

On the body was a note which read:

"We are a Secret Agent. I have been tried . . . thank you OAS."

In Algiers there was growing fears that Moslem-nationalists may launch a terror counter-offensive against the Secret Army.

The Algerian provisional government called on Moslems to take "effective measures" against Secret Army bombers and an Algiers Moslem commander declared that "we are on the brink of a 'bloodbath.'"

The Secret Army announced in a pamphlet that it was active in Algiers that it had started a "reconquest" and that it would by all means at its disposal" to smash French plans for Algerian independence.

In Paris the Communist-led Trade Union Organization said it had been threatened with "shock troop" action by the Secret Army. Many Moslems lived in Algiers and signed by former Gen. Salan, leader, the Secret Army chief.

The leaflet warned:

"The comedy has gone on long enough. It is high time to put an end to the French murderiaries against you Communists."

MISSILE A SUCCESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Preceded by a huge fireball, a Minuteman missile plunged out of an underground silo Friday night and propelled its warhead 3,000 miles on a successful test flight.

Earlier Friday, a Nike anmoke rocket darted nearly 13 miles high in the first of 80 launchings planned in a year-long program to chart wind patterns above Cape Canaveral.

Central Africa Federation Barometer Reads 'Stormy'

LONDON (CP) — The political outlook for the Central African Federation is virtually unchanged by recent federal elections, and the barometer still points to "stormy."

With apparently overwhelming support for the United Federal Party, federation Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky and his mandate to try to build Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland together in an association that must bring progress.

But a pretty hollow mandate it is, for the election in all three territories was boycotted both by rightist European parties and by Negro nationalists.

There was thus no real fight. Out of 59 seats, only 15 were contested. In the territories, including the federal capital, Salisbury, and most towns in Southern Rhodesia, government candidates were returned unopposed.

Ten of those were Negroes, but the United Federal Party commands the support of only a minority of the federation's 6,500,000 Negroes — mostly in Southern Rhodesia, where the Negroes are less politically vociferous than in Nationalist Nyasaland or Northern Rhodesia. Therefore the Negro vote in the federal election means little.

'HAS LITTLE SUPPORT'

As The Daily Herald expressed it: Sir Roy Welensky now rules 9,000,000 people with the support of only 1,250,000 voters.

The opposition parties were confident that Sir Roy have his victory because they have failed so far in the territorial elections this fall for Northern and Southern Rhodesia.

These are the contests that will decide the fate of the federation.

It is almost certain that under the new breakdown only stimulus for Northern Rhodesia's Kenneth Kaunda's Negro Nationalists will gain a measure of control there, though they will have to take decisive action while blunted to extract the necessary number of European votes.

If they do get control, Kaunda is sure to work to follow Nyasaland's •Hastings Banda out of the federation, which the Negroes distrust because they see it mainly benefits Southern Rhodesia's near-colonial rule for white settlers until the present unrest.

In the Southern Rhodesian elections, Prime Minister Sir Edgar Whitehead may have a tough job to retain power. At present his United Federal Party holds a narrow majority of two seats over the declared white Dominion party.

EDGAR HAS TROUBLE

Sir Edgar has run into difficulties lately in his attempt to break down Southern Rhodesia's color barriers. Of the country's 225,000 whites, there is a considerable proportion of the voters, many of them artisan immigrants fearing for their jobs against Negro advancement, who would be ready to ditch federation and "let the north go black and get on with it."

But the Dominion Party rose to power in the Southern Rhodesian election in 1958 after United Nationals Independence Party won in Northern Rhodesia. Federation would immediately fall apart again into three components—three unhappily divided along racial lines, with Southern Rhodesia largely in the grip of men who are sympathetic to South Africa's racial views.

The autopsy showed two head wounds they have not been determined as homicidal but could not have caused death.

Canada Will Take A-Arms If Necessary

NIAGARA - ON - THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Canada is prepared to accept nuclear weapons if world conditions deteriorate, Defence Minister Harkness and Green said Friday.

However, he added, Canada would take them unwillingly because the government is dedicated to preserving the threat of nuclear arms and wants to continue to be held in high regard by Communist countries as a sincere seeker of disarmament and peace.

Big Three Seems to Be Emerging From Little Six

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's a new twist in the European numbers game. By some dazzling sleight of hand, the little six is becoming the big six.

This is a sharp descent from the original arithmetic, which called for the six nations of the "little Europe" to join with the seven nations of the European free trade area. But six and seven added up to unlucky 13, and that settled that.

Now, while Britain tries sleightofhandedly to stretch the European six to seven, there seems to be a move within Europe to divide the six by half.

The hard - core revisionist would be France, West Germany and Italy. The Paris newspaper le Figaro notes this week that President de Gaulle in his Tuesday press conference frequently referred to the unity of the three major continental powers, pointedly leaving out Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

De Gaulle is irritated, particularly with Belgium and Holland, because they oppose his political design for a loose confederal Europe whose national sovereignties would remain intact.

It is interesting, in considering the big three idea, that de Gaulle has recently visited Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany and Premier Fanfani of Italy.

In such a Triumvirate, France and West Germany would tend to be dominant but Italy, economically thriving and politically more stable than in the past, is assuming increasing importance.

De Gaulle's "bifocal" view of European affairs was emphasized in his Tuesday conference when he pondered upon the genius of West Germany's Goethe, France's Chateaubriand and Italy's Dante, without so much as a mention for Shakespeare.

Ridgetown Editor Named Man of Year

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The main difference between newspaper editorial writing of today and that of 100 years ago is the disappearance of political allegiance, Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association annual convention was told Friday.

John D. Elliott, assistant editor-in-chief of The Free Press, the big daily, said editorial writers now is to help develop the community, not to convince readers of party virtues.

The delegates also discussed advertising and photographic techniques.

Edgar V. Bingham, 85, editor emeritus of the Ridgetown Dispatch, was named the association's newspaper man of the year. Mr. Bingham has been in the newspaper business 68 years and still writes three columns for editorials each week.

An award was presented by Russell Shearer, editor and publisher of the Blenheim News-Tribune, to neighboring weekly.

Mr. Bingham, born in Brampton, Ont., worked in printing businesses and newspapers in Canada and the United States before buying the Ridgetown Dominion in 1917. He sold the paper in 1957 but remained as editor.

The annual award for the best weekly newspaper in each page was won by the Leamington Post and News. It was accepted by editor Tony Duncan.

It also was announced that the festival finals next year will be held at Kitchener, Ont.

3 Civilians, Two Policemen Are Commended

KINGSTON (CP) — Three civilians and two policemen were commended by Magistrate James Garvin in court Friday for their part in the capture of three men who carried out what Crown Attorney John Sopinka described as a "particularly daring smash and grab" raid.

Sentenced to seven years in prison were Michael Sherman, David Smith, Charles Yellowly, and Ronald Bowen, all from the three robbers.

The two policemen are Constables Bernard Hembrow and Michael Flin who made the arrests at gunpoint.

Three Toronto men convicted of breaking and entering at a local three jewellers May 13 are George Michael Beaver, 28, Robert Mackenzie, 28, and Ronald Bowen, 23. They were sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary. William Michael Burke, 29, sentenced to 15 months definite and three months indefinite in the Ontario reformatory. All pleaded guilty.

They smashed the plate window of the tie store and stole 11 furs valued at $2,276.

Sports Snapshots

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Anything can happen in sport and if you want proof just ask Ed Kostenko and Jim Abrams.

Kostenko, from Victoria, had never shown any boundary as the first Canadian to compete in the 500 mile Indianapolis speedway classic on Second World War. A kid from the prairies, Jim Abrams, 21-year-old automobile racing driver in sporting what Jim describe as an "enormous" black eye.

It happened when Kostenko was browsing along in a practice run over the Indianapolis track. Far off course, the kid swerved over the infield and headed into Kostenko's plastic goggles. The driver managed to get back to the pits but examination showed — besides the shiner — a bleeding eye.

The medical report said he was okay but had to be "decidedly" out of the May 30 classic.

Guy Cecile of Toronto, horse owner Abrams was the successful bidder for Chemahpa in a $4,500 claiming race at Old Woodbine racetrack. The locomotive, getting broken from during the race and later was found to be lame.

LOSS INSURED

Under racing rules Abrams became the owner when the gelding stepped on the track and, to all intents and purposes, Abrams was out $4,500. But he's a canny chap—he had taken out an insurance policy against such a possibility.

Sports and oddities—and oddballs—meet in the backfield.

Last year at Fort Erie race-track Puss 'N' Boots, a favorite, created all sorts of confusion when he suddenly swerved, bowed his head and jumped into the infield lake for a swim during a race. It was a hot second for Puss 'N' Boots' cooled off for nearly 10 minutes before he was hauled out.

His backers could only throw away their tickets. A favor to an official starter once he charges out of the gate and heads for the hills, no matter, even if the animal drops dead.

There have been plenty of odd-ball incidents by sports writers. Like the guy who walked into the sidelights for the 1929 Grey Cup final at Toronto between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers and casually tripped touchdown-maker Roy (Bobbie) Bawol of Tiger-Cats.

STOLE THE BALL

Then there was the daring young man who walked between Ottawa Rough Rider and Hamilton Flying Wildcat kick-off in the Cup final at Vancouver in 1950 and stole the ball in the final seconds of the game. He ran off the field with the ball under his arms. The dumbfounded players simply stood around and let the official be promptly called a hak to pro-ceedings.

Ottawa had the game wrapped up, anyway. They trailed Edmonton 15-6 with only 45 seconds remaining.

The ball-stealer was a 22-do-nothing young man by the dog-catcher the guy who tackled a dog during a practice session for the big Rugsfield track in London a couple of years ago.

Instead, he got the arm around the favored Ballincles Betty. Dog and man rolled over and over as though wrestling. Stewards declared the race void and then things really

Major Leagues

Approve New Player Plan

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The major leagues, baseball's sick children, will get a new diet in 1963 when the major leagues will guarantee operation of 100 clubs in three classifications.

Although the majors have been supporting the minors, directly and indirectly, at an estimated cost of between $2,000,000 and $2,000,000 a year, the latest move is hailed as the first real practical solution to a very difficult problem.

The majors unanimously approved a new player development program, set up by the major-minor league committee, at Friday's joint session and which would be worked out later.

Basically, the majors will support 100 clubs, instead of six classes, there will be only three—Triple A, Double A and Single A. It is likely there will be 30 Triple A teams, 20 Double A and 50 Single A. The new classifications would eliminate B, C and D and which would be grouped in Class A while the present AA and A would become Double A. There are 110 minors this year, not counting the Mexican League and rookie leagues.

John Galbreath, owner of Pittsburgh Pirates and chairman of the committee, said:

"We hope the minor league operators will spend their time developing players instead of worrying about where to get money for the next week."

Eventually, each of the 20 major league teams would operate five minors.

Commissioner Ford Frick said the 100 clubs is a minimum figure. There was no ceiling on how many minors could operate.

CENTRE INJURED

TORONTO (CP) — Norm Sicastorph, all - star Eastern Football Conference centre for Toronto Argonauts, is in hospital with back injuries suffered when hit above the right eye and knocked unconscious by a golf ball Thursday. Doctors said it would be at least three days before a definite report would be possible on whether his sight would be affected.

Steve Rossi, Marty Allen Form Great Comedy Team

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a feeling in some show business circles that the time is ripe for the explosive comedy of a new comedy team, such as the gold mine combine once made up by Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

Since they started a number of years ago amid protestations of sweet sorrow and some acrimony, other comedy teams have risen but none has quite taken their place in the entertainment world spotlight.

Two Jewish song - and - chuckle merchants who do have the goal very much in mind are Steve Rossi and Marty Allen.

Since they joined up three years ago, they have been slowly maturing their act in night club appearances here and in Britain, and their comic catch phrase "hello dere!" has caught on with some success.

Their financial rating has gone up, too. Their annual earnings are in the six-figure bracket.

Steve, the stager, is tall, dark and handsome. He hails from Pittsburgh, and bears a well under the distinction of having once been briefly a leading man with Miss West in an act featuring a forest of masculine muscle.

Marty, who used to play stick ball in the streets here, is an ex - juvenile hitterbug champ. The natural clown of the pair, he resembles in animated London-derry bag topped by a tousled mass of hair that looks like an unmade magpie.

The two have appeared on several big TV network shows, but have largely built their present popularity on a successful recording and subsequent-to-coast night club tours.

They avoid sick humor, concentrate on topical situations and world events. Their greatest source: Daily newspapers, which each studies as assiduously as if he were an honor student in a high school civics class.

The two cast a considerable amount of broad political satire with their medley of wisecracks and comic situation gags.

Their next big springboard, they hope, will be a movie.

The question naturally arises: If he has dreams of Marty and Steve is to succeed Martin and Lewis, how do they get along together? The answer: Better than Martin and Lewis do.

"It's almost like being married," said Marty, smiling. "But we do use separate toothbrushes."

AT THE PARK — Cry of Terror — Hazel Court screams for help in a scene from American International's filmization of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Premature Burial". In Color, Ray Milland, Richard Ney and Heather Angel also star in the thriller opening Sunday midnight after (12.05) at the Park Theatre. On the same program mysterious, exciting and unusual in color "Rommel's Treasure", starring Dawn Addams and Bruce Cabot. Both features are first showings in eastern Ontario. Regular engagement starts Monday. Matinee at 1.30 p.m.

Great Lakes Research Ship "Porte Dauphine" Keeps Busy

Safeguarding Canada's Most Valuable Mineral

Smiley, twin balloons bob playfully in the breeze as they carry a compact package of meteorological instruments skyward. A string of thermometers and water samplers, lowered into the depths, is triggered by a brass-weight messenger sliding down the deep-sea wire. Fine-mesh plankton nets collect handfuls of micro-organisms. A heavy coring tube thuds deep into the lake bed, piercing through silt layers of the past 12,000 years. These operations and others, take place in the Great Lakes from a floating scientific observation platform — the Canadian Coast Guard Ship Porte Dauphine. The vessel is on loan to the Great Lakes Institute, formed by the University of Toronto in 1960. The Institute spurs research in the Great Lakes—largest body of fresh water in the world—provides training for graduate students in limnology and oceanography, co-ordinates research work between government agencies and universities. Under blue summer skies and in winter ice, the Porte Dauphine carries scientists and technicians who probe physical-chemical-biological conditions and changes in the Great Lakes.

Weather observations by kytoon provide temperature-humidity-wind data to 1,000 ft.

In 1961 the ship stopped at nearly 2,000 pre-arranged observation points in lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron, Superior and Georgian Bay, logged a distance equal to a trip around the world, made over 26,000 observations. Results of this work include vital knowledge of a growing threat—pollution. Blessed with more than half the world's fresh-water areas, Canada, especially southern Ontario, faces a growing shortage of this valuable mineral for industrial and economic needs—a shortage accelerated by pollution. Investigations by the Porte Dauphine and similar ships in the future will combat this man-made problem, will be a prime factor in keeping Canada's fresh water pure.

Prof. Roger E. Deane, director of research, discusses day's work with Captain Archie A. Hodge of Dundas, Ont.

Scuba-diver can check instruments under water.

Meteorological instruments suspended by kytoon. Vessel acts as weather ship, reports to Toronto's public weather office every three hours.

Meteorological boom obtains accurate data from 0 to 44 feet.

Clay Will Win In Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Daniels hopes to end two weeks leave from the barber tonight by lathering Cassius Clay in the television fight of the week.

If he does the 5-1 favored Clay in their heavyweight 10-rounder (ABC TV 10 p.m. EDT) at St. Nicholas Arena, the 25-year-old New Yorker will put aside his comb and clippers for a while and concentrate entirely on furthering his pugilistic career, if not, it's back to the barber shop on Monday.

A pro just two years, the 180-pound Daniels has compiled a 16-0 record, including seven knockouts, on the climb to his major opportunity against Louisville's self-proclaimed "future champ."

Billy is not ranked with the 20-year-old Clay, a pro only 19 months, is ranked seventh by the WBA and ninth by Ring magazine. Cassius has made loud noises since turning pro after winning the Olympic light heavyweight title at Rome in 1960.

Clay's record is 13-0, including 10 knockouts. He has stopped his last five opponents.

"I'd sure like to fight Floyd Patterson, Sonny Liston, Ingemar Johansson, and Eddie Machen or anyone," said Cassius. "But they're ducking me. Now I'm fighting this Billy Daniels because he needs a break like everyone else, I got my break. Just the same Daniels will fall to five."

Is there a chance he might lose?

"Man, if I lose, I'll have to leave the country after all of my talking," he replied.

'Like Micky Mantle

Baseball In Japan

NEW YORK (AP) — The best baseball player in Japan is third baseman Joe Yomiuri Giants named Shigeo Nagashima.

They call him "Japan's Mickey Mantle."

When a player is one of Japan's two major leagues—Central and Pacific—hits a home run, spectators rise and applaud gleefully.

"Like Mickey Mantle," they say.

When Tokyo Tykes, with crude sticks and balls, choose up sides for a game in the teeming alleyways of the Japanese capital, there can be heard the clamor of small voices in their native tongue:

"I'm Mickey Mantle."

"No, I'm Mickey Mantle—you were Mickey Mantle last time."

Then often follows a wild small - fry melee.

This is the picture of Japanese baseball brought here by Kazuo Takata, vice-president and general manager of the Chunichi Dragons baseball club of Nagoya.

Takata is here trying to land a couple of retired American players for his team, which plays in the Central League. He made overtures to Billy Martin and Robin Roberts, both rejected, and Thursday buttonholed Don Newcombe, the towering righthander who once won 27 games for Brooklyn Dodgers.

Newcombe, who retired after the 1960 season to run a New Jersey tavern, says Takata made him an offer which is hard to refuse. He promises an answer by Monday.

Japanese baseball players do fairly well financially. A good player may make between $20,000 and $30,000 a year.

Yankees Lose Game, Mickey Mantle Injures Knee, Out For Weeks

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fate of New York Yankee ace in the American League pennant race may rest on the off-injured legs of Mickey Mantle, the Yanks' Mr. Indispensable.

The Yankee superstar outfielder sustained a severe muscular tear and minor damage to his left knee in New York's 4-3 loss to Minnesota Twins Friday night. He will be lost to the Yankees for at least two weeks, possibly longer.

Mick collapsed about 10 feet short of first while running out a ground ball in the ninth inning. He hobbled from the field on the shoulders of teammates, and went to hospital.

Mantle suffered a muscle in his right upper leg while he was running on the grass. New York manager Ralph Houk said, "it knotted up and he couldn't put the leg down. All it needs is rest but heavily on his left knee."

Mantle's injury is actually an impressive list of Yankee injuries, which has helped contribute to the world champions' dive to third place.

Others included sore-armed relief ace Luis Arroyo and Roger Maris, who was suffering from a groin pull. Maris is due to return to duty today, Arroyo hasn't pitched in more than two weeks.

Cleveland Indians, getting a pair of homers and outstanding pitching from Dick Donovan, took over sole possession of first place with a 9-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

It put the Indians a half game ahead of Minnesota Twins who walked over New York, 9-3 for a full game up on the Yanks.

Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago White Sox 7-4 in 12 innings, Los Angeles Angels edged Detroit Red Sox 3-4 and Washington Senators edged Kansas City Athletics 5-4 in the others.

Harmon Killebrew, hitting only .196 going into Friday night's game, hammered a two-run homer that wiped out a 5-3 New York lead and set up the earlier run with a double as Minnesota won its fifth straight and 10th in 13 games.

Twin right-hander Don Lee (3-4) limited New York to seven hits, but needed relief help from Ted Abernathy when the Yanks threatened in the ninth. Whitey Ford (3-3), the Yanks' ace, failed to subdue Minnesota this season, lost.

Cleveland got off to the best start of his career, tossed a solid five-hitter and connected for his first big pitching win of the season.

Donovan, who picking up his seventh victory without a loss, Indian lefthander's task was helped along with a two-run homer by Willie Kirkland and a three-run blast by Chuck Essegian. Rocky Colavito homered for the Tigers.

Baltimore jammed in three runs in the top of the 12th to overcome Chicago. A run-producing error by White Sox reliever Hoyt Wilhelm and Whitey Herzog's two-run single were the key plays. Chicago had scored in the bottom inning to tie it 4-4 on Joe Cunningham's run-scoring double. Wilhelm (3-1) won it in relief.

Bob Allen (2-0) eight innings at Chicago. A run-producing error by White Sox reliever Hoyt Lown and Whitey Herzog's two-run single were the key plays. Chicago had scored in the bottom inning to tie it 4-4 on Joe Cunningham's run-scoring double. Wilhelm (3-1) won it in relief.

Rookie Earl Averill and Albie Pearson each drove in two runs as Los Angeles overcame a 3-0 Detroit lead and handed the Red Sox their seventh loss in nine games.

Bob Schmidt's sixth inning home run broke a 2-2 tie and Angel starter Dean Chance got the decision over Kansas City. Pete Ramos (3-3), who had two homers in the early innings, made the lead stand up by retiring the last 12 men he faced.

Batting: George Altman, Cubs, connected on consecutive homers for five runs batted in, also singled and scored three runs in Chicago's 11-3 victory over Philadelphia Phillies.

Pitching: Ken Johnson, Colts, limited National League leading San Francisco Giants to four hits in Houston's 3-2, 10-inning triumph for first victory of season, and drove in winning run with single.

Americans Break Records
Snell Brilliant In Classic Mile

By BOB BYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A pair of gisele topped world records and a powerful runner from New Zealand, Peter Snell, supplied the brilliance in winning the "miracle mile."

Such was the story as 40,007 fans turned out for the 22nd annual Memorial Coliseum Relays Friday night. Discus-thrower Al Oerter and shot-putter Dallas Long were the record smashers.

The 25-year-old Snell, claimant of the world record for the Mile, cut loose with a burst of speed heading into the last 220 yards that brought defeat for Jim Grelle, Oregon, Dyrol Burleson, 22, who saw his Amer. team record of 3:57.6 surpassed.

Snell hit the tape in 3:58.1, with Burleson a well - beaten second in 3:97.9. A former Oregon distance star, Jim Grelle, came in third in 3:58.5 to make it a threesome which bettered the four-minute mark.

GETS BLAZING 24.5

Snell was clocked unofficially for the last 220 yards in a blazing 24.5 and a final quartermile in 54.0.

Right then, it must have been the track because I wasn't feeling it," Snell said after the New Zealand when I broke the world record."

He credited his to 3:54.4 last Jan. 27 when he bettered Herb Elliott's 3:54.5.

Young Burleson seemed stunned with the suddenness of the last lap dash, and he blamed himself for not going for the big kick sooner.

"I would have jumped much sooner if I had to do it over again," he said. "I was just hardly exhausted. He really whipped that last 220 but I'll beat him one of these days."

Snell didn't dwell on it but there was obvious satisfaction in avenging a mile defeat—plus and a two-mile loss by a New Zealand in the winter of 1961.

Snell hung close to Burleson for the two laps set by an obscure and unlisted runner named Doug Carroll from De Delano, Calif.

BURLESON THIRD

Burleson then closed close on the heels of Marine Lieut. Gary Weisiger of Quantico, with Burleson third.

The lap times were 59.0, a slow 62.0, 60.0, then the 54.0.

Marathon star Barry Magee made it a double for New Zealand. He won the $5,000-entries race in 14:10.5 but had to call on his reserve power to beat Houston's Pat Clohessy in the final 220.

Oerter opened the show with a throw of 200 feet 5½ inches to win, surprised by one-half inch the world record set by Bill Nieder in 1960.

Looket This! They Don't Fool Here

MADRID (Reuters)—The Real Madrid soccer club Friday night traded its inside forward, Luis del Sol, to the Italian team Turin for the greatest fee in soccer history.

The trading price was believed to be 250,000,000 pesetas ($672,000). In addition, the 27-year-old del Sol will get 8,000,000 pesetas ($125,000) for signing with Turin.

The previous high for a soccer trade was set earlier this season when Luis Suarez, an inside forward from Real Madrid's chief domestic rivals, Barcelona, went to the Internazionale team of Milan for $400,000.

Tough Totos 2 Triumphs

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

When Greek meets Greek they might open a restaurant but not when they meet in a wrestling ring, look out for fireworks.

Last night at the inaugural session of the grunt-and-groan-ers, the Tokos Brothers showed the faithful a few new wrinkles in downright skullduggery.

They tangled with Baby "Fred" Lopez and Sam Stamboulis from Honolulu, a pair of clean-cut guys who deserved a better fate. The Greek boys are crowd and referee baiters par excellence and they know that are not in the book.

They had referee Tiger Taylor baffled with their quick change tactics and at times the referee official was forced to slug one or the other on the beat or button.

The Tokos two won the third fall and the bout but the victory was as popular as a bouncy cat at a mouse convention.

But they earned little else but enemies. They offered to take on any three in the house.

They gave their showboat a thorough workover in the early minutes of the first bout before settling down to the Tokos feather bogan to fly. The big redhead and wicked Greek bounced all over the place but later they retaliated, winning the first fall in 19 minutes.

It was a crowd-pleasing wingding especially in the second frame when Lopez and Stamboulli took over and distributed Tokos all over the ring. The latter finally eliminated right. The Greek ladybucks combined their efforts in the third frame to whip Lyons with a pumpkining armpold and take the verdict.

Haystack Mulligan, the 475-pound iron man from Toronto, never lived up to advance notices. The huge egg-shape took a lot of poundage and lots of agility and shifty.

Frank Valois, a toughie from Montreal, endured to shrink the violet from the mountains who opposed him. The referee suspended on a beery chain around his neck. He did bat him around but not when the Mulloon temper showed Heel M'coo

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Thor Hanover, given practically no chance even by his veteran driver, tossed a monkey wrench into the championship hopes of Adora's Dream and made possible a winner of the triple crown for three - year - old pacers.

Adora's Dream, unbeaten in 6 starts, was considered to have a lock on the $188,400 Messenger Stakes at Roosevelt Raceway Friday night, pointing him toward the title for three-year-olds even though he isn't eligible for the other two jewels in the crown—the Cane Futurity and the Little Brown Jug.

But all of that was spoiled when Thor Hanover, a 71-1 shot in the 10-horse field, came out of nowhere to grab the decision by a head-length in harness racing's richest event. Adora's Dream, 1-4 choice, managed to save second by a head over Lehigh Hanover.

"It made the complete surprise to me," said driver Johnny Simpson after guiding the son of Adios-Trustful Hanover over the mile in 2:01 1-5. He had not handled a horse in his three previous starts and I don't think we had a chance against Adora's Dream or Lehigh Hanover. But we got a break at the three-quarter pole when I was able to slip inside and save ground."

Thor Hanover, owned jointly by Simpson, Lawrence and Charlotte Cassidy of Hanover, Pa., and T. W. Murphy of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., paid $43.80 to win in Cash May 31. He also is eligible for the Little Brown Jug late in September.

Thor Hanover's top price was $140 for $1 ticket. Simpson is the nutsel in the history of the track. He was $27.10 for place and $7.60 to show.

Thor Hanover, winner of only $9,065 in 20 previous starts, picked up $84,715. Adora's Dream, made a supplementary entry at cost of $13,000, earned $42,357.73.

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

Impressed by his club's "spirit and hustle" during the past month of workouts, coach Sid Forster will lead the Belleville Kenmore into OBA Senior Lakeshore Baseball League action next week with an eye toward the future.

Forster, newly-appointed coach of the 1960 Junior "A" provincial champions and runners-up last season, said that he has been quite happy with the club to date and looks for even better things in the months ahead.

"We have a young club that seems very willing to learn," he told this department in an interview Thursday. "I think we have a good club and one that will give Belleville district baseball fans first class entertainment.

"We have been working on the fundamentals of the game because I believe they are the first basic need of any ball player. All the boys have been showing excellent co-operation and I am more than pleased with their attitude," he added.

"Belleville's opening game will be in Peterborough Monday afternoon and I will be able to tell a lot more after I have seen the boys under pressure. Then we do not play again until June 3 so we will have two more weeks of practice to fill in any necessary gaps," remarked the quiet-spoken coach.

Forster, who played pro ball for five years until arm trouble forced him back into amateur at the end of the 1954 season, still looks able to take his turn on the mound or at first base should the occasion present itself.

"And he will if need be," announced Kenmore manager Ken Soden. Forster followed his stint in professional ball by playing senior in the Lakehead and Winnipeg areas between 1955 and 1960. However, any further action he might see will likely be at first base, rather than pitching, because of the arm trouble.

The coach and manager combined to announce a 16-man lineup that will open the season on Monday. "But man lineups have a habit of changing and I'm not under any stress this," interrupted Forster, "if there are any ball players in the district who would like to try for a job, they will be more than welcomed at any of our practices."

Forster named a four-man pitching staff that should hold its own against the best Peterborough, Kingston and Port Hope have to offer.

Larry Soden, Bill Latchford and Dave Smith will fire them from the righthand side, while Gerry "Jersey" Stillo will be the club's lone southpaw. Latchford is the only pitcher to do it to OBA title two years ago, is of proven quality. He could be the club's ace and may get the starting assignment when the Peterborough Fannings on Monday, depending on how he feels.

Smith, who came to Bellleville as a left-winger for the local Junior "B" hockey team, is another Smiths Falls where he pitched last year. Forster seemed happy with his work to date and said he was anxious to see him pitch in an actual game. He was also taken with Smith's ability with a bat.

Latchford has hurled with the Kenmore for a number of years, in junior, senior baseball and later in Intermediate ranks. Soden feels that he has shown great improvement this spring and could be an ace-in-the-hole.

Bill Ils a young "veteran" of South Hastings baseball experience who should fit nicely into the senior pattern. The popular Indian had fears none on a baseball diamond and is blessed with all-around ability.

Manager Soden felt that Larry Mavety had matured greatly over last year and should be a valuable asset in the catching department. He will be backed up by Ron Dingwall, who also was associated with the Kenmore club last year's Junior squad. "Mavety has the experience now and I am really happy with what he has shown this spring," announced Soden.

The infield consists of Bill Moxon at first, Gary Goyer at second, Moe Hunter at third and Pat Asselstine at shortstop. All are back from last year but Hunter has moved from short to third.

Goyer won the Lakeshore Intermediate batting championship last year, but Forster says he has already looks to be twice as good a ball player this year. The manager said he had never seen Goyer look so good and Asselstine showed equally happy with his play. Hunter, Forster figured equally happy with his play. Hunter and Moxon are both long-ball hitters who should be right at home in senior company. Asselstine, a natural athlete, has played just about every position in the game and has been impressive since taking over the shortstop position.

The starting outfield will have speedster Ricky Lockes in centre between Ron Urch in left and Dusty Folwell in right. Folwell and Locke, both with the club last year, have switched fields and both have pleased the coach in practice sessions.

Urch has played with the Canniton Clippers in the SSIL and Forster claims he fits in left field perfectly. "He looks real sharp and has a good strong arm to go with the other two's speed," commented the coach.

Glenn Clarke and Larry Soule will both be kept on hand for utility duties and the club management also hopes to have Pete Weston out when he finishes his spring school exams.

The Kenmore will play their first home game at the Fairgrounds on Wednesday, June 6, when the Peterborough Fannings will provide the opposition.

Forster said he did not know too much about the league's other teams but felt this both Kingston and Peterborough will field strong clubs. He agreed that a strong competitive will be "just what the doctor ordered" for the Kenmore.

Colts' Knuckler Cools Off Giants

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fluctuating career of knuckle ball specialist Ken Johnson was back on the track today after the Houston hard-luck-man won his first game of the season with his first hit.

After losing five games Johnson virtually got the job done singlehandedly against National League leading San Francisco Friday night, cooling off the Giants with a four-hitter and driving in the winning run in the Colts' 4-2, 10-inning victory.

Johnson won it with a two-out single that chased in Carl Warwick with the clincher.

Last year he bolstered Cincinnati Reds tired mound crew, winning vital games while posting a 9-2 record.

Despite the loss, the Giants maintained their three - game edge over the runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers, beaten by third-place St. Louis Cardinals 4-3. Cincinnati's fourth - place Reds closed in on Bob Purkey brought his record to 5-1 with a 4-1 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates. Milwaukee Braves' Warren Spahn three-hit New York Mets' string of 9-0 defeats and Chicago's Cubs outslugged Philadelphia Phillies 11-8 in other games.

McCOVEY HITS HOMER

Johnson gave up two hits and a run in the second inning, then held the Giants hitless until Willie McCovey led off with a one-out homer in the ninth.

In the 10th, Carl Warwick opened with a single, moved up on a sacrifice and a ground out and scored on Ernie Johnson's first hit in 12 at - bats. Johnson (4-3) lost a five-hitter.

Charley James' single drove in two Cub runs in the first. Cards before they clinched it with four in the 8th. Bill White knocking in a pair with a single. That proved enough for Bob Gibson (4-2) who scattered nine Dodger hits. Johnny Podres (3-3) started for Los Angeles but had to leave in the first when Ken Boyer's single hit him on the left forearm.

Purkey limited the Pirates to six hits—one a homer by Bill Mazeroski while the Reds used a three-run outburst in the seventh to break a 1-1 tie for their ten - victory in eight games. A bases-loaded single by Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson's run-producing hit did the damage in the rally that tagged Harvey Haddix (3-4) with the defeat.

Spahn (4-4) posted the 313th victory of his career when the Braves snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth on a two-run homer by Mack Jones and a bases-empty shot by Eddie Mathews. Hank Aaron earlier had hit his sixth homer in support of Spahn, who allowed only homers by the Mets' Gil Hodges and Frank Thomas and Roger Craig (1-4) went the distance for New York.

Consecutive homers by George Altman for five runs batted in and one homer each by Ernie Banks, Ron Santo and Bob Will paced the Cubs, but they needed a three-run ninth to put it away. The Cubs got the winner when Phillies' reliever Jack Baldschun (1-4) walked Santo to force in a Jim McKnight's two-run single gave Dick Ellsworth (4-2) a much more working room.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey George Gobbo of Hamilton won two of the three races he was in at Old Woodbine Friday and now has eight wins at the meet, one behind leading rider Jim Fitzsimmons.

In the fifth, Gobbins had a relatively easy time as Master Bart broke from start to finish and won the seven-furlong race by two lengths from Admiral Armbro. He ran the distance in 1.25 3-5 and paid a generous $10.10. The quinella of Master Bart II and Admiral Armbro paid $23.80.

Gobbins' sixth mount of the afternoon, Bridal Music, won the 4½-furlong dash by two lengths.

The daily double of Flutterbudget in the first and Wind sor Forest in the second returned $39.10.

WAS PRO GRID FOUNDER

MONTREAL (CP)—James C. Riddell, 76, of Montreal, one of the founders of Canada's professional football in the 1920s, died Friday. He took over the professional football franchise() of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and by 1921 his team, the Winged Wheelers, won the Grey Cup.

Suns 'Set' On Wings, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns have run their winning streak to seven in an effort to open up a little daylight at the top of the International League standings.

Suns, who picked up Rochester Red Wings, their closest pursuers, and handed them a 9-6 setback Friday night, slammed three homers and a triple on the way to a 14-8 win and dropped the Wings into third place as Buffalo Bisons passed them and stayed 7½ games behind the Suns with a 10-4 victory over the tail-end Columbus Jets.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs overcame Richmond Virginians's 7-1 scoring four times in the seventh inning, Atlanta Crackers chisels blanked Atlanta Crackers 7-0.

Chico Alvarez gave the Suns an early lead with a two-run homer in the first inning. Rochester replied by chasing Jacksonville starter Ken Johnson with a three-run rally in the bottom half but Pedro Martinez yelped and was relieved on a single by Valmy Thomas to tie the score in the second. Phil-Ortiz singled, Jim Bunning Wilson and Jim Woods, the latter with two on board, put the game away.

The Bisons rocked lefthander Ryne Duren for five runs in the first inning to take care of Columbus in their 10-run romp. Homers by Jerry Rehmer and Bob Morgan doing the damage, Don Rowe, who homered for the winners with a man aboard in the eighth inning.

TRAIL 5-3

The Leafs trailed 5-3 before Ted Kizziar's two-run homer highlighted their big seventh-inning uprising. The win went to Russ Heman who took over after starter Seth Morehead picked up his sixth loss of four weeks when he suffered a broken wrist from a line drive off Ben Motecosky's bat.

Don Brumer and Don Lock hit homers for Richmond.

A first-inning triple by playing manager Frank Verdi started the Chiefs off against Atlanta, leading to a four-run outburst and ending their five-game losing streak. Ray Apple held the Crackers to five hits, yielding the last two after two were out in the ninth.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Vivian Chief owned by Kenneth Pascoe of Parkhill, Ont., and driven by Ross Saxton was an easy winner in the first race at Western Fair Raceway Friday night despite being the 1-2 hot shot. The horse paid $30.70 for a $2 ticket.

CAHA Says No

No Olympics Hockey Club?

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A new method of selecting Canada's hockey team for the 1964 Olympics — if Canada decides to enter a team — could result from the five-day annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

About 100 delegates will consider key alternatives to the present practice of picking a single senior club and stocking it with some replacements, when the sessions start here Sunday.

Canada was runner - up to Russia in 1956 and to the United States in 1960. Concern over the showing in contrast to Canada's almost complete dominion of Olympic hockey in previous years has reflected in two resolutions.

The first, submitted by the Alberta association, wants the army to train and control the team. The other suggests that junior players would be enlisted in 1965 to blend with veterans in the service and a full playing schedule would be run in 1966 to pick the players for Australia.

CLUB DISCHARGED

Players could be discharged after the games if they wished. The Canadian club system was submitted by Thunder Bay, calls for each branch to have all-star teams in a round - robin tourney, the winner to represent Canada in the Olympics. Games would be played in Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Regina Saskatoon and the Lakehead.

Meanwhile there remains doubt that Canada will even have an Olympic team.

Decidedly, Ridan Second

"Jaipur" Rules Favorite

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — George D. Widener's Jaipur was the early 5-to-2 favorite as the $125,000 Preakness drew near, though he never had met his top rivals—Al Foco Ranch's Decidedly and Mrs. Moody Fuller's Ridan.

Decidedly, who broke the 31-year-old record for the Kentucky Derby four weeks ago and Ridan, a moody, hard-to-control colt, were rated co-second choices at 3 to 1.

Eleven horses are entered in the 1 3-16-mile grind at Pimlico. Post-time is 5:47 p.m. Eastern and a crowd of 30,000 is expected.

The fact that his charge was not installed as the favorite did not bother Decidedly's trainer, Horatio Luro.

"I never thought Decidedly should be made the favorite," said the Argentinian. "In fact, I would have been very surprised if he were."

HAS WON MORE

"After all, Jaipur has the better record. He has won more races than Decidedly and certainly more stakes."

Trainer Mel Laurin, he still has plenty of faith in Decidedly.

"Just because I don't think he should be the favorite does not mean I don't think he can win," he said. "We have just an additional 20 pounds on him over the last two weeks."

The track is fast and fine, running of the second classic of the season. It is expected to be faster, perhaps, than it ever has been. It will be to Decidedly's liking.

Bill Hartack, who piloted Decidedly to his Derby victory, was up again.

Eddie Arcaro handles Jaipur and his strategy is to stay out on the pace and hope to make it the rest of the way.

Bombers Sign Grant For Five

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference Friday announced the signing of Bud Grant as coach for an unprecedented five-year term.

Grant, 35, joined the club in 1953 as an end and in 1957 was named head coach. He then signed a one-year contract that was made two years in 1958. Grant is the most successful coach record in Winnipeg when he signed the four-year contract announced.

Winnipeg football club president Karl F. Whitemore told a press conference the new contract supersedes the 1960 contract, "which was illegal."

Grant, born in Superior, Wis., played in the National League with Philadelphia Eagles in 1951 and 1952.

"I'm looking my coaching future on the future of Canadian football," Grant said after the announcement. "As a coach, I've looked at both Canadian and United States football and have come to the conclusion he should be the same. It does not mean I don't think he can win," he said. "We have just an additional 20 pounds on him over the last two weeks."

The track is fast and fine, running of the second classic of the season. It is expected to be faster, perhaps, than it ever has been. It will be to Decidedly's liking.

Harvey Still Undecided

MONTREAL (CP) — Playing coach Doug Harvey of New York Rangers is still undecided about rejoining the National Hockey League club next season.

Harvey, whose home is in Montreal, returned Thursday night from New York, where he had meetings with club owners and general-manager Muzz Patrick.

Harvey still has two years to go on a three-year contract but has been thinking of retiring because of the problems involved in moving his family back and forth between Montreal and New York.

"They told me to take my time," Harvey said Friday. "They want me to be sure. They talked about their plans for the club and how much they want me back."

Harvey, 37, has been considered one of the best in play and giving all his time to coaching—if he returns to the Rangers.

Bull Cook in Wilderness Camps Thing of Past, Hands Now Fed by Caterers

By KEN SMITH

MONTREAL (CP) — The bull cook of Canada's old-time wilderness camps was truly an awesome figure.

An ill - tempered bear of a man who spit in the coffee to give it flavor, he bred worms for his biscuits and maggots for his meat.

Tough enough to enforce his dictum of "If you don't like it, don't eat," he was Paul Bunyan swathed in a grime - caked apron.

Canada still has its wilderness camps, but today the man responsible for feeding the hands in almost all of them is a suave, soft-spoken, bespectacled businessexecutive who sits behind a huge walnut desk in an office in downtown Montreal.

He is J. Kenneth Cullen, president of Crawley and McCracken, Limited, an outfit known officially as a "boarding and commissary caterer," and more commonly as "Canada's Biggest Cook."

The firm, which during its 50 years of operations has seen its business grow from $250,000 a year to $30,000,000, does things for work crews on a scale that would leave the old bull cook too amazed even to swear.

Drawing on stores and warehouses spotted across Canada, it offers customers mountains of fresh, varied food—no matter how far from civilization.

Crawley and McCracken boast they can handle any feeding job, whether it involves 10 men or 10,000. The firm's cafeteria crews range from the Atlantic to the Pacific and up to the Arctic.

They use every kind of conveyance, from plane to dog sled, to carry supplies ranging from 1,000-pound stoves to fresh eggs, toothpicks and toothpaste.

They fed workers at British Columbia's Kitimat project and Quebec's Shipshaw power development. Work crews carving the new towns of Thompson, Man., and Marathon, Ont., out of the wilderness filled themselves with Crawley and McCracken steaks.

Construction gangs on the Distant Early Warning and Mid - Canada radar lines, stations of the Trans-Canada Highway, the St. Lawrence Seaway, Chalk River and thousands of other projects have been the firm's responsibility.

1,000,000 STEAKS

During the five-year stint at Kitimat, for instance, Crawley and McCracken put in 600 cafeteria workers who dished out a total of more than 14,000,000 meals, preparing breakfast, lunch and supper for up to 5,700 workers a day.

The workers consumed 1,400,000 steaks, almost 19,000,000 fresh eggs, 4,750,000 pounds of potatoes and nearly 1,000,000 pounds of butter.

That was in addition to 1,700,000 pounds of beef, 410,000 pounds of turkey, 330,000 pounds of chicken and tons of fresh fruit and bread.

Mr. Cullen says the secret of the firm's success is the vast experience it has built up in overcoming everything from roaring rapids to 100 - mile - an-hour Arctic blizzards, gadflies and marauding bears.

"All the executives have been with the firm for at least 25 years. Like Mr. Cullen, they have worked their way up through the ranks, learning their job by going into the field.

Mr. Cullen, a native of North Bay, Ont., started with Crawley and McCracken there in 1931, going out as a chore boy with a gang helping to push the old Temiskaming and Northern Ontario railway through to Moose Factory.

Crawley and McCracken also are in the boarding business, providing living facilities for many of their contracts.

These include cots with good springs and mattresses and even pillowcases and white sheets.

The Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Forde Stapley, presided over the printed service of worship for "Christian Family Sunday" with the theme, "Instruments of God's Peace".

The service opened with soft music played by Mrs. Bruce Stapley, Jr.

The minister, Mr. Dyson delivered a splendid sermon, for the day, with reference to the Christian mothers, spoken of in the Bible.

MADOC JUNCTION—Mrs. Gordon Nelson and Mary accompanied, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow to Warkworth on Tuesday where they attended the funeral of their cousin.

TAKE A STAND FOR TOMORROW

Young candidates like these with Hon. L. B. Pearson form part of the new kind of leadership Canada wants to take a stand for government with purpose

VOTE THE PEARSON TEAM
A NEW KIND OF LEADERSHIP . . . THE KIND OF GOVERNMENT WE NEED

LET'S BE BUSINESS-LIKE

On June 18 we ask the people of Canada to choose between feeble government and the ability of the Liberal team to get things done.

We cannot afford a cabinet that is too divided to make vital decisions.

We can no longer afford reckless mismanagement of Canada's finances.

We cannot afford the slow-down of our economy and the lack of confidence in government policies.

We cannot afford to see our dollar devalued any farther, and the cost of living rise.

On June 18th you can take a stand for government with purpose—government that will lead Canadian enterprise and skill to create an expanding economy in a united Canada. That is what a new Liberal government will do.

WE NEED A MILLION NEW JOBS

415,000 Canadians, on average, have been out of work every day since July 1957.

We are making less—real income per Canadian is smaller—than six years ago.

This waste and suffering of people did not have to happen. It must not be allowed to continue.

The right government policies can get things moving and keep them moving.

The Liberal party is pledged to full employment. Its policies are built for an expanding economy.

An expanding economy will create the million new jobs our growing population needs for the next four years.

You can take a stand for better jobs and greater opportunities in Canada . . . vote for your Liberal candidate on June 18.

April Jobless Total Shows 75,000 Drop

485,000 Unemployed In Middle of Month

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada at mid - April was 485,000, a drop of 75,000 from mid-March, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The decline in the jobless total between March and April was described as a "normal" change for this time of year." It was 137,000 lower than a year earlier.

Last month's unemployment total represented 7.5 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.7 per cent in March and 9.7 in April, 1961.

The April jobless figure continued the trend of recent months—the ranking about one-fifth below the unemployment totals reached last year when unemployment hit a post - war winter record in February.

	April Mar. April 1962 1962 1961
Labor Force	6,020 6,454 6,440
Employed	6,007 5,894 5,818
Unemployed	485 560 622

The report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada during the week ended April 21. The statistics prepared by the bureau of statistics are analyzed by the federal labor department.

EMPLOYMENT RISES

There was a seasonal rise in employment between March and April, mostly in outdoor activities.

Employment stood at 6,007,000, compared with 5,894,000 a month earlier and 5,818,000 a year earlier.

The labor department said the increase from the April total employment low in February was well above the average of the past several years.

Almost half of the increase was in agriculture. In manufacturing industries, the gain was mainly in construction although jobs in manufacturing also increased. Forestry employment declined slightly.

Employment increases between March and April were "well above the seasonal average" in Ontario, but a "little less than seasonal" in Quebec and the Prairies.

On a year-to-year basis, however, employment was significantly higher, with annual increases ranging from 10 per cent in the Prairies to five per cent in the Pacific.

The unemployment rate—the jobless total as a percentage of the labor force—was higher than the national 7.5-per-cent average in two regions, the Maritimes and Quebec, and lower under the average in the pacific region.

However, on a year-to-year comparison, regional rates were reduced by more than one-quarter in Quebec, Ontario and in the Pacific area. Smaller declines occurred in the Atlantic and Prairie regions.

UNEMPLOYED MEN GROWER

On the national scale, virtually all of the unemployment decline during the month was among men. The number of unemployed women, accounting for 12 per cent of the total, remained unchanged.

Of the 485,000 unemployed in April, about one-half had been out of work for less than four months, one third had been unemployed for four to six months, and approximately one-sixth had been unemployed for seven months or more.

In Ontario, unemployment, accounts for 113,000 workers, compared with 140,000 a month earlier.

Plane Explodes In Mid-Air Killing 26

MUNICH, West Germany (Reuters) — A United States Navy plane exploded and crashed in flames in a snowy area of Munich today killing all 26 persons aboard.

An official spokesman at the Rhein-Main air base at Frankfurt said the plane was carrying five naval officers, 17 navy men and four army men.

Twenty bodies were recovered near the crash site, some 800 yards inside the Bavarian town of Market Schwaben.

The explosion was witnessed by a pilot of a Pan American airways plane and several West Germans near the crash site.

The Pan American pilot reported the crash.

A U.S. military spokesman said he thought the plane as a Lockheed WV-2 Warning Star capable of carrying 31 persons.

It took off today from a U.S. Air Force base at Frankfurt, apparently on a navigational training flight.

The mayor of a small town near the crash scene said the plane exploded in the air and then fell to the ground in a field where the wreckage caught fire.

PAISLEY, Ont. (CP)—Bruce Miller, 49, a prominent horseman here, was found dead near his damaged tractor Saturday. Police said they believe Mr. Miller's tractor overturned on him.

Seaway Authority Expropriates Land to 'Twin' Welland Canal

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority has expropriated 220 acres of land along the Welland Canal to be used "for the future twinning of single locks in the waterway between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

Expropriation documents were filed today at local registry offices in the Welland area. They cover all the property of land involved in the transfer.

The announcement was made in a statement by Transport Minister Balcer who said the Seaway Authority acted with the approval of the cabinet in filing the documents.

"With the filing of these documents," he said, "the authority acquires the land necessary for the future twinning of Locks one, two, three and seven of the Welland Canal."

Three other locks—four, five and six—are already double.

Mr. Balcer's statement made no mention of when the twinning projects—a multi - million-dollar undertaking—might be started.

"Expropriation of the land required for the twinning is being proceeded with at this time because, as the cabinet has been advised of this scale, it is regarded as the only equitable way to deal with all the property owners on the same basis at the same time," he said in the public interest," the announcement said.

Filing of the plans and descriptions of the land involved in the expropriation resulted in the immediate transfer of the land to the Seaway Authority.

The statement said individual notices are being sent to each of the former owners and "will be followed by negotiations with a view to affecting amicable settlements."

21 SCATTERED RIDINGS HOLD NOMINATIONS

70 Candidates Will Be Entered

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is nomination day in 21 scattered constituencies from Newfoundland to the Yukon and the names of more than 70 candidates will be entered officially in the June 18 Dominion election contest.

These nominations are in ridings where a full month is needed to deliver election supplies because of distances to be covered and isolation of polls. June 4 is nomination day in 244 other ridings. Twenty constencies, two of which elect two members apiece to the 265-seat Commons.

A Canadian Press compilation of the latest list of candidates from five parties will seek seats in the ridings nominating today. Progressive Conservatives and Liberals have a full entry of 21 apiece. The New Democratic Party has 15 candidates, Social Credit 12 and Communists two. Ten candidates have been named until 2 p.m. local standard time to file their forms and pay their $200 deposits.

SEEK RE-ELECTION

Members of the last House are seeking re-election in 19 of the ridings, Perrault Larue, PC Pontiac-Temiscamingue, is an standing again, while in the Yukon Mrs. Isabel Hardie is balding for the seat held by her late husband, Liberal Mervyn Hardie.

Eleven of the constituencies were represented by PCs in the last Parliament, eight by Liberals—five of them from Newfoundland—and one by Cooperative Commonwealth Federation member. The CCF seats were held by Douglas Fisher in Port Arthur and Frank Howard in Skeena, both of whom seek re-election as NDP members.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is a candidate in Prince Albert one of the early-nominating ridings and will be opposed by Liberal, NDP and Social Credit opponents. J. W. Pickersgill, Liberal transport minister, has a PC opponent in Bonavista-Twillingate, Nfld.

The candidates to be nominated formally today are among 918 men and women who have indicated so far they will stand for election on June 18. There were 836 candidates in 1958.

Parliament had the entry with 394 candidates and will complete their slate tonight when a meeting is held at Bridgewater, N.S., makes the party's choice in Lunenburg. Progressive Conservatives have three seats to fill in Quebec to complete their slate.

Social Credit follows with 191 candidates—seven more than the NDP. Communists have entered 14 and there are three Independents. A record 1,265 candidates, set in 1945 when 245 ridings had to stake, should almost certainly be passed.

Handling of the Economy Theme of TV Speakers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If differences between political parties are becoming more difficult to find, it certainly wasn't the case Monday night.

The main election campaign pitches came from national leaders of the left and right, without a point in common.

T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party and Robert Thompson of Social Credit laid down opposing philosophies of government in pre-recorded TV appearances on the CBC national network's free-time political series.

Meanwhile, there was a holiday silence down the middle of the political road leading to the June 18 vote. Prime Minister Diefenbaker was at home in Ottawa and Liberal Leader Pearson flew to Toronto where he said Mr. Diefenbaker were due to resume action Tuesday.

Federal handling of the economy was the main theme of the TV speakers, who divided the period 8-8:30 p.m. EDT period.

The socialist - minded Mr. Douglas called for a planned economy, planned by the government "not for profits, but for people." The NDP was inviting voters to join its "crusade against poverty, insecurity and human wastage."

The right-swinging Mr. Thompson advocated a balanced economy—"not a planned economy which means controlled people" —and an end to deficit financing and tax-supported welfare states.

He said a socialist trend is creeping into the Conservative and Liberal parties, with the result that "we are backing into socialism as fast as the socialists themselves would walk into it."

Mr. Thompson said Canadians must reject the "something for nothing" myth of federal handouts which was eating at the foundations of free - enterprise democracy.

Social Credit had become the champion of small-scale capitalism and small-l liberalism. It stood for open-top government and "the basic principles of free enterprise."

Mr. Douglas said the economy has not been keeping pace with

Three or Four More Lands To Send Help to Thailand

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Thanat Kohman of Thailand said today agreements will be made "in the near future" with three or four SEATO pact countries to send military forces to Thailand, where U.S. troops already have been landed.

He declined to name the countries expected to send contingents, but it was believed here they are Britain, Australia, New Zealand and possibly the Philippines.

Prime Minister Macmillan said last week Britain probably would supply a jet fighter squadron if it were asked for a contribution to Thailand. In Canberra, an authoritative source said today Australia will provide a Sabre jet - fighter squadron.

Thanat told a press conference he presumed that announcements on the sending of the contingents "will be made shortly."

Other SEATO member countries are France and Pakistan. Thailand's premier, Marshal Sarit Thanarat, told the cabinet last week that only France had not agreed to send a contingent if it were requested by Thailand.

Thanat said any new SEATO force entering Thailand via Indochina's bulkhip here would remain under Bangkok operational command—rather than being put under the United States command already established here.

Asked whether the contributions would be a substantial adjust of token strength, he said:

Kill 75 Castro Soldiers In Commando Raid on Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A commando - type raid on western Cuba last week resulted in the death of 75 of 77 men of rebel Castro's soldiers and destruction of several military vehicles, a leader of the rebel Raider Command said Monday. The commando leader said the 26 - man raiding party fought Castro's soldiers on a highway 18 miles southwest of Havana Friday afternoon.

Capt. Santiago Perez, former Cuban Air Force officer under Castro, announced formation of his raider command May 5. Perez said the exile military organization is in a state of war with the Castro government.

Pertierra said his group flew from a pilot outside the United States in two planes and parachuted into Pinar del Rio province in southwestern Cuba.

"We encountered some soldiers on the first few days, but now we sign of Cuba's Air Force Planes," the rebel officer said.

Pertierra said Cuban underground forces have been successful in sabotage activities. "All of the area we went through had been well burned over. Thousands of acres of sugar cane have been burned. At night the horizon was bright with flames."

Pertierra said he stole a small boat and made his way to a rendezvous with an amphibious plane. He said his guerrilla force would continue to make tactical strikes against Castro forces.

75-DEATH TOTAL ACROSS CANADA OVER HOLIDAY

37 Persons Die In Road Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Road deaths in Canada during the Victoria Day holiday weekend far surpassed the 28 predicted by the Canadian highway safety council.

A Canadian Press survey today at least 37 persons died in traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Monday.

Another 36 died in other mishaps, 24 of them in drownings, producing a 75-death total for the three-day weekend.

Nearly half the deaths were in Ontario, where 34 died—18 in drownings, in highway mishaps and one, in a fire.

Quebec had the second highest toll with 19 dead from nine traffic fatalities, five drownings and five miscellaneous accidents.

The road toll was just under the 38-death average for the last five Victoria Day weekends, but the safety council had hoped the figure would be lower because of continuing efforts to publicize the moral responsibility of drivers.

The survey counts deaths related to normal holiday activities. It excludes industrial accidents, slayings and known suicides.

Victoria Day Meant Parades, Fireworks, Trips to Beaches

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Day meant parades and fireworks for some Canadians, relaxation in backyards or beaches for others and fine-weather recreation for most.

Thousands of visitors toured Ottawa in mild weather to admire tulip festival displays, staged a big parade as the nation's capital city crowned its forty queen, while St. John's, Nfld., chose to await the traditional date for Victoria Day, May 24.

Scattered showers swept the Prairies and Atlantic provinces, but the sun shone almost everywhere for at least part of the day. Temperatures in Central Canada and the Pacific Coast ranged around 70 degrees, with the 50s prevailing in the Maritimes a bit cooler.

In Victoria, an estimated 100,000 persons made a record turn-out for the island city's annual parade. Sailors from the visiting Royal Navy cruiser Belfast joined the parade, which took two hours to pass.

Many Vancouverites went south to the Seattle World's Fair, where the day was designated Vancouver Day.

In Winnipeg, police took the annual holiday Saturday, and twice were given the slip. In the meantime security measures around de Gaulle were increased. Police were put in a state of special alert and barricades were thrown up to check all persons entering the town the president visited.

POLICE FOILED?

The security measures apparently foiled the plot. Blanchy and Slebozka returned to Paris but Slebozka was arrested by police grabbed Blanchy at his home and seized a number of documents that led to more arrests, Slebozka got away.

Police found 15 bottles of inflammable butane gas in Blanchy's car and said they believed it was to be used in a fire bomb.

In the attempt on de Gaulle's life last fall, flames from an exploding gasoline bomb momentarily blinded the car so he was driving to his country estate outside of Paris. The car was scorched but de Gaulle was unhurt.

De Gaulle obviously was aware of the dangers during his drive to Lyons but made no changes in his program.

Planned To Use Butane Bombs To Roast Him

15 Suspects Arrested And Others Are Sought

PARIS (AP) — A terrorist plot to assassinate President de Gaulle—the second one to come to light in eight months — has been smashed, police announced Monday night.

At least 15 suspects are being held for questioning here and police were searching in France and Algeria for other members of the Secret Army Organization in connection with the abortive plot.

Arrests were made in Paris, in the French Mediterranean port of Marseille and in Algiers broke up the Secret Army conspiracy to kill de Gaulle during his tour of central France last week.

Police pictured the suspects as a desperate band of killers linked on one side to France's strong-willed leader and plunging the country into chaos in an effort to block Algerian independence.

STATE IN PALACE

De Gaulle remembers stayed within the heavily-guarded Elysee Palace in the heart of Paris. He had no announced public engagements today, but was due to appear before the Paris crowds Wednesday in connection with the state visit to President Moktar Ould Daddah of Mauritania.

Police indicated the killers intended to incinerate de Gaulle with gas bombs. One newspaper Paris-Presse said the assassins planned to plot him off with a high - powered rifle equipped with a telescopic sight. The newspaper said the operation was to be known as "Chemical" "mountain goat" because of the kind of skill required.

Official and unofficial sources gave this account of the foiling of the plot:

Forty-eight hours before de Gaulle left on his provincial speaking tour Wednesday, police seized the Secret Army agents in Marseille and two in Paris. From their names and the first hint that plans were afoot to assassinate de Gaulle during his provincial tour.

ARREST AGENT

More details came with the arrest of Jean Bastien Thiry and Lecq, a Secret Army agent wanted in the Algiers putsch military security officer. From long hours of questioning in the Fresnes prison, police got a picture of the plot and obtained names of the leaders of the cell, members of a Secret Army group called Delta.

The Delta commander was identified as a Paris insurance agent named Blanchy. He and a companion named Slebozka had already covered part of de Gaulle's route before police got on their trail.

Between twice caught up with the pair, on Friday and steps to enforce a ban on firecrackers in the city's Chinatown, where merchants set out of hand two years ago and the policemen suffered minor injuries.

In London, Ont., the Duke of Edinburgh flew from Montreal to attend the trooping-the-colour ceremony of the 1st Canadian Regiment, of which he is colonel-in-chief.

Parades were held in Southern Ontario expected crowds "like in a hockey game." The crowds at the beach at Grand Bend, a Lake Huron resort, was estimated at 20,000.

At the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford, 2,000 pounds of cheese and 500 loaves of bread were distributed as part of a tradition dating from the early years of Queen Victoria's reign. Instituted in 1899, Victoria ordered them that each member of the Six Nations band should receive a quarter loaf of bread and half a pound of cheese on her birthday.

The tradition has been carried on, although many other meetings have been added to

Harkness Heard At Colborne

COLBORNE, Ont. (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness said Monday night the Liberals are promising to help farmers by cutting defence spending, otherwise Conservatives have already done for them.

Mr. Harkness, former minister of agriculture, was addressing a campaign meeting for the June 18 federal general election in his Northumberland riding community 35 miles west of Belleville.

He said that when he became minister of agriculture he implemented all the promises made in speeches by the Conservatives in 1958.

"This would result in the removal of the surpluses of certain dates in rural areas, he said.

HEPC Chairman Asserts No Curtailment Is Planned In Hydro Operations Here

Earlier local denials of rumors that the East Central oil pipe of the Ontario Hydro at Belleville might be closed out, have been confirmed by Mr. Ross Strike, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

In reply to a recent letter from City Manager H. R. Hopkins regarding the rumor, Mr. Strike has asserted that there is no basis for the rumor.

"I hasten to inform you that there has been no such proposition that Hydro will curtail its operations at Belleville," Mr. Strike said in his letter to Mr. Reynolds.

"Present plans for the gradual consolidation of administration in Eastern Ontario involve the merging of the manager's staff of the Ottawa and Belleville offices."

The letter went on to note that Mr. A. M. Pedersen, of Ottawa, will also recently appointed regional manager of the East and East Central offices at Ottawa and Belleville, probably be moving to Belleville.

Mr. William J. Ransom, public relations officer for regional office at Belleville said plans were for Mr. Pedersen to move to this city some time during June.

Minor Mishap at Glen Miller Only Accident in Four Counties

Although there was a heavy week-end holiday list in other parts of the province and in Canada, the Belleville district escaped without a highway death over the holiday and neither was there an accident of a serious nature.

"We certainly appreciate the co-operation of the Belleville district motorists and also of drivers passing through this area," provincial inspector A. McDougall of Belleville Provincial Police Headquarters said. "We didn't have a fatality nor a serious accident of any kind in the entire No. 9 district."

The No. 9 police district takes in the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

Motorists generally observed traffic regulations and few instances of speeding were reported.

The only reportable accident in the district occurred Sunday evening when Howard Andrews of Tweed, lost control of his car on No. 33 highway north of Glen Miller.

Mr. Andrews was northbound when, as he applied his brakes, a rear wheel locked, throwing his car into a spin. The vehicle slammed into a tree causing about $700 damages to the car, but Mr. Andrews escaped injury.

City police also reported a quiet holiday weekend with no serious accidents occurring in the city.

Achievement Day Held by Tractor Clubs

The H.C.I. and W.S. and the M.H.S. 4-H Tractor Clubs members turned out in large numbers to attend the annual achievement day held May 16, with Mr. Gibb, instructor of these clubs in charge of the activities.

At the beginning of the program Mr. Gibb handed out several question sheets pertaining to the wide scope of work covered since last January. Following the answering of these questions, each member was shown a tractor on which there were ten mechanical errors, carefully prepared by Mr. Gibb. The first boy to find this event was ten minutes and the errors ranged from a leaky gas line, right down to a loose stud in one of the wheels. When this task was pronounced to the best of each one's ability, an array of 35 engine parts were put on display to be identified. These parts ranged from a coil and condenser to a combustion and oil control piston rings.

There was no driving competition this year, however, this did not dull the keen edge of competition among the members.

Thanks were expressed to the M.S.S. who supported the 1962 Achievement Day; the agriculture teachers from both schools, and also Mr. Gibb for his fine contribution in making this such a successful event.

J. W. Pickersgill Speaks At Rally at Warkworth

TRENTON—Monday night, an estimated 600 people crowded into the town hall at Warkworth to listen to Northumberland Liberal candidate Dr. Pauline Jewett and the Hon. John W. Pickersgill, member of parliament for Bonavista - Twillingate, Newfoundland, since 1953.

Dr. Jewett's campaign manager, Bill Reid, a high school teacher from Cobourg, referred to the candidate as a "dedicated, responsible lady," and demanded to know why women were considered a second class citizens" when it came to politics.

On the heels of Mr. Reid's introduction of the candidate, the crowd gave Dr. Jewett a standing ovation.

Dr. Jewett said reasons why she should vote Liberal included the Liberal Party's attitude to-ward the issue of social security, health and education, and the "prospect of positive leadership" lack of policy on these issues.

Dr. Jewett dwelt at length on the Liberal plan for health insurance.

PICKERSGILL SPEAKS

Mr. Pickersgill, suffering from laryngitis, was introduced by Bob Cooper of Cobourg.

Mr. Pickersgill dealt with a pamphlet, "Ten Reasons Why You Should Vote Conservative", which he said, he had read "briefly" because he "wanted to be fair".

"Anybody who thinks there are ten good reasons for voting Tory, ought to vote Tory", he said.

Diefenbaker says he "put heart in the Canadian federal government", said Mr. Pickersgill, "the way I see it, he's taken the brains out".

Referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's "vision" of northern development, Mr. Pickersgill said that while "vision" means "all right in its place", Canada, at this moment was a "nightmare with a mortgage on it".

MONEY 'LOOSE' NOW

Mr. Diefenbaker criticises the former Liberal government's policy of "tight money", said Mr. Pickersgill, "well, our money's so loose now, it's unbelievable".

"The real record of the Conservative government is that in the last five years, every man, woman and child in Canada has had their personal debt increased by $200. You can't say that unemployment is the fault of Mr. Diefenbaker's fault. But the Tories refuse to recognize it. They invent, or doesn't exist. You can't cure a disease before you admit you have it. The real issue of this election is: are we going to go on with this collection of people who don't know what's going on? There's big odds in this election," Lester Pearson will get Canada back on the right road....Give Canada another chance, instead of giving John 'another chance.'"

The increase in employment was 40,000, a large rise for this time of year. It raised the job total to 7,295,000, which was 2,206,000 a month earlier and 7,207,000 a year earlier.

All of the gain was among men, reflecting mainly increased activity in agriculture and construction, as well as seasonal expansion in manufacturing and the service - producing sector.

"What is it we lack in the present crisis?" he asked, and then supplied his own answer: Leadership, as supplied by government through decm ocratic consensus planning.

HITS LIBERAL REMARKS

Al Cornwall, Associate Defence Minister Sevigny said the Liberals have created a bad impression abroad by their criticisms of the Canadian economy.

"They may have believed as good politicians, they certainly did not behave as good Canadians."

Liberal Allan J. MacEachen told a Judique, N.S., audience that recent pegging of the Canadian dollar at 92½ cents in American funds wiped out the federal subsidy on U.S. corn for livestock feed in Ont. The cheaper dollar put U.S.-priced corn back at its original level, even with the subsidy.

Northern Affairs Minister Hamilton said in a CBC radio network speech that payment of increased grants to the provinces caused the federal budgetary deficits of recent years. If these grants had not been stepped up the treasury would have shown a surplus.

Prince Philip at Controls As Plane Stops at Trenton

TRENTON — At 7.03 p.m., Monday evening, a high visibility and Dr. Buchanan "Bob" on" aircraft taxied up in front of the Air Movements' Unit building at RCAF Station Trenton.

At the controls of the plane, which is one of several designated "Queen's Flight", aircraft was the Commonwealth's most important young man, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburg. Since an accident in Europe last year, when the Queen's aircraft was piloted by a Communist jet, all aircraft carrying members of the Royal Family have been painted a distinctive fluorescent red (the Red Knight's color, familiar to the thousands who attend Air Force Day).

Prince Philip was flying in from London where he had reviewed the Royal Canadian Regiment.

In a few moments, the Prince dapper in a grey "business" suit and carrying an Of-homed shade hat, stepped from the plane. He was greeted by Group Captain D. G. Williams, Commanding Officer of RCAF Station Trenton and the two men chatted for several minutes while newspaper and television cameramen carried on their own particular field day. Public relations officers with the RCAF had given instructions "no flash bulbs, the Prince doesn't like them" and "not closer than 12 feet." Nobody deviated from the instructions.

The Prince wore a smile no more than interested in the airfield. He kept looking around and asking questions. Waving his hat in the direction of No. 10 hangar, and pointing intentionally for the photographers, but not making it any further than that.

Finally the Prince entered the car which was to take him to "Fleldcrest House", the summer residence of former governor general Vincent Massey near Port Hope.

The Prince gave the familiar wave of his hand and the three cars in the party took off, the Prince in the first car, which bore his personal standard.

As the lead car passed out through the gate the Prince waved in a friendly fashion at the Commissionaire.

The cars travelled by 6RD road, west by Dixon Drive to Station Street.

Around 100 east-end residents stood patiently waiting along highway 2 in the vicinity of Sidney Street for the Prince's car, but were disappointed.

Parked Cars Damaged

TRENTON — In Trenton, over the weekend, two residents, involving parked cars, resulted in considerable property damage but no personal injuries.

On Friday, a car driven by William Bryden struck a parked car on Trenton St., owned by Ernest Cockburn, causing damages estimated at $350.

Saturday, Ronald Moon, R.R. 2, Brighton, attempting to make a wide turn onto Dundas St. E. at Mack Theatre Station, struck a parked car owned by Mrs. Catherine Trenton. Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $450.

Fire-Crackers Set Sawdust Piles Afire

TRENTON — On Saturday, members of the Trenton fire department fought a stubborn blaze in sawdust piles back of the Beaver Lumber Company's office on Quinte Street. Thought to have been started by children exploding fire-crackers.

Around 3.30 p.m. on Monday, the department was called to Cliff Heaslip's store on West St. where a refrigerator motor had burned out.

Hanging up Gun, Picton Woman Wounds Self

PICTON — Mrs. Angus LeHeup, 33, was admitted to the Prince Edward County Hospital shortly before noon today, when she accidentally shot herself by a .32 calibre bullet, which narrowly missed her heart. She was unconscious when admitted, due to loss of blood, but her condition is reported as "fair." She has an excellent chance of recovery.

Mrs. LeHeup, who lives at Bongards, was putting a rifle in her bedroom closet overhead and the gun accidentally discharged, the bullet entering near the shoulder. Mrs. LeHeup dragged herself across the bedroom and kitchen floor and got out on the lawn. A neighbor, Mrs. Ernest Dunn, 3½ years old, was playing nearby and the injured woman asked the child to call his mother, which he did. Mrs. George Bowles and Mrs. Ernest Harrison were quickly on the scene. They called the police and the woman was soon on her way to the hospital.

At the time of the accident, Mrs. LeHeup was alone in her house, her husband being at work in Ottawa.

Good Sample

That was a good sample!

Now bring on the main dish.

That is the way many Bellevillians must be have felt this morning, as they returned to their jobs after the first long weekend of the summer season.

May 21 may be a little early to be recognised as summer officially, but we were well warmed up for the holiday by last week's warm spell. . .

And, indeed, most of the summer activities are now feasible—providing one is the hardy type. Those who never dip more than a toe in the water before July will just have to contain themselves in patience. They have not too long to wait.

Once the traditional "May 24" holiday is over—even when it comes on May 21—there are not many days separating us from the vacation season and there are a lot of events to be crowded into them.

Most important, of course, are those final exams which mean so much to the younger generation. This year, we have a Federal election thrown in. There will hardly be time to draw a deep breath before it becomes imperative to put the summer cottage into ship-shape condition. In order that it may receive its happy throng of visitors for the July 1 weekend. Then there until Labor Day, there will always be something doing—and some time during that two-month period comes the annual family vacation. Whether that is spent in familiar surroundings renewing friendships built up over many happy summers in this park, or whether the family goes adventuring into other parts of Canada, it is sure to be one of the highlights of the year.

Before we know it, at this rate, we shall find ourselves facing the opening of another school year. It is pleasant to think that, while time flies the clock ticks, it does not move quite as fast as the typewriter and that there are really three whole, long, glorious months before us ere we have to start worrying about filling up the oil tank and getting the storm windows ready for installation.

By the way, have you got the darn things off yet? Oh, so that's how you spent the holiday!

Howard Green Speaks Out

Without in any way taking sides in the current Federal election campaign, we think it ought to be permissible to say a word in praise of Hon. Howard Green, Canada's Minister of External Affairs.

Mr. Green found a pair of big shoes waiting for him when he assumed the portfolio following the untimely death of Dr. Sidney Smith, for the period which had elapsed since the duties of this office had been discharged by a Nobel Prize winner, Hon. Lester Pearson, was comparatively brief. Mr. Green had not only filled these big shoes adequately, but has used them to make some imposing footprints, some of them in unlikely places.

The other day, when President Kennedy announced the intention of the U.S. to reinforce its existing forces in Thailand with marines, Mr. Green did not sit on the fence. He announced forthrightly that the U.S. had every right to make this move, since it was with Thailand's consent—and indeed it is more than evident that more than mere consent but wholehearted welcome on Thailand's part was involved. Then Mr. Green went on to add that if any of these troops crossed the border into Laos, it would be an altogether different situation. He placed the blame for failure to arrange a coalition regime in Laos squarely on the right-wing royalist forces, those referred to in most press despatches as pro-Western.

There is no reasonable doubt about the accuracy of Mr. Green's analysis—the facts he set forth have been generally admitted in Washington. What may have surprised some was Mr. Green's courage in publicly proclaiming his beliefs. Ought not to have been a surprise. It was in keeping with his whole conduct of the external affairs department since he assumed responsibility for it. This is not the first time we have expressed commendation of Mr. Green. But a continuing performance of this nature deserves continuing recognition. Canadians of every political belief have every reason to be proud of the way in which Mr. Green has, time and again, spoken for Canada.

If communism is proclaimed where there is say, one pair of pants per ten persons, and these pants are divided equally into ten parts, we shall all be going without pants. We reject such pantless communism.—Nikita Khrushchev, criticizing Red China.

Oom Paul Got His Rival His Interview With PM

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Notes from the campaign trail . . .

A Grit MP, killed this story, and swear it's true, of how in the dying days of the recent Parliament, Roland Demers, the Conservative candidate in Essex East, came to Parliament Hill for a quick, look-see visit.

Now, as is well-known, Essex East is — and ever since 'way back in 1935 has been — the private political preserve of "Oom Paul" Martin, long-time Liberal cabinet minister, confidante of many prime ministers and old party warhorse extraordinaire.

But this didn't phase young Mr. Demers, and so, well in advance of election day, he came to the Capital for familiarization tour.

Thought it might be a good idea, too, if he paid a courtesy call on Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

So he saw Richard Thrasher, Conservative MP in neighboring Essex South, about it.

"Too late," remarked Mr. Thrasher, the PM's much - too busy for courtesy calls.

So Mr. Demers, undaunted, tried Norman Spencer, Conservative MP for Essex West.

Sorry. But the PM's too crowded. Perhaps, however, if formed, hasn't got a spare minute.

And so that it seemed, was that.

Until, in the Hall of Fame, as he was leaving the Centre Block, Mr. Demers bumped into "Oom Paul."

A-bit bemused, he told his Liberal rival his troubles. How difficult it seemed to get in to see the PM. . . .

Fir that, boomed "Oom Paul," and forthwith marched Mr. Demers off to the secretaries and assistants, straight in to see the Prime Minister.

Can't you just see "Oom Paul" doing it?

And getting away with it, too, for political foes though they may be, Paul Martin and John Diefenbaker, both old pros — and probably the two most knowing Parliamentarians in action today — are old and well-respected friends.

The PM probably got quite a chuckle out of it. "Oom Paul" certainly did.

It was one of the nice little touches that go to make up the politics and Parliament a little more worthy of the human . . .

FAVED OVER

. . . After having campaigned by air liner back and forth across the country since last Fall, Prime Minister Diefenbaker the other day at a press conference, wondered about the wisdom of electioneering from an altitude of 10,000 feet plus.

"Could be kind of difficult for the voters to recognize the candidate from that height," he grinned.

The Prime Minister and Liberal Leader Pearson together have discovered that in campaigning by air, the time you save in actual covering of distances is often lost in the shuffle over the short haul.

Because planes don't always fly in schedule, itineraries can be completely upset and carefully laid receptions and meeting plans fractured.

Seems that some of the grass roots could have been paved over with airport tarmac.

ONLY THE TRUTH

In this campaign to raise Parliamentary pay, which, incidentally, comes up during the electioneering, some knowing joker has come up with a slogan calculated to appeal to some second thoughts.

Parliamentarians for several Sessions now have been complaining that it's not possible on opening, at the expenses involved, on an MP's annual $10,000, or which $2,000 is tax free.

So the bids have gone in for increasing the pay to $15,000.

Countering this campaign, the slogan has been circulating around the Capital since the start of the election trail.

"Some MPs who weren't being paid what they were worth, should be happy about it."

Touche. . . .

Ulster Linen Industry

Ulster Commentary

The Central Council of the Linen Industry is to renovate the tomb of the Cromwellin family in the historic graveyard adjoining Lisburn Cathedral, in Northern Ireland. It is there that Judith Cromwellin, founder of Ulster's linen industry, is buried together with other members of his family.

On the personal invitation of William III, she had promised to encourage the industry, Louis Cromwellin, a French Ulster with seventy other Huguenot families in 1698. His task was to establish the manufacture of linen on a firm basis.

Cromwellin chose Lisburn as the centre of linen manufacture. From there it branched out all over the country. Cromwellin and his Huguenot friends brought the first stages of automation to the linen industry, which at that time, consisted of cottage weaving and handloom spinning.

Bleaching was achieved by spreading the linen cloth on the grass for many months.

All that was a couple-a-half centuries ago. Past and present were joined recently when a descendant of Cromwellin's, Captain R.M. Cromwellin, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, visited in London — visited Ulster. He visited the grave of his ancestor and saw the Bibles and prints in Friends, which were used by his ancestors. These are now preserved in the Cathedral.

The Cromwellin tomb at Lisburn is not the only existing remainder of the Huguenot settlers.

Much Sleep Unnecessary

Vancouver Province

Dr. Maxgalore Pal, who must know his subject thoroughly since he is a consulting psychiatrist at Balmoral Hospital Neuroses Centre, has said sleep is going out of fashion. It's not only what's left of Dr. Pal, that a man require eight hours oblivion out of 24.

Well, doctor, you may be right that it is no required, but we still like to get it. We don't sleep eight hours kin every night, we sleep at least that much every 3,000 hours in a year without a waking thought, some 30, 000 hour ten years, and that's out conscious worry. Come to think of it, that's all our most pleasant and even reprehensible thoughts, have occupied our minds during those hours.

It is no coincidence that the dictionaries of quotations revolve more tribute to sleep than to marriage, almost as many as a woman's work, and that the poets are either praising it by the skies or lamenting they can't get enough of it.

"Sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care," says Shakespeare. Dr. Pal considers that many people are getting along with three to four hours a night, and we don't doubt him.

But we know some of them and their sleeves surely seem ravelled to us.

It is probable that the village of Cromlin was named after Cromwellin, and Huguenot names are still common throughout the country.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
THROUGH ETERNITY

The inner life.

We all have an inner life — an inner existence. If the exterior is pleasant and commendable and the interior is evil, then the person is a hypocrite. But the inner experience of mind and spirit which one has privately may be hidden from the world, and vastly different from anything one's companions suspect, yet full of the utmost significance.

We all ponder and cherish our love for our children. We think of those who are near and dear to us. Some people learn so to dwell upon the presence of God that they come at last to feel a sense of spiritual companionship near them and in them every moment of the day.

Many people after sixty-five will no take entering new careers, but some people will. I have a friend classmate who had had one of the most distinguished medical careers in the history of modern medicine. He now writes novels and they are excellent. Another friend previously a generation ago did not begin until he was past sixty. Titian painted his greatest picture when he was past ninety-five.

Nobody can know you into the inner sanctum. If you lead there it is because you took a nose-dive into it yourself.

Keep the inner life rich — the intellectual life, the spiritual life, the life of sentiment and love. The outer life will die, the inner life will last through eternity.

Dr. Briggs was for the first time pastor of the church, Mr. Johnson assumed the duties as superintendent; and from that date to the present time he filled the office with marked ability. His resignation has been accepted with deep regret by all connected with the Church and Sunday School.

Meetings Are Made Boring By Chairmen

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Sitting and suffering for hours at a deadly banquet the other night, I thought wistfully of the late Robert A. Millikin, the distinguished scientist, who died over a large city, but with the perfect banquet speech.

At a Chamber of Commerce dinner in Chicago, Dr. Millikan was the guest speaker. At the table next to him, I was the toastmaster.

Before the meal, Millikan suggested to me that, in order to avoid tactful and disarmingly effective rebuke to his speech plans.

And all of us who are, from time to time, forced to attend such weary sessions, should insist on the right-hand rule of Jehovah upon those multitudes of chairmen, past president, future presidents, programming treasurers and outgoing secretaries, who make the air purple with their platitudious prose, who drone on in tides of boredom who impair our digestion, cloud our vision, stupefy our minds, and paralyze our posteriors.

Although far from the stature of a Millikan — or, for other spiritual or intellectual gifts — so, have suffered at the English of these barbarous and intensitive windbags. I, too, know what it means to sit at a banquet table hour after hour, poisoned by cigar smoke, strangled by the stench of bad rhetoric, until the speech I was to deliver seems a mockery of brain.

Never though, have I had the courage of a Millikan. I have been merely, on such occasions, trimmed my talk down to the bare essentials, and then swiftly left the room at the first stirring of the chairman, to get a breath of horror in the weary gyms.

This, I know, is the coward's way out. Heroism, instead, is boldness by the very green memory of Dr. Millikan's noble examples; I shall try to emulate that anonymous, but immortal, actor who, after an eternal introduction by a gabby chairman, was presented to the audience with the words: "And now Mr. Blank will give you his address."

Mr. Blank stood up, straightened his sagging shoulders, licked his dry lips, strode manfully to the footlights, held a manuscript out of his pocket and deliberately tore it to pieces. "Gentlemen," he intoned slowly and loudly, "my address is the Lambs Club, New York," and promptly sat down.

Compulsory Insurance

Calgary Herald

In considering higher contributions to the Unemployment Fund by unlicensed drivers, Hon. Gordon Taylor, minister of highways, is at least conceding that some form of compulsion is necessary.

We still hold, insurance companies to the contrary, that compulsory automobile insurance is a certain figure would be a better solution.

To Your Good Health

Eustachian Tubes Equalize Pressure in the Ears

Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause "popping" in the ears? It isn't a ringing noise. — M.C.P.

The Eustachian tubes (about an inch and a half long) connect the upper throat and middle ear, the purpose being to equalize pressure inside and out. This is important for good hearing.

At the narrowest point, the tube is quite small, and if inflammation or anything else obstructs this opening, crackling or popping sounds can be sensed as the tube opens and closes. (Yawning and swallowing automatically open the Eustachian tubes to maximum size — that's why swallowing helps when going up or down in an elevator in a high building, or in an airliner that doesn't have a pressurized cabin.) Wax in the ear canal may also cause this.

Dear Dr. Molner: My granddaughter who is nearly 15 has not menstruated. Will this injure her health? She isn't the rugged type and worries over her appearance. — Mrs. L.

No, her health won't be harmed by her delay. Only a doctor can really call it a delay, since some individuals start early and others don't. And it's not unusual for it to start and then stop for a while before it's sure resuming. Stability and regularity sometimes take time.) However, anemia and other ill conditions may retard menstruation. I presume she has had her health checked from time to time.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have yellow spots on the skin of my feet. Please tell me what to do for this, and what foods have Vitamin A. — Mrs. H.

Well, maybe if I looked at your feet, I'd see yellow. Most soles weren't unduly yellow. Normal flesh tint have a certain amount of yellow, and if you hadn't noticed it before, you may be looking for pain.

If the skin is really quite yellow, as compared to anyone else's, then it's time to start to worry.

The foods containing Vitamin A are mostly yellow — carrots, squash, egg yolk, butter, etc., and also some others, such as liver, green vegetables, halibut and cod liver oil.

A distinct, general yellowing of the skin, usually noticeable first in the whites of the eyes, is a warning signal for liver disease, or jaundice. You can yourself square in the white of the eye before you start worrying too much.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend told me her doctor said that if exercise requiring bending the knees was the worst thing a woman past 60 could do. Are there no exercises for such women over 60? — C.H.B.

The first exercise that comes to mind is common sense. Did this un-named "doctor" really say that to anyone? Then you can't even walk without bending your knees. Or, if you do walking, plus any exercise you enjoy, is "good exercise" for women past 60. Or for anybody.

Note to J.M.: I don't know that the various corn removers are as you say, "losing their punch." Repeated tests of them, however, means that you haven't got to the important thing, which is to change to shoes that are suitably fitted so that the corns don't return.

Crocodiles Need Ballast

BBC LONDON LETTER

The Nile crocodile enjoys a tasty meal of stones from time to time. Recently, Dr. Hugh Cott of the Zoological Society of London published a paper suggesting an explanation for this curious diet, basing his conclusions on an examination of 86 of the reptiles.

Reporting on the paper in the BBC General Overseas programme Science and Industry, Laurence Spice said that Dr. Cott had found that the crocodile never carried these stones in the first year of its life, but that after that they made up the stomach for the whole of its life, and the standard load appeared to be about one per cent of its total weight. "Dr. Cott suggests that the active evidence that the crocodile does not swallow these stones accidentally or in order to help digest its food. He reckons that the stones are taken as a ballast to hold the animal down on the bottom of the rivers or swamp when he's resting. They also help him to hold his victim under the water, so that the crocodile is both nose and tail heavy and has these help to counter-balance this, and so save him from rolling about in the water."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At the airport, a party of half a dozen of us whose flight had been a bit delayed, were more or less acquainted as we waited for a new boarding call. I sat in a group. One of us was one of those well-dressed, tall, smiling, fully shod executives types who have a natural confidence towards their fellow men. He had little to say other than brief witty mono-syllables as he listened to the rest of us talk.

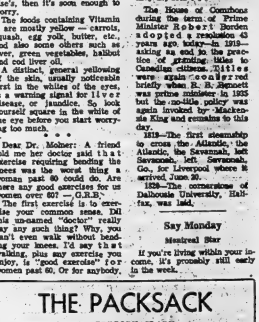
Another of us was a housewife who had a pipe in her mouth as if it were a permanent feature of his face. He had a kind face and one of the best times in the hour.

"Tell me," said the smiling one, "what do you see in smoking?"

The towelled man studied the other while he reflected.



"Well, sir," he said, "what do you see in whatever happens to be your habit?"

The smiling one frowned in the blank expression that removed the smile from the tall man's face that it had not occurred to him that he had any habits.

A few minutes later we got up and left our party. When our flight was called, he sat apart. And the look of him, as he sat gazing out the porthole, he was trying to figure out what habits he had, and what he saw in them.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Evelyn C. — Now at the last minute my parents are cutting corners on my wedding celebration.

Mrs. D.C. — As soon as you say the word "wedding" the price of a thing jumps sky high. • • •

Evelyn C. — I'm to be a June bride. Naturally I've had a mental image of how the wedding will come off. But I have a job in a private school (the state and, after explaining what sort of an affair my fiance and I would like, I let the actual arranging up to my parents.

Now I learn that instead of floral decorations we'll have but a few potted palms. Instead of a small orchestra, we'll have one accordionist. The wedding photographs will be taken by my uncle, not by a professional. And the wedding cake will be made by my aunt. Mother said the caterer lacked out so many extra charges that she decided to save $60 on the cake.

I know we're not rich. But why must my wedding slip back to such austerity?

• • •

Mrs. D.C. — We started out with the best of intentions. We wanted to give Evelyn the wedding of her dreams and we thought we had the right amount of money salted up to pay for it. We even felt more "flushed" than others. In our income bracket, because Evelyn is a modest wage earner herself and was paying for her own wedding gown and most of her honeymoon wardrobe.

But the minute the word "wedding" leaves your lips, everyone's mouth waters for a big profit! Ask to have pictures taken and each pose is $100 a dozen. The caterer trapped us with a price that seemed fair, but then slipped in news of the things it didn't cover, like liquor, a wedding cake, souvenirs and decorations.

Evelyn will still have a nice wedding. It won't be a bonanza for the wedding business, though. • • •

The Council: Anyone whose engagement has been announced knows how long is the gravy train which pulls up at the nearest track. Mrs. C. will nod assent to this description from a recent survey: "A marriage bound couple sets looms spinning, ovens heating, engravers etching, vintners bottling, hothouses cooling, orchestras rehearsing, presses turning, diamond cutters cutting; gift registries registering; social secretaries consulting; invitation addressers addressing, flashbulbs popping and parents paying."

Naturally this billion-dollar industry runs in horror from the couple who, if they're New York City folk, get married for $11 at City Hall. That covers $5 for a blood test, $3 for a license and $3 for the civil ceremony. And it concentrates its attention upon the average wedding for a $3,500 total, just to keep busy, but it is always ready to pile on the extras which can bring the cost of a well-done wedding to as much as $100,000. So, in the face of such financial hysteroncy, it's no wonder Mrs. C. panicked and backtracked.

Does Evelyn really think the trimmings are worth going into hock for? Her wedding will sound one tall sudsers, especially with so much attention lavished pitching tit. Her parents seem to have. Since sensible parents, on the other hand, with incomes as low as $6,000 a year have found themselves paying off $10,000 weddings for years and years.

Evelyn and her husband-to-be want to divert some of their honeymoon funds for a fancier wedding, we offer them news of a honeymoon bargain. If they register with the Niagara Falls Area Chamber of Commerce (Strand Theatre Bldg.) for a June trip, they'll get a "two-for" pass — that is, two-for-the-price-of-one at the Falls.

YOU HAVE A HAND IN THINGS CANADIAN
when you own Life Insurance

Surprising? Yes—but true. Like most people, you have probably thought of your life insurance as protection for your family —as a good way to save money regularly —as a valuable collateral if you need a loan for an emergency.

Actually, your life insurance dollars are more than an investment in your personal security and your family's. These dollars are also an investment in Canada. They stimulate growth and progress and help make this country a better place in which to live and work.

At this moment, 9 BILLION DOLLARS of life insurance savings are invested in important Canadian enterprises — through the purchase of bonds and stocks and through mortgages.

These hard-working dollars are helping to finance great projects all over this country such as pipelines, shopping centres, bridges and highways, homes, apartment and office buildings, schools, factories, industrial plants and power developments. These investments create employment opportunities, too.

The income from these investments benefits you directly by reducing the cost of life insurance to you and the 9 million other Canadian policyowners.

More Women Are Entering Public Life Survey Shows

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

More Canadian women are assuming responsible public positions each year, an annual survey by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs shows.

A list of Canadian women in public life, released by federation president Mrs. Una MacLean Kerwin of Calgary, indicates more women are serving as councillors in municipal government, the number of women judges has risen and representation in legislatures is up.

The death of Cairine Wilson of Ottawa earlier this year, however, reduced women's representation in the Senate from seven to six.

The list names 96 women who are councillors or aldermen compared with 86 a year ago. Five of the newcomers are in Ontario: Mrs. Helen Moffatt, Chatham; Mrs. E. V. Lowell, Guelph; Mrs. Simon Webber, Ottawa; Mrs. Ruth Donahue, Sarnia, and Mrs. Anna Hughes, Waterloo.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell is councillor in North Vancouver and Mrs. Eileen Stubbs in Dartmouth, N.S.

A woman mayor was once a rarity in Canada. Now there are 12 as against 10 in 1961. The number of women in legislatures has increased to 13 from 12 with the election of Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain as the first woman in the Quebec House.

Representation in Parliament remains five with Mrs. Margaret Rideout Macdonald of Cardigan, P.E.I., the first woman eget of Ontario elected to the Commons. The other four are from Ontario.

In the legal field, 12 women now are judges compared with 10 a year ago. Mrs. Teresa Lemay - Lavoie of St. Georges East, Que., is the first woman appointed to the bench in Quebec. She's a municipal court judge.

The growing role of women in public life in Quebec is further reflected in the increase to six from one of women on provincial boards and commissions, including Mrs. Victor Trepanier of Quebec City, chairman of the Quebec Council.

The list also contains names of women who have distinguished themselves in other fields of government and the public service. Mrs. Ruth Addison of Vancouver is national president of the United Nations Association and Mrs. G. Kosanic of Winnipeg is national vice-president of UNICEF.

Mrs. Otto Koerner of Vancouver won the annual Canadian Conference of the Arts award for service to the arts, and Mrs. J. Sa'ia of St. Catharines, Ont., is the first Canadian to receive a bursary from the UN Economic and Social Council.

Modern Drugs a Serious Problem' Topic at W.C.T.U.

The recent meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the Y.M.C.A. The president, Mrs. Coulter presided. An Easter Prayer was given by Mrs. Crone. The scripture was read from Matthew 27:26 "and sitting down they watched Him there." Mrs. Coulter closed the meditation with a poem, and repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The Clip Sheet "A Dangerous Drug", was presented by Mrs. Way, Mrs. Coulter and Mrs. Farnsworth. Mrs. Gorstine and Mrs. Bergeron.

Modern drugs have created such a serious problem for the whole world, and in every vehicle, that it became necessary for the Federal Government to pass stiff control laws over their distribution and sale. Until 1961, Doctors do not agree on their dangerous effects, and have prescribed them quite completely study.

Dr. Gordon Bell, a drug expert, who runs the Bell Clinic in Toronto, is said to see them as a potential threat to all society-weakening morals and ethics.

MOOD CHANGERS

Three types of drugs, all mood changers, are causing problems. Tranquilizers are perhaps the most famous for their ability to calm the nerves and change a persons outlook on life. The amphetamines, like benzedrine and preludine, give the user "pep and energy". The barbiturates may calm and stimulate a person at the same time. Trouble caused by users of these drugs has alarmed the authorities. They are said to spark violence by teenagers, build criminals; perhaps some immorality.

This has occurred in Canada Montreal and Vancouver.

Under the loose title of 'Good balls' they refer to those developed fights, given men courage to rob banks, and have so affected the behaviour of police in some provinces, have swibstituted a powerful man to control them. The same drug under other names, such as "Benzedrine" or "pep-up" pills are said to have boosted athletes to new records of endurance.

ADDICTS CREATED

Truck drivers, university students, hockey players, salesmen are reported to have used "Benzies" through times of crisis or long work periods. Addicts are reported being created among housewives and slightly emotionally disturbed people.

It is said that three "goofballs" and a bottle of beer can produce a night-long drunk for a total of about $1.50.

Many doctors, policemen and politicians have claimed that these drugs encourage juvenile delinquency, loose crime, cause temporary insanity, destroy all moral values and may in the coming run be more deadly than other narcotics.

The driving black market is up to Justice Minister Davey Fulton's recent amendment to the Food and Drug Act, making it illegal for any person to have possession of the two drugs at a time, without a prescription. Tablets, five cents in prescription price, were sold for ten and twenty-five cents. Thieves stole on one occasion 40,000 "goof balls" Inmates of jails organized an importing system and a guard, later arrested, was found to have 11,000 "goof balls" hidden in his quarters.

The main problem is the greatest growth of non-criminal use of the drugs. Some people will steal, lie, cheat and forge to get their supply.

FANTASTIC DRUGS

The drugs are so fantastic in their ability to extend human powers, it is no wonder young people are tempted to experiment, such as a boy picked up by police, after stealing a truck by just crossing into a car, reasoning, he was sure he knew he had 18 tranquilizer tablets and a bottle of whisky in him. He drove for hundred that the boy just didn't seem to care about anything.

Dr. Bell, an authority on drugs, said he comes in contact now drugs with three other products, which he calls: "Our psychological Crutches, booze, drinking, too much eating, too much smoking." To escape from the problems of life and become one most fight against it. One of the biggest problems today is to be 'calm and happy.' Dr. Bell says; "Every time a person gets a pill for whatever ails feel better, he weakens his will power."

"A healthy civilization must solve its problems," he says, "but drugs only appear to go away with pills."

Further developments in this problem are awaited with deep interest. The earnest prayer is for wisdom and guidance in this new problem in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Finland Needs TherapySchool Says Returnee

MONTREAL (CP) — A Panama hat, three Indian arrowheads and 100 typewritten pages of notes weighed down Marjatta Kilpio's luggage on her return to Finland from a three-month tour of North American hospitals.

The tour was made on a World Health Organization fellowship to study them in brief, able to Finland's first school of occupational therapy, still in the planning stage.

Miss Kilpio bought the hat for her father, the arrowheads for her three young nephews.

The notes, which she calls "books to keep my knowledge on," will be compared with those taken by other Finnish therapists during subsequent tours in Europe.

The need for a school of occupational therapy in Finland is critical, Miss Kilpio said. The country has only two graduate therapists and although she is chief of occupational therapy in Helsinki's Meilahti hospital, Miss Kilpio is not formally accredited.

She says what she has learned about teaching methods during her visit will help her establish a school but "we ourselves must find a Finnish way."

For example, the Finnish program would place more emphasis on "the human touch." Experience can still do things with their hands and they are very interested in such things" in Finland.

Scott's UCW Discusses Teen Age Problems

SIDNEY, SIDNEY—On Thursday evening, Mrs. Ken Paul was hostess to 12 ladies who attended the U.C.W. meeting.

The president, Mrs. C. Frost opened the meeting with the invocation, stating that the topic was "Members of the Church".

During the past month 25 cards had been sent and 11 calls made.

It was planned that a corsage of ladies would attend the regional meeting of the U.C.W. at Mount Pleasant on May 30.

Mrs. A. Martyn read the Scripture lesson taking it from Chapter 12 of Romans and Mrs. Frost read the meditation, followed by a prayer that all might be made stronger in the keeping of the faith.

Mrs. Maurice Dafoe presented an interesting and searching paper.

Mrs. Earl Dafoe and Mrs. Eldred Wickett spoke of how a university student began to question his religion and way of life. How he began to quit school and took a job in a factory. The conversation of the tragedy in other people's lives, he found God, and re-entered school with a good society student.

Then a lively discussion was held by all, re the teenager problems, the way they handle them, and the influence they put out things for themselves.

Mrs. Martyn thanked alike must take a keen interest in the children and be willing to spend time on them. This is usually done by the responsible parents and mother. However there are still some problem parents that Christian people could do more entertaining for the children in their homes. Children do right both by precept and example, and show the child he is trusted.

Another problem is how to keep the teenagers and young married couples in the church. Summer camps aid a great deal in this.

Mrs. George Pollard will be hostess for the June meeting with Mrs. Alton Sine, program convener. The meeting closed with the benediction.

CUTE COLUMNIST — Wide-eyed Stefany Laird, Ottawa's Miss Rough Rider of 1961, is a 15 year-old student at the Lisgar Collegiate who writes the Ottawa Journal's weekly column Girl About Town. It's a potpourri of feature stories on local and visiting personalities. She got the job after she won the Miss Rough Rider crown last October. (CP Photo).

Miss Rough Rider of '61 Is Now Paper Columnist

By ED TREPIAK

OTTAWA (CP) — It's not unusual for newly crowned beauty queens to become newspaper columnists, but most of the time it's a case of someone out of contest hoopla fade away together.

Stefany Laird, Ottawa's brown-eyed Miss Rough Rider of 1961, is one of a few who manages to develop their columns into long-lived series. Stefany writes the 15-year-old student's weekly column Girl About Town. Features on local and visiting personalities.

She thinks up story ideas on her own, gathers the information, then sits down and writes her column—in longhand.

It's not, she quickly explains, that she doesn't know how to use a typewriter. She just hasn't been able to persuade her parents to buy her one.

"I got the job just after I became Miss Rough Rider last October 13th," she said. "I had a discussion with the editor of The Journal's youth page, and we decided what form the column would take. The rest was left up to me."

Since then she has turned out about 30 stories, most of them about sports, a political and entertainment figure.

DEADLINE FOR 5

"I had some trouble with my writing at first," she said, "I used to get some help on how to write in newspaper style.

"But I'm getting along much better now."

The newsgathering part of her work is "really fun."

"I like meeting people, and I get out and meet all di'ferent types.

The day of this interview she was busy writing about Ottawa Mayor Dave Bolton, a 30-year-old Ottawa city councillor.

"He phoned and asked me if I'd be interested in doing the story. I got some ideas that way, and think up the rest myself.

"He came down to the school at noon today, and we went to a restaurant and got our lunch and the interview over with at the same time. Now I have to write it all up."

Stefany expects to continue her column through the summer months, but she's thinking of going to the University of British Columbia next year, which will present problems.

"The Journal has suggested I might conduct a travel column by mail, but I don't know yet whether I could write it right interfere with my school work."

She's not sure what course she will take when she goes to UBC, but she may enter either the arts or education faculty.

What about entering the newspaper business full time?

"I'd like to in a way, but I just don't think I'm cut out for it. I'm too impatient."

Strawberry Cheese Cake

(repeated by request)

by Mary Moore

On April 29th I gave here a recipe. Menu for four-to-six people. Included were a baked cheese dessert: Strawberry Cheesecake and Empire Torte. Both of these had been given me by readers who asked dates of which I mentioned.

Subsequently I have received requests from readers wishing these two desserts. Some have clipped them when they appeared originally. However, the majority of the requests were for repeats of the Strawberry Cheesecake so here it is. I have mailed copies of the Empire Torte from April 6th and 8th, 1950 to those who asked for it.

Dinner Menu

TUESDAY

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Mixed Grill of Sausages and Chicken Livers with Milk Gravy; Baked Jacket, Potatoes with Chive Sour Cream; Frenched Green Beans; Individual Deep Dish Pies with Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

STRAWBERRY CHEESECAKE:

Pat crumbs firmly on bottom and sides of a buttered 9 x 9" round pan (see note). Bake about 5 minutes, or until lightly browned at 400 deg. Fahr.

Cook over moderate heat until mixture boils and thickens; stir constantly. Mask 1 pound philla cream cheese. Stir in lemon mixture; beat well. Lipstick Becoming a Problem

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My daughter, who is 14, tells me that everybody in her class wears lipstick, and other make-up. They also go out with boys.

I was brought up in the country and didn't go out with a boy until I was 18. I didn't wear make-up, except for a little bit of powder on my nose, until I was 18.

Even though my daughter is still just a little girl in so many ways, she seems to be so undersexed about all of this, so I talked it over with her father. He agrees with me, but we thought we would get your opinion. —OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER.

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED:—If you know you are behind the times, why don't you catch up with what goes on? — I didn't wear lipstick until I was 16 either, but times change.

It is true that we used to connect any kind of paint on the face with being "fast." Go just a little bit further back and you will find that it used to be fast to show an ankle.

The thing that matters most with your girl is to be like the others. Many cosmetic houses turn out make-up which is very light and designed to be used by the girl who is just growing up. If you know what's good for you and her, you will explore such things.

It's your job to help her grow up properly, not to issue strict instructions that she feels like a baby and is never encouraged to strike out and make her own friends.

You will never prevent her from misbehaving by making her look like a bad-girl before she is started.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LIPSTICK—Please see my answer to Old-Fashioned Mother. Naturally you want to be like the other girls in your class and I feel sorry for you.

You make a mistake in having the other girls take their lipstick off when they come to see you. How is your mother ever going to be convinced that anybody else wears it?

If what I say has no affect on your mother, I expect you are going to have to bide your time for a while. If you keep your face clean and your hair beautifully waved, you probably look just as pretty as anybody anyway. Put a happy smile on that face and just see if the boys don't think you're pretty nice.

DEAR DORIS:—You asked me for an opinion about "free love."

"Free love" to me is a form of escapism from the pressures of today's hectic living. Rather than cope with the pressures, look for an out or some bit of excitement to escape this pressure, are easy marks for the exponents of "free love." That idiotic motto "live for tomorrow we die" is still the philosophy of the immature, whether they be eighteen or fifty years of age.

Actually, it seems to me that "free love" or its equivalent is practised far too often to escape the light inroads of our current divorce laws. While I would not like to see them as free as they are in the U.SA, a realistic approach to divorce and marriage must be taked if we are to avoid a complete breakdown of twentieth century morality.— DIRECTOR OF A CANADIAN CHILD CARE AGENCY.

Thanks, Mr. Director. You should know!

TO MRS. J. L. W.—I have passed on your information to the girl who signs herself Bessie. You may be hearing from her direct. I am sure she will be grateful for your interest.

Focus on Health

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topic this week: A look at a special doctor with a small practice; a new technique for hearing the heart, and some summertime warnings.

William Kennedy Douglas is a doctor. At the age of 39, he has only seven patients. But they are seven very unusual patients.

Dr. Douglas is physician for the first flight of an American around the earth. He watched the health of astronaut Donald Slayton who missed his turn for the second orbital flight because of a heart beat irregularity.

And now he is preparing Malcolm Scott Carpenter to take Slayton's place shortly atop the huge Atlas rocket for the second U.S. orbital attempt.

Some of Dr. Douglas's guidelines for health and physical fitness are interesting. In an interview in the New England Medical World News, Dr. Douglas explained that he let the astronauts choose their own exercise.

"Frankly, I think this is the best way to prescribe any regimen necessary for health. Let the patient choose; because if it is his own choice he does it with enthusiasm, and in the end benefits far more than he would by any other means."

EAR FOR HEARTS

His stethoscope has taken another step. A new diagnostic technique for listening to heart beats involves a miniature stethoscope inserted through the throat into the esophagus.

From this vantage point, a doctor can hear heart sounds from right behind the heart, sounds normally blocked from his stethoscope by body tissue.

The heart sounds can also be tape recorded from the tiny interior stethoscope.

SUNBATHING WARNING

Bicycle riders — now that summer's here — take care says the American Academy of Pediatrics' accident prevention committee.

Ride your bike with the traffic, not against it. Don't ride bikes after dark. If you do, use a headlight up front, a red reflector behind, and reflectors on heels.

Don't ride double, since it cuts down on road visibility and makes balance more difficult.

Garden Notes

Plastic Big Aid to Gardeners

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The dahlia tubers we stored in plastic bags are plump and have healthy sprouts on them. The ones stored in peat and soil have shrivelled somewhat and many have not sprouted. The sprouts on these are thin and short.

I have found another use for plastic. You can open large size vegetable poly bags or buy plastic by the yard. You will find it in the clime stores. The number of flats and pots, planted with seeds of annuals, were becoming too numerous for the space near sunny windows. Beside that: flats and pots are a nuisance to move around and are unsightly. I planted the seed in the garden and covered with plastic.

After digging rake and levelling a small area I marked it off in foot squares, in each square there are three shallow trenches or drills. These were filled with a thin layer of peat. After a general soaking of the whole area liquid fertilizer was run along each drill. The seed sowed sparingly was then covered with a thin layer of peat. A sheet of plastic pegged down every six inches or so with sticks about 12 inches of mesh skewers keeps it in place.

This takes care of such hardy annuals as scabious, candy tuft, sweet alyssum, Whitsia, calendula, blue salvia, dianthus and several herbs.

This is a good way to start a small lawn, patch bare spots or start grass on a sharp slope.

The plastic of the sort I have holds the heat generated by the sun during the day and so conserves the moisture present in the soil. — Condensation causes the moisture to collect on the underside of the plastic. As the temperature rises the moisture vaporizes this creates a humid atmosphere ideal for germination of seeds and rooting.

Three pendual begonias planted five weeks ago were placed in plastic poly bags and the tops closed. Watering was done through the tiny holes punched in the bags. They need water every three days and as the sun in the east window became warmer they needed more water, every second day. After the roots growth, punch a few inch high they grew very fast and one has six red buds well developed. Take off the bags for four weeks.

Get your cantelopes (Also squash and cucumbers) off to an early start. Hollow out a depression 18 inches deep, fill in six inches with rotted leaves, compost, old sawdust, or ground corncobs. Tramp down to firm as much as possible. Cover with six inch layer of soil. Top soil mixes with humus and fertilizer. Always remember what ever you have on hand.) Plant the seeds in groups of eight. When the plants are two inches high thin to two seeds in each hill or group. Fill in as the plants grow but keep a slight depression to catch and hold rain. The underlying humus will act as a storage tank for moisture and the roots will have access to it at all times. In very dry weather give each bed one or two pails of water twice a week.

Use a sheet of plastic supported on wire or wood frame or brush to cover plants when-over the temperature drops be-low 40 degrees.

When the plants have set six or eight fruit pinch out the growing tip. The plant will throw all its energy into producing melons rather than long leafy vines;

FROM BIRDLAND BULLETINS

By WINIFRED WILSON

Did you ever think that birds are born twice? The little germ in the egg is surrounded by a stored-up nourishment in the form of albumen, and the baby young bird grows until able to twist and turn inside the shell. Then it pecks and pecks out — born for the second time.

Have you ever watched a songbird, such as a robin, emerging from its cramped quarters? The whole process takes many hours. At first a tiny bill appears, then the small bill shows through. Taking rest, between periods of great effort, the baby bird works in punctures holes all around the shell, sometimes slightly helped from without by the pecking of its mother, until the shell falls apart. Soon the parental has cleared away any little bits of shell from the nest, carrying them, one at a time, to some nearby perch where she often eats them instead of throwing them away.

BLIND AND NAKED

Most newly-born songbirds are at this stage blind, quite helpless, and naked except for a few tufts of down, especially on the head. Gradually a whole coat of down is grown, and later still this is exchanged for feathers. Kingfishers are among the few birds that do not have down before the real plumage.

Shore birds come from eggs that are large in proportion to the size of the parent. They take longer to hatch than young songbirds, so that the eggs must be big to contain a large amount of food to last out many more days. Killdeer eggs take 28 days to develop, but then the baby is well advanced, and is able to run around as soon as the covering of down is dry. A chipping sparrow emerges from the shell in nine or 10 days, but is incapable of leaving home for another 10 or 12 days.

EGG TOOTH

Some kinds of birds have a little horny point on the bill with which they punch the holes in their shells in order to break them open. This "egg tooth", as it is called, falls off in about three days as it is of no more use, instead of making a series of holes in the shell, a baby sora rail saws it off.

Eggs differ in color and shape. Most owls build in cavities, so have white, round eggs. Though hidden from enemies they show up for the incubating bird, and cannot roll away. Murres, place their eggs on ledges of cliffs, so Nature makes them sharply pointed at one end, to twirl around instead of roll off, and decorates them to match the rock.

Japanese Girls Caught Up In Web of Industrial Paternalism and Tradition

By CONRAD FINK

HITACHI, Japan (AP)—Six mornings a week, 20-year-old Hiroko Suzuki squats on a wooden stool beside the jerking production line and starts work — because of a decision made before she was born.

It was when Hiroko's father died on an employee in the same factory that the destiny of the short, girl was almost unalterably linked with Hitachi, Limited, one of Japan's industrial empires.

While she could have chosen another way of life, Hiroko today lives in a company town, is fully expected to marry a company man and bear her children in a company hospital. There is a good chance she will be buried in a company coffin in the company cemetery.

Like thousands of other young Japanese, Hiroko is caught up in a web of financial paternalism, tradition and circumstance from which there seems to be no escape.

By casting his lot with Hitachi, Limited, Hiroko's father did more than take a job. By Western standards, he subscribed to a way of life for himself and his family.

PATERNAL FIRM

For in its 51 years of existence, Hitachi, Limited, like many other Japanese industrial giants, has developed a paternalism that touches — and in many ways controls — almost every aspect of its employees' lives, like the paternalism of feudal times it is in fact an extension.

Most Japanese young men prefer jobs with the big established firms because of the lifetime job security and better welfare facilities they provide.

The firm sends workers to its own technical schools and colleges; gives them advice on birth control; provides low-cost housing; instructs wives in the ancient tea ceremony; sells food and clothing at a discount; operates a nine - hole golf course; gives free medical care in a 400-bed hospital and, if necessary, will sell a worker's survivors a coffin and cemetery lot for the equivalent of $1.67.

Japanese industry is reluctant to hire anyone who decides to quit a job and look for a better one.

SOMETHING WRONG

"If a man comes to us from Toshiba (a Hitachi competitor) looking for a job, we know something is wrong with him," one company official says.

The North American idea of jumping from job to job looking for advancement is almost unknown.

A worker eats in a company cafeteria. For this he pays the equivalent of $13.89 a month. He works a 48 - hour week, makes about $97.78 a month and pays in the neighborhood of $8.35 monthly for dormitory room and board. If he marries and moves to a company house he would pay a maximum monthly rent of $8.35 for six rooms. His pay is increased $2.78 a month for his wife and $2.35 for each child.

Workers seeking recreation can play on the company baseball teams, join the company amateur theatrical group or, at a nominal fee, spend a week-end in a company inn.

Hitachi executives insist this elaborate planning of a worker's life does not rob him of initiative.

"We almost never fire an employee," one official says.

Second Spring Horse Show Attracts Big Crowd, Entries

PICTON — Popularity of the second spring horse show, held in the County Centre at the Fair Grounds, Saturday night, was demonstrated by the attendance of more than 800 persons. Many others headed for the benches following an unusually hot day and therefore unaware that the Centre was ideally cool even with the large crowd.

The show was smoothly run in big time style, beneath bright lights, a sawdust covered floor of red, gay strings of flags and pennants, red, white and blue bunting, evergreen trees and decorated entrances.

There were 110 entries in the 17 classes, ranging from tiny ponies to prancing hackneys, hunters and jumpers, saddle horses and others.

The events were climaxed by the child's fancy dress turnout, with "bride and groom" outfits worn by those in the pony drawn buggies. First place went to David Welsh and Barbara Vanneer, the latter wearing a long gown of white net with long veil, while veil and holding a blue bouquet, and Second were Peter Lockyer and Bonnie Demille, the latter in pale yellow net, small yellow hat, with yellow bouquet and umbrella. Mary Walker and Jane Muthulland were third, Jane's long gown being of pink net with a bag-boop skirt. Next were Chris McCarney and Lyn Lewers of Gananoque, the others being from Picton district. The drivers were smart in black suits, bow ties and toppers. The long skirts of the girls came almost to the ground, to make a colorful picture.

OPENS SHOW

The show was officially opened by Milt Dunnell, sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star. Greetings were extended by Mayor H. J. McFarland and Kiwanian President Russell Alexander. The general chairmen were Sam Dodds and Chris Lockyer with Byron Beeler as secretary. First prize winners received gold trophies, other were given ribbons.

Cameron Bunnett was announcer; Russell Cochrane, of Burleton, judge; Col. Harvey in charge of the jumping classes.

In the colorful opening ceremonies, the Picton Odd Fellows' band, in scarlet uniforms, accompanied by the Hvely Eaton corps under Bonnie Hayden which also presented a smart drill.

During the evening, the band gave marshal music; Bonnie Hayden, a drum major performance; Chrissie Mitchell, a variety dance and Lydne Gardiner a novelty dance using diamond hoops.

A similar show is being held at Glen Lawrence Farm east of Kingston on May 26, and at the Belleville fairgrounds June 16. The show was sponsored by the P.D. Agricultural Society, in co-operation with the Kiwanis Club.

Medical-Care-for-Aged Plan Called 'Cruel Hoax'

NEW YORK (AP)—Leaders of the American Medical Association Monday denounced President Kennedy's medical-care-for-the-aged plan as a "cruel hoax" aimed at establishing "welfare state medicine" for everyone.

"England's nationalized medical system is the kind of thing they have in mind for us eventually," an association official said in a paid, country-wide television speech.

The plan would cover millions who don't need it and ignore millions of others who do, said the medical group's spokesman, Dr. Edward R. Annis, of Miami, Fla., the main speaker. He added:

"Our fees are not involved. Our practice of quality medicine is. Your health is."

The doctors' reply to Kennedy was filmed in Madison Square Garden, where the president addressed a cheering crowd of more than 17,000 Sunday in a plea for support for his administration's proposals to provide medical care for the aged through social security.

SAYS WILL PASS

President Kennedy said his program for medical care of the aged under social security will pass Congress "this year, or, as the tide comes in—next year."

The crowd at a rally held to support the Medicare proposal gave Kennedy a more rousing reception than he got at the same arena Saturday night when Democrats gave him a $1,000,000 "birthday salute." They contributed that much money to the party coffers. The president will be 45 May 29.

Referring to a threat by a group of New Jersey doctors to refuse to treat patients under the Kennedy plan if it is passed, Kennedy said: "I know that not a single doctor, if the bill is passed, is going to refuse to treat any patient."

However, the president said he believed the doctors in New Jersey "do not comprehend what I am trying to do."

URGES TO WRITE

He urged that doctors through the country write to him, to Welfare Secretary Abraham Ribicoff or to his bill's sponsors, Representative Cecil R. King (Dem., Calif.) and Senator Clinton Anderson (Deffr N.Mi) and get "a concise explanation" of the proposals.

Not all political experts are as sure as Kennedy that the bill will become law. It has been bottled up in the House ways and means committee since last session.

Kennedy described what he said was a typical case of illness for an elderly couple, with their savings wiped out, home lost, and their children financially crippled by paying medical bills for their aged parents.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Joe College and Betty Coed are no lopers. A survey showed the latest fad dating on eastern U.S. campuses are mixtures of milk and soda pop — more than 70 per cent of the students abstained from hard liquor or took less than two drinks a week.

Liberation Army Releases Four French Soldiers, Stirs Hopes in French Families

PARIS (Reuters) — Release Minister, told the French Senate this month that the Algerian rebels released 1,000 prisoners in 1958, 19 in 1959, three in 1961 and five since the cease-fire. This week's released bring the number since the cease-fire to nine.

The prisoners issue is a delicate one but as far the French government is concerned, while claiming that Algerians have not respected the Evian agreements on this question, has refused to treat it as a dispute so long as "small hitch" in the peace deal.

In the Senate 19 days ago Senator Bernard Lafay claimed that more than 200 French soldiers had incontestably been captured alive by insurgent forces. He cited letters to relatives, the accounts of their military comrades and information given by captured Moslems as evidence, and claimed to have evidence that the insurgents had massacred prisoners.

On the part of the government there is a strong desire not to stress any issue which might prejudice other aspects of the Evian agreements, and on the part of many Frenchmen there is the feeling that in the war, now seven years old, neither side can be sure it is blameless.

According to Algerian officials many thousands of Algerians are also unaccounted for and the first instalment—including several thousand names —of a list of those missing has been sent to the Algerian provisional executive.

Signs Indicate Adenauer's Authority Is Slipping

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The slalm and, descendency aroused by French President de Gaulle's bleak views of Europe may appear in retrospect to have been somewhat overdone.

In suggesting a continental third force between West and West German solidarity, in which there would apparently be no place for Britain, de Gaulle may have firm assurance of support from West German Chancellor Adenauer.

The question is whether Adenauer's word now carries the weight it once did. His retirement is widely expected before the end of next year, and already there are signs that his old authority is slipping. New currents are at work in West Germany and the younger men are taking shape; the struggle for the succession is already on.

Fortified by his long holiday in Italy each spring, the 86-year - old chancellor seems invariably to emerge from the winter's discussions somewhat the worse for wear. Despite denunciations and cancer scares, it still is doing famously.

Born in perilous times at this first permanent English settlement in America, the industry joined with the Jamestown Foundation here this month in celebrating the longest holiday beginning.

A highlight came last Thursday (Oct. 5) as Miss Catherine Barnes, 23, of Martinsville, Va., an 11th generation descendant of the Indian princess, Pocahontas, unveiled a life-size statue of Queen Elizabeth I of England.

Pocahontas, of course, was the heroine of Capt. John Smith's escape from beheading by Indians.

More importantly to this story, Rolfe married the girl who married John Rolfe, the first European man whose name appears in the New World.

RESEMBLES HER

Miss Barnes, like her illustrious ancestor, is willowy and athletic, has black hair and high cheekbones. Unlike Pocahontas, she has blue eyes.

Queen Elizabeth gets into the act because she was instrumental in first making smoking acceptable. She even let Sir Walter Raleigh teach the ladies of her court to smoke, and took a drag or two herself.

LAID FOUNDATION

It was in 1612 that Rolfe—and tobacco—saved the Jamestown colony from what looked to be almost certain extinction, and in so doing laid the foundation for the new vast commercial and industrial empire.

Let George Allen, head of the tobacco institute and a veteran of 20 years in the state department before he took the industry job, tell the story:

The "starving time" came to Jamestown in the winter of 1609-10 (the colony had been founded in 1607) and out of the 200 colonists, only 60 were still alive.

"A British ship put in to get water, and the colonists pleaded to be taken back to England, but the captain of the ship refused, all went aboard ship and they were sailing down the York River near what is now Newport News, when they got word of a relief flotilla off the Virginia capes.

"The London merchants who had financed the Virginia Company had agreed to make one more trial flotilla—did not believe it last. They had shipped over supplies for each year and also a few more colonists. Those who had wanted to give up were persuaded to go back and try again.

SPANISH TOBACCO

"In 1610 John Rolfe, gentleman, made his way to Jamestown after being shipwrecked and cast ashore at Bermuda. He was 25 years old, a very energetic fellow, with imagination and hard drive.

"Rolfe tried raising the local crops, Indian corn and tobacco. But the Indian tobacco was a very strong weed. A little was shipped to England; the smokers found it too raw and strong.

"Then Rolfe managed in some way to bribe or persuade a sea captain to bring him some 'Spanish tobacco' seeds from Venezuela or Trinidad in 1612. Spanish tobacco was Well known and favored in Europe. He planted it and his first shipment was just a few hundred pounds.

"As soon as it got to London, the merchants who had just about written Jamestown off, liked it immensely and ordered all that colonists could possibly produce.

"From 1612 on, Jamestown was a success. Rolfe had found the commodity to keep the colony alive, and he made peace with the Indians by marrying Pocahontas.

"But the real importance of what happened is that England's representative government, the rule of law, freedom of the press, the freedom to inquire, freedom of religion, all spread out from Jamestown."

DROP MOTORS — The holiday was a most pleasant day for boating, but there were a few local enthusiasts who were not able to enjoy the favorable conditions. The reason? No motors in their boats. The situation was remedied, however, as shown above using a wrecking truck at the edge of the Sea Cadet dock to lower the rebuilt engines into their proper place aboard the yachts of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's past commodores Robert Boyce and Milt Davison.

Douglas Plugs For National Medical Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, Monday campaigned in the Montreal area, plugging hard for a national medical insurance plan.

He defended Saskatchewan's Medicare plan in an hour-long question - and - answers session with four Montreal doctors.

Then he drove to a political meeting in St. Jehns, Que., where he told sweltering ol 175 persons an NDP government would pay the provincial government 50 per cent of the cost of providing complete medical care to every citizen.

In a statement he read before submitting to doctors' questions about the controversial Saskatchewan plan, Mr. Douglas said the Medicare system provides free health insurance provided for all, on equal terms, by their membership.

He said no special group, in favor or out of the medical profession, has the right to block the people when they decide to join together to pay their medical bills rather than paying them individually.

WILL PROCEED

Speaking of Saskatchewan's Medicare system, Mr. Douglas said he has no doubt that the government of his home province—where he was premier for 11 years—will proceed on schedule with or without the cooperation of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons which opposes it.

He said he hopes the doctors will co-operate and predicted that within six months "people will ask that the feud was all about."

There were only vague objections that Saskatchewan was building "a monster welfare state."

He did not know how many doctors in Saskatchewan are individually opposed to the plan, but said that he knew of many supporters in rural areas sympathetic to it.

WANTS CLASSIFIED

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Film Societies said Monday that movies should be classified, cut out. The federation passed a resolution at its annual meeting urging that film censorship "in its present statutory form" be replaced by a state-run system of classification that would allow some movies to be seen by anyone, others only by persons above a certain age.

Two Unions Order Men Back to Work

By JULES LOH

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A union jurisdictional dispute that disrupted operations in the port of Toledo ceased Monday as two unions ordered their men back to work.

Picketing by the Seafarers International Union and of the Maritime Trades Department of the AFL-CIO, an affiliation of 44 unions including the SIU had delayed loading of the freighter James Norris for 11 days.

Supervisory personnel loaded grain aboard the Norris as she could sail Monday night. Longshoremen had refused to load here.

The Norris, a 670 - foot freighter, sailed out of port late Monday without any trouble.

One unidentified sniper fired shots at the Norris Sunday but no one was injured. The .30-calibre bullet struck near a port hole in the cabin of Capt. James Barnes.

Two boats manned by pickets were seen Saturday by police, who said the picketing violated a court order. Five pickets were arrested.

The dispute arises from a battle between the SIU and the Canadian Maritime Union, which recently won representation rights for crew members of ships operated by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto. Its Upper Lakes owns the Norris.

PICKETING ENDS

At Trenton, SIU executive vice-president, said the picketing ban was ended but will resume if any time an Upper Lakes vessel enters the port. He announced the back-to-work movement after port officials and union leaders met.

Louis Purdey, general manager of the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority, said the unions sought the meeting to provide "the background of their position—for information purposes only."

SIU picketing and sympathy walkouts by the International Longshoremen's Association had left several ships idle in the harbor.

Judge Thomas J. O'Connor of Lucas County common pleas court issued several court orders aimed at halting the walkouts. Police guarded the docks after he reported receiving threatening telephone calls.

PATROLMEN ARRESTED

Meanwhile, two harbor patrolmen were arrested on a warrant signed by Kevin Ryan, 32 — the five pickets arrested. Ryan operates a picket boat that was rammed and sunk Saturday by the Lake Carriers' harbor patrolmen Donald Sturgill, 34, and John Gilbert, 31. Ryan charged Sturgill with malicious destruction of property and Gilbert with assault and battery.

A municipal judge released the officers on their own recognizance. They were attempting to serve court orders against picket boats at the time of the incident.

Tanner, co-ordinator for the Maritime Trade Department of the AFL-CIO, said Monday that the dispute was turning Toledo and Indiana ports "inhospitable."

He said Toledo "is being made a ghost port by the policies of certain ports supporting Upper Lakes Shipping."

In Toronto, an Upper Lakes Shipping spokesman said that grain cargos for customers are required, the company "will operate in and out of Toledo."

"If Toledo is to be turned into a ghost port, it is through the actions of the unscrupulous union tactics being used in defiance of law and authority," the spokesman said.

Charles Lindbergh on 35th Anniversary of Flight to Paris Engaged in Aviation

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—A team of experts in science and defense, known on the record as the Strategic Missile Evaluation Committee, met in a room at the Pentagon in Washington in 1954 and made a critical decision.

The committee's function was to help the government decide what direction the U.S. missile program should take, and the advice it gave that day was to go ahead with development of the Atlas — the rocket John Glenn was destined to ride into space.

One of the members of that committee was Charles A. Lindbergh.

The coincidence is intriguing, but far more interesting to many is that Charles Lindbergh was in 1954 and is today—on the 35th anniversary of his storied flight from New York to Paris—actively involved in aviation.

This may surprise some who were asking, and then be perplexed for Glenn whatever became of Lindbergh?

The vague general impression is that Lindbergh long ago withdrew to some secluded island, cutting himself off from a society which once had hounded him but which also had given him a moment's peace even after the 1932 kidnapping of his son.

WENT TO ENGLAND

Shortly before Bruno Hauptmann was executed for the kidnapping in 1936, Lindbergh moved to England. He returned four years later but didn't remain long as a public figure until his impassioned 1941 campaign to keep the United States out of the Second World War.

Lindbergh now lives in Darien, Conn., as normally as anyone else—except in one respect. He simply avoids the public eye.

He attends few public functions. His telephone is unlisted. His mailbox is nameless. His business associates refuse to divulge his whereabouts to the merely curious.

But Lindbergh is in no sense secluded.

He goes about freely. He stands on the platform with the commuters from Darien, and rides his train with them to New York. He stays in hotels when he's out of town. And when he's home he putters around his lawn and chats with the neighbors. He frequents the friends who come to visit his children.

He studiously avoids photographers and, as one of his close friends explained, "he has developed the knack of being inconspicuous in the act. He's better at it than any detective."

And so the man once known on sight by nearly every adult 90, can stroll the streets almost unnoticed.

But he still is a consultant for the U.S. defence department, according to Time magazine spokesman "has made major contributions to the ballistic missile program." He also is a consultant for Pan American World Airways.

He has five children, Jon, 29, now in California; Land, 24, in Washington, and the other three at home: Anne, 23; Scott, 19; and Reeve, 17.

Likely he will reflect on his solo flight this anniversary date.

It was drizzling over Long Island at 7:52 a.m. May 20, 1927 when Lindbergh slid casually into the narrow cockpit and taxiened to the throb of the 220-horsepower single engine of his plane The Spirit of St. Louis.

LIFTS INTO HAZE

The monoplane, heavy with fuel, lumbered down Roosevelt Field's soggy runway, lifted laboriously into the haze and out of sight.

Another stunt by a kookarby kid, some said.

To Lindbergh the flight was no stunt.

Each step along the 3,640-mile route was carefully measured at 100 - mile intervals against clock and compass; each drop of the 450-gallon fuel supply carefully calculated against each of the 5,000 pounds of gross weight. He took no parachute, wore lightweight boots of his own design, measured unneeded areas from his charts.

At the Place de l'Opera in Paris flickering lights which had lured the flight's progress for anxious thousands suddenly settled out, first in French then in English:

Lindbergh arrived Le Bourget 10:24 p.m. Paris Official. We confirm it. We confirm it. We confirm it."

Excitement leapt the seas.

In Paris they danced and in London they cheered and in Rome they sang. And in the United States they cheered and cheered and sang and wept.

Of the U.S. needed a hero in 1963 none has come to take Glenn, the situation was comparable to the craving when Americans were discovering things for free value weren't to be found in speakeasies.

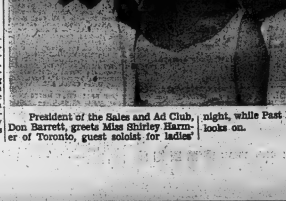
Ladies' Night At Sales, Ad Club Success

Ebvy of the ladies was Mrs. Gerry Hyde, lucky winner of the major draw, a complete lady's wardrobe, at the Sales and Ad dinner Wednesday evening at the Club Commodore.

The wardrobe, donated by Mr. Ivy Shannon of Mlady Shop, included clothing and accessories from Woodley's, Maher's and Shannon's.

The gala evening, one of the season's highlights, was attended by 150 members of the Sales and Adders and their wives, to whom the event was dedicated.

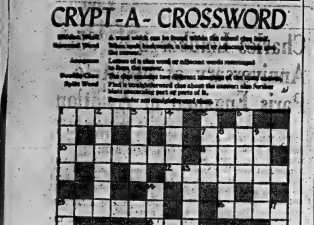
The delightful program of events began with a cocktail hour.



Following was a delicious turkey dinner after which president Don Barrett's wife, Helen, was presented with red roses. The secretary-treasurer, Jim Walker, was introduced and red roses presented to Mrs. Walker.

Phil Flagler, past president, introduced humorist Ted Reid and charming Shirley Harmer, well known TV and movie star. The humorist started with a real evidence of the hit that Miss Harmer was as she delivered her songs with all the showmanship and glamour that rocketed her to London and fame.

Concluding the evening was dancing to the popular Commodore Orchestra and the drawing for the bountiful array of prizes donated.



A Savile Row, tailored-to-measure suit, donated by Jim Walker and Don Stanton, was won by Terry Eden of Trenton.

Jim Walker did a fine package success and did truly accomplish the aim of his members, to make their ladies "queens" for an evening.

President of the Sales and Ad Club, Don Barrett, greets Miss Shirley Harmer of Toronto, guest soloist for ladies' night, while Past President Phil Flagler looks on.

Columnist Glad He Is Not Married to Some Actresses

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you like a job that enabled you to spend part of your working time with some of the world's most glamorous women — and paid your money for doing it? Dating — and sometimes wiving — with celebrated beauties is one of the fringe benefits of writing a daily newspaper column.

Imagine getting paid for listening to those georgeous dames," is the envious remark a columnist hears most often from other men.

"I'd be glad to do it for nothing. Tell me, what are they like?"

Well, in the last 18 years I have met dozens of the most famous feminine stars of stage and screen—just about all except Brigitte Bardot, Elizabeth Taylor and Lassie. They range from Natalie Wood and Joanne Woodward to Mae West and the late Ethel Barrymore.

And what were they like? Frankly, most of these lady celebrities were just like ordinary women — except more so.

FEEL PITY

The feeling I have most often after leaving them is one of pity for their husbands—and relief that I am not married to them.

The merciless demands of stardom rob many of them of the softer charms of femininity. The struggle to stay on top turns them into monument egotists, and their egos must be constantly fed with praise and lip-service admiration or they turn into raging tigresses.

Their beauty often has a surface, varnished quality that says, "fragile — don't touch." There is also a cold and brittle air about them that reminds us if they had been chipped out of Italian marble. Their smiles, at tracts, and leaves a man with a feeling of uneasiness.

Many of these legendary beauties haven't had the time to develop other aspects of their nature. The conversation is about as inspiring as that of a department store mannequin. Their chief subject: Themselves.

REST UNINTERESTING

If you talk about anything else, you raise the interest dying in their eyes. They don't want even to talk about another lady star—unless her last film was a box office dud.

In discussing their activities and attitudes, they be like Baron Munchausen. They parrot, generally, only what is popular or fashionable at the moment. The last thing on earth they want you to know is what they are really like—how they really feel.

There are distinguished exceptions, of course. Not all the lovely ladies of the entertainment world are frightening up close.

Here are a few that I feel I could enjoy a fun-filled life with—particularly if we had a joint bank account:

Sophia Loren, Ann Bancroft, Shirley MacLaine, Joan Crawford, Lauren Bacall, Julie Andrews, Marlene Dietrich, Marilyn Monroe, Deborah Kerr, Audrey Hepburn and Juliet Harris.

These are girls who have both personality and charm. They could prance a three-room kitchenette as well as a Hollywood mansion.

Get at all: Nice is a beautiful bore. All are wonderful conversationalists, worth any man's ear.

Miracle Worker, Music Man May Recapture Audiences

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's nothing wrong with the movie business that attractions like The Miracle Worker and Music Man can't cure.

Within a jewelbox area two such films in one week, he sees a glimmer of hope that motion pictures can recapture their audiences.

Both new films derive from the stage, but the makers of each have wisely discarded the staginess to use the film techniques to best advantage. ....

The Miracle Worker may appeal at first by forbidding material for entertainment: The effort to teacher Annie Sullivan to bring the deaf-blind-mute Helen Keller out of her animal-like world. But the unfolding of this challenge to the human spirit is anything but depressing.

It is the story of a tough Irish girl, herself the conqueror of blindness and the snake-pit of public institutions, who pits her strength and cunning against an equally strong - minded young girl.

Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke are nothing short of perfect in the roles they created on Broadway.

Music Man is all fun and 2½ hours-long. Only the most cynical could complain about it and they had better go see something by Tennessee Williams instead.

The Meredith Willson hosanna to the corn-fed wonders of Iowa is virtually unchanged in content from the stage version, but the size and action have been extended for the wide - screen. You actually see the 76 trombones.

With a burst of genius, Warner Brothers allanged Robert Preston to play the leading role,

Crackers Whip Suns, Leafs Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, who had been threatening to make a runaway of the International League race, are out of the clouds and back to earth.

They had their eight-game winning streak snapped Monday night and saw their lead over Buffalo Bisons clipped to 3½ games.

Atlanta Crackers, behind the four - hit pitching of Johnny Kucks, whipped the Suns 5-1, while the Bisons were beating Syracuse Chiefs 7-4.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester Red Wings split a doubleheader, the Leafs taking the first game 9-6 in 10 innings and the Wings winning the seven-inning nightcap 3-0. Columbus Jets downed Richmond Virginians 5-3.

Richmond beat Toronto 6-2 and 3-0 Sunday, Atlanta behind Syracuse 8-2 and 10-4, while Buffalo and Columbus split a pair, Buffalo winning the first game 5-3 and holding the second 7-3. Jacksonville grabbed 5-3 and 10-6 wins from Rochester.

Rochester beat the Leafs 7-2 Saturday, Syracuse defeated Atlanta 4-3, Columbus edged Buffalo 6-5 and Jacksonville beat Rochester 7-5.

The Bisons collected 11 hits but managed to leave 14 runners stranded, while five Jacksonville errors enabled the Bisons to win.

A single by Fritz Brickell, his 11th of the season, capped a three-run Columbus uprising in the opener against Rochester in the finale.

Buster Narum spun the shutout for the Wings in the nightcap, allowing seven scattered hits.

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP)—Big winner in Saturday's $7,500 feature race at Richelieu was Wanita Adios of the Miron Stables of St. Jerome, Que. The four-year-old bay horse, driven by Keith Waples, added $3,750 to previous winnings and paid $4.00, $2.80 and $2.20.

The co-featured $25,000 Summer Festival Pace went to Stephen Smith in the world record time of 2:30 2-5 for the distance of one mile after Great Scars took command around the half turn with the six-year-old son of Gene Abbe and Ibet held off the late rushes of Fake Step by a neck and Henry T. TORONTO (CP) — Sun Dan, owned by Mrs. Ruby Fair of Weston, and Payola, owned by Mrs. Ruby of Toronto, won two divisions of the Canadian Rock Stakes at Old Woodbine Saturday, featuring the season's largest crowd of 25,161 and $272,709 on the day's eight races.

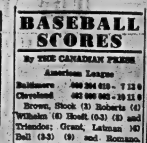
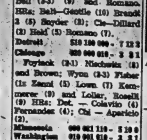
Payola defeated Burnt Rock in the feature division in the finished third.



Payola ran the mile in 1:38 4-5 and paid $4.10 to win.



Sun Dan defeated Roman Dipper by a slighter margin of a length in the first division of the Friar Rock. The Canadian-bred colt, one of the favorites by next month's running of the $15,000 Queen Plate, now has won all three races in his three-year-old campaign.

The holiday daily double paid $38.20 as Bathing Way and Formal Treat won the first race. The quinella of Bullpine and Star Gun in the fifth race paid $71.20.

Greek River Nips Ridan

Longshot Wins Preakness

BALTIMORE (CP-AP) — The Brandywine Stable's Greek Money, an 11-to-1 longshot, outkicked Ridan in a blistering stretch duel to win the $138,300 Preakness Stakes by a nose Saturday.

Greek Money, owned by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, aboard Ridan, immediately claimed a foul against Johnny Rotz, regular Ridan jockey, but it was disallowed.

Sunday, Ycaza was suspended for 10 days and fined $200 for a "frivolous claim of foul" and Rotz was fined $100 for "intervening" before and in announcing their action. Pimlico officials said they also were recommending that Ycaza's suspension be extended 30 more days by the Maryland Racing Commission. A 15-day suspension is the longest that can be assessed by stewards, but the commission can levy heavier penalties.

Ycaza claimed Rotz had caused interference as the two raced — runners staged their stretch battle, however, after viewing films of the race, the stewards absolved Rotz and sustained Ycaza instead.

USED ELBOW

Chief steward Joseph Fitzsimmons said, "From all the films of the race leaned against jockey Rotz, with his elbow across in an effort to keep the latter..."

Ycaza's foul claim was the first ever lodged against a Preakness winner in 86 runnings of the classic, the second in the triple crown of racing for three-year-olds. The Preakness was inaugurated in 1873.

Ridan finished second, Ronnie Line third and Vimy Ridge fourth in the field of 11. Decidedly the scrimest of the Kentucky Derby, finished eighth and Jaipur, the co-favorite with Ridan, was 10th.

Greek Money ran the 1 3-16 miles in 1.56 1-5 and paid $25.80, $9.40 and $6. Ridan returned $5 and $3.20 and Ronnie Line $3.80.

All eyes were on the betting leaders as they came down the stretch, one of the longest in racing, before 32,854 screaming fans. At the finish the leaders were 5½ lengths in front of Romalo Line, the second horse in the Kentucky Derby.

RIDAN LEADS

Ridan had led by a head over Jaipur after three-quarters of a mile. Greek Money coasted along in fifth place.

Suddenly Jaipur collapsed, and Ridan was challenged by Greek Money when they swung into the straightaway for home with less than one-quarter of a mile to go.

Greek Money collected a $135,800 first prize, second richest in Preakness history, for Don Ross, banker and member of a prominent Philadelphia family. He also is president of Delaware Park Race Track.

Ridan's share was $30,000, with $15,000 to Romar Line and $7,500 to Vimy Ridge.

The win boosted Greek Money's earnings to $190,926.

Daniels Stopped By Clay

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Cassius Clay stopped Billy Daniels on cuts in the seventh round of a battle of unbeaten heavyweights Saturday night.

Referee Mark Conn halted the contest at 2:22 of the seventh of the scheduled 10-round televised fight because of a nasty cut over Daniels's left eye.

Although Clay, a 5-to-1 favorite, had a good lead, he didn't show too well against the 31-year-old barber who twice beat the cocky Kentuckian with long rights to the jaw.

Clay, 181 pounds, scored his 14th victory in an all-winning pro career and his 11th knockout. Daniels, 189 pounds, suffered his first defeat after 11 victories.

FENDER INJURED

BOSTON (AP)—Paul Pender, recognized as middleweight boxing champion in Massachusetts, New York and Europe, suffered a severe scalp injury in an automobile accident Saturday. Pender told police another car cut him off in front of his car and he smashed into a hydrant as he swerved to avoid the vehicle.

Big Fight For Detroit?

DETROIT (AP)—State boxing commissioner Dave Gudel says indicated Monday he would welcome the proposed Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight here.

"But we're not going to let anyone call the shots," Gudelsky said in an apparent reference to Patterson's manager Cus D'Amato.

Patterson and D'Amato arrived here Monday for talks with local promoters Leon Sadler and Elisha Gray.

"I'm pretty sure we'll give Liston a licence," Gudelsky said.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Karen Sola won the first division and Flicka Lee won the second in the featured handicap at Western Fair Raceway Monday night. Each division carried a purse of $2,000.

Karen Sola, a six-year-old mare owned by Al Leverington and driven by Jiggs McFadden, trailed at first in the field of six, after moving into second place behind Wee Governor by the first half-mile, went in front. The mare fought off a strong bid by Maud's Boy to win by a nose.

Wilbert Hopkins of Leamington drove Gallant one to victory in the first, Ariel Orvit to victory in the second. It produced a daily double of $140.60.

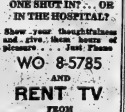
Bradley Wins at Mosport

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—Francis Bradley served notice at nearby Mosport Park Saturday that he's gunning for the 1962 Canadian sports car racing championship.

The Toronto bus driver put on an immaculate show of fast driving in his Lotus 19 to sweep both the modified class counting toward the championship and the feature Dunlop Trophy race.

Dan Shaw of Port Credit, Ont., roared into the lead early in each race with his Sadler Mark V, but within three laps passed by Bradley. Only Shaw and third-place Mario Swan of Cleveland in a Porsche RSK1 avoided being lapped by the charging Lotus.

The 15th annual British Empire Motor Club (Toronto) trophy races over the treacherous 2.5-mile road circuit were full of surprises.



In the formula junior class, dominated last year by Lotuses, Ed'kat de Vos of Dorval, Que., ran away with the honors in a new Lola junior.

Volvo supremacy in the touring class was shattered when Craig Scher of Toronto won in his Austin Healies. Arthur Provask of Royal Oak, Mich., led the 1,300 c.c. class all the way in an Alfa Romeo but had to settle for third when he was penalized for going off the course. Hunter Floyd Jr., of Toronto won in an Abarth.

The Porsche of Klaus Bariels of Toronto won the 1,300-1,600 c.c. class. Norm Nemserow of Montreal swept the more-than-1,600 c.c. class in a Corvette.

G. E. F. Hardy of Toronto in a Lotus Elan 26R won the novice race in a Jaguar XKE, being nagged all the way by the distinctive Lotus 7, driven by Don McDougall, Toronto.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Bobby Hull's marriage to the current political scene has been divorced before it reached consummation.

The Chicago Black Hawks star announced over the weekend that "I am not interested in politics and do not wish to take part in any political activities."

The statement was made to this reporter via long distance telephone. It was unsolicited—and was made at Hull's own free will.

I do not know what Hull's political leanings are—and I care less.

I do know he called me via long distance telephone from his Big Island home Sunday and gave me the statement.

I asked him if he had been pressured by the Black Hawks' management or any other organization and he answered "No."

Bobby said his sports agent, who also has Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle and other sports notables under his wing, advised him "not to get involved in politics."

He said "the good people of Hastings and Prince Edward counties have probably noticed in the newspapers where it was stated that I was going to take an active part in political campaigns."

"I would like to tell them and other friends wherever they may be that at this time I am not interested in politics and do not wish to take part in any political activities."

"The only thing of a governmental nature I am interested in," said Hull, "is the National Physical Health and Sports Program. I am behind this one hundred per cent because I believe in it and the good it can do the nation as a whole."

"Naturally I am interested in the hockey aspects of the plan because that is where my interests are today and will be. I hope, for years to come."

This is a sports column—or supposed to be—and not a political bombing ground.

My personal opinion is that Hull is doing the correct thing by staying away from the election battleground whether he be Liberal, Conservative, Social Credit, or the New Democratic Party.

The young blonde star has, I believe, many friends in all political parties. The only thing he has made before and during his meteoric career in professional hockey are worth much more than the risk of losing some of them by a brief fling in the political arena.

So

True enough, but Kelly, a personal friend of this department, even as Bobby Hull, is nearing the end of an illustrious hockey career. If he is elected, it would not surprise me to see the redoubtable "Red" exchange permanently the hockey garb of the National League for the black homberg and dark suit of a member of Parliament.

Chick-hitting John Romano and Chuck Essegian are prime reasons why Cleveland's surprising Indians hold the American League lead.

They led the way Monday night as the Indians overcame Baltimore Orioles 10-7 and took first place by half a game over the idle New York Yankees.

Romano supplied a pair of run - scoring doubles and a three-run homer with two men out in the ninth inning that won the battle.

Essegian, who heads the league's batters with a .402 average, rode in on both of Romano's doubles and was on base when the sturdy catcher connected for his clincher.

Minnesota Twins climbed to within 11 percentage points of the Yankees with a 5-3 victory over Washington Senators behind Camilo Pascual's pitching and hitting talents. Another good - hitting pitcher, Jerry Walker, paced Kansas City as the Athletics dealt Boston Red Sox their seventh straight loss with a 10-5 triumph. Detroit Tigers beat Chicago White Sox 7-3. Los Angeles Angels were idle.

PLAY DOUBLEHEADERS

There were five doubleheaders Sunday, New York beat Minnesota 4-3 then lost 4-3 in 13 innings. Cleveland split with Detroit, winning 6-2 and losing 9-6. Los Angeles grabbed two victories over Boston 5-3 and 1-0. Kansas City also split with Washington 1-0, then dropped the second engagement 7-5. while Chicago twice beat Baltimore by 8-3 counts.

In Saturday action New York edged Minnesota 2-1, Detroit defeated Cleveland 9-3, Los Angeles edged Boston 6-5 in 10 innings, Baltimore beat Chicago 11-4 and Kansas City defeated Washington 8-4.

The Indians pounded Skinny Brown for a 7-0 lead in the first three innings Monday but the Orioles slugged back, getting a pair of homers from Jackie Brandt, one from Jim Gentile and a three-run triple by Brooks Robinson. Jim (Mudcat) Grant finally was routed in Baltimore's four-run ninth inning and Russ Snyder evened it at 6-6 with a homer off Barry Latman in the eighth.

Winner Gary Bell struck out the side in the top of the ninth, then the Tribe settled it against southpaw Billy Hoeft, the fifth Oriole pitcher. Willie Tasby got on with a walk, Essegian tapped his third single of the night and Romano drilled one into the seats.

Essegian, who has been on six major league clubs and 11 minor league teams in 10 professional seasons, is the current standout of Cleveland's outfield platoon. He has been slugging along at a .300 pace for his last nine games, with 11 hits in 34 at-bats.

Romano's five runs batted in gives him 26 for the season's tops for the Indians, and his three hits raised his average to .299.

Pascual pitched an eight-hitter for his sixth victory in eight decisions, singled across the clinching run for the Twins in the seventh inning and batted across an insurance run in the eighth with another single. The Cuban right hander is hitting .323.

Walker yielded 11 singles, a homer to Eddie Bressoud and four walks to the reeling Red Sox but the Athletics still coasted in. They took the lead for good in the fourth inning on Jose Azcue's homer and Jerry Lumpe's two-run double.

Walker, 7-2, bagged the third homer of the year and a single, before he was relieved in the 9th and scored three times. Lumpe accounted for three more of the Kansas City's 14 hits. Gene Conley took the loss.

Rocky Colavito and Chico Fernandez bombed Early Wynn for homers as the Tigers outclassed the 42-year-old pitcher with a five-run first inning on the way to their Sunday slice over the White Sox. Wynn, still looking for victory No. 295, dished up five hits and a walk before being lifted with two men out.

Bill Bruton went 5-for-5 in Detroit's 13-hit attack and Al Kaline drove in two runs with six-plus, increasing his league-leading RBI total to 26. Paul Foytack was the winning pitcher with relief help from Ron Nischwitz.

CAHA In Session

Approves Red Line Elimination

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The man responsible for putting the red line in hockey wants to get rid of it.

Frank Boucher, now commissioner of the Saskatchewan Junior League and a veteran of 23 seasons with New York Rangers, was head of the National League's rules committee when the centre stripe was first introduced more than 30 years ago.

Monday, delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association approved a Boucher - inspired rule change which would use the red line only to determine "icing the puck" infractions.

The delegates decided to have a Saskatchewan league try out the change. If it does what it proves the game as much as Boucher says it will, then it probably will be adopted for all CAHA leagues the following season.

The change must first be approved by the joint rules committee composed of members of the CAHA and the NHL.

WOULD OPEN UP

Under the new rule attacking players can pass from their own zone to the opposing team's blueline. The rule also moves the two bluelines six feet towards each other.

Delegates also approved a second Boucher rule change which allows only the foiled player to take a penalty shot. The goal line is 12 inches in width and 10 feet long is placed 30 feet from the net and the player must live before going beyond the line.

Delegates turned down a British Columbia request to extend the junior age limit to 21 years. They kept it at 20.

Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes reported that the CAHA registered 143,000 players in 1961-62, the largest total in its history.

SUFFICE SMALL LOSS

After several years of huge deficits, Juckes reported a loss of only $29 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1961. Income during the year was $48,749.

Today, the third day of the two-day meeting, the delegates are expected to deal with Canada's representative at the 1964 Winter Olympics.

President Jack Hozburgh said last week the CAHA not to send a team until the Olympic oath is changed so as to ban a distinction between professional players and those who play for games but still make their livelihood from it.

Canada now is "sending its over at the amateur rule by sending teams under the pretext that it is setting a bad example to thousands of Canadian youngsters, he says.

Joyces Defeat Rollins

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Joyces Real Estate, picking up where they left off last fall, opened the Belleville and District softball league schedule here last night with a 5-1 victory over the loop's new junior entry, Rollins Construction.

A small crowd took in the 8.15 game at the fairgrounds and watched brief opening ceremonies with Lee Griffis, Bob Temple and Don Lee taking part. Temple created a "case of" Lee's first pitch with Griffis doing the catching.

Rollins, who did not look out of place in the senior competition despite the absence of Ted Bechelor, with singles, rounded out the attack.

Lake doubled and singled to lead the Rollins batters. Gary Dugas contributed a two-double, Billy McGuire, Pug Kellar and Joe Robitaille a single each.

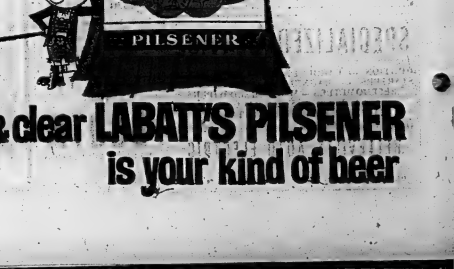
Referee Is Held Blameless

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran referee Ruby Goldstein appeared still be held blameless for his handling of the Benny (Kid) Paret-Emile Griffith world middleweight bout—a savage battle that resulted in Paret's death and a clamor to outlaw boxing.

Goldstein, three of Paret's handlers and the co-manager of Griffith all underwent questioning Monday at the first session of a three-day public hearing by a state legislative committee.

The committee will determine whether boxing should be outlawed in New York state.

Manuel Alfaro, Paret's manager, along with handlers John Solis and Joseph de Maria agreed that their shouts to Goldstein to stop the bout while Paret was being pummelled in the fatal 12th round were unheard because of the roar of the Madison Square Garden crowd.



They said this was the only way they could have indicated they wanted the bout stopped without getting disqualified.

Both Alfaro and de Maria said they thought the fight could have been stopped sooner. But they emphasized they did not blame Goldstein.

Davis Sparks 8-1 Triumph

Dodgers Whip Giants, Cards Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy Davis, 23, slays Giants and feasts on National League left handers.

Davis — Monday night passed third-place Los Angeles Dodgers to an 8-1 triumph over league-leading San Francisco Giants.

Charged with the task of providing power in Dodger ball relies on getting most of its long-distance hit from left-handed swingers. Davis got the job done against the Giants with a 3-for-3 performance that completed Sandy Koufax's five-hit pitching.

Davis, who led the club against southpaws last year with a .333 batting average, hit a double in the second inning and got the Dodgers rolling with a two-run homer in the fourth. He made it 5-0 with a run-scoring double in the sixth before winding up with a walk in a five-run eighth.

The young Davis seven hits in 13 at-bats against the Giants this year and nine runs batted in for the three games with San Francisco. It also boosted his average to .341 and gave him nine homers and 33 runs batted in, second highest in the league.

CARDS EXTEND STREAK

The defeat left the Giants 3½ games in front of the Dodgers and the runner up St. Louis Cardinals, who won their winning streak to five games with a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. Pittsburgh Pirates belted Chicago Cubs 9-4 and Houston Colts edged New York Mets 3-2 in other games. Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Braves were rained out.

In Sunday action Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 9-6 but St. Louis edged Los Angeles 4-3; Houston and San Francisco split a doubleheader, the Colts winning 6-5 and losing 7-4, Chicago took a twin bill 6-4 and 11-3 at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh Pirates belted Chicago Cubs 9-4 and Houston Colts edged New York Mets 3-2 in other games. Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Braves were rained out.

Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Braves were rained out.

Jim Maloney, 5-1, struck out 10 batters in the first seven innings to pace Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. Maloney, who fanned 11 batters in his last start against Los Angeles, was in trouble in the eighth when Phillies scored four runs on three hits and a walk. Jim Brewer relieved and got the last out.

On Saturday leftfielder Ken MacKenzie of Coco Bay, Cocl. picked up his first victory of the season as New York edged Milwaukee 6-5. MacKenzie, beaten once this year, came on in the sixth inning with the Braves leading 5-2. The Mets gave him four runs in the eighth.

Meanwhile, San Francisco belted Houston 10-2, St. Louis clobbered Los Angeles 8-1 and Philadelphia defeated Chicago 7-2.

Gino Marcial collected his 3,451st hit, the most ever by a National Leaguer, in the Cards' Saturday triumph. Marcial got his hit, snapping a tie with Honus Wagner, in the sixth inning when he singled off Ron Perranoski.

Davis, who was hitting .314 last year when forced to the sidelines by a back injury and wound up at .278, homered Monday night off Billy O'Dell (1-3) after Willie Davis singled with one man out in the fourth inning. His double in the sixth boosted the edge to 3-0 before Orlando Cepeda got the Giants' lone run with his 13th homer leading off the seventh.

BREAKS THINGS OPEN

The Dodgers broke things open with five runs in the eighth after O'Dell was removed for pinch hitter Koufax (5-2) had the Giants well in control, walking one and striking out six for his first victory since April 28.

Ray Washburn (3-6) came on for the Cardinals when starter Ernie Broglio pulled a leg muscle in the second inning. Bobby Shantz blanked Washburn out of a two-on, one-out jam in the eighth inning by getting Tony Gonzalez to go back to the mound for the start of a double play. The Cardinals' runs were taken care of by Bill White's two-run homer and a two-run single by Curt Flood. Dennis Bennett (0-1) was the loser.

Dick Groat, hitting in his 13th consecutive game, and Bill Virdon each stroked four hits and picked up three runs batted in as the Pirates got 12 hits to subdue the Cubs. Groat's single in the fifth inning drove in Virdon, who had doubled, with the run that proved to be the clincher.

Relievers Tom Sturdivant (3-0) held the Cubs scoreless over the final 4 1-3 innings to post the victory. Dick Ellsworth (3-5) was the loser.

Jim Pendleton's pinch hit triple leading off the eighth inning and a sacrifice fly by Roman Mejias got the winning run across for the Colts and ended the Mets' winning streak at three games. The victory also showed Houston into eighth place, three percentage points ahead of New York in the battle between the league's two new clubs. Jim Golden (3-4) won it with a seven-hitter. Pitcher Reed Mitsell (1-2) lost it.

Orioles Sign A Robin

CLEVELAND (AP) — Billy Hitchcock, manager of sixth-place Baltimore Orioles, shrugged off the 1-10 record last year of Bobby Roberts, former Philadelphia Phillies pitching great who signed with the Orioles Monday.

"That was last year," Hitchcock said about the 35-year-old Roberts's worst season in 14 years in the major leagues.

"He's going to give us what we need badly—another starting pitcher."

The Birds' pilot emphasized the one-time Phillies workhorse, who failed to stick with New York Yankees during a spring try-out, was in excellent condition.

To make room for the veteran righthander, the Orioles optioned rookie southpaw Art Quirk to Rochester of the International League.

Lose To Petes 12-2

Kenmors Drop Opener

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

PETERBOROUGH — The Belleville Kenmors' hitting powder supply ran out Monday night in the opening tilt of the senior division of the Lakeshore Baseball League.

Peterborough's Bob Gatfield soothpawed them into submission with a neat five-hitter to walk off with a 12-2 victory. The Petes had shocked a 16-2 shellacking in Kingston the night previous.

While his mates pounded three Kenmor hurlers for 15 clouts, Gatfield gave up three back-to-back triples in the first innings but shaken but two harmless singles over the rest of the route. He whiffed 11, walked six.

The hard-hitting Petes clustered their clouts, counting trios in the second, sixth and ninth, doubles in the third and fifth and singles in the fourth and seventh.

They sent trios of runners across the plate in the second and sixth and an unnecessary five in the eighth.

The Kenmors failed to hit in the clutches or whenever they got a man on base after the first inning. They had a big moment in the first when Ashcroft, Hunter and Mavety hit consecutive triples with two out but the latter failed to touch second and the rally died.

The only other serious threat came in the eighth when they loaded the sacks on two walks and Hunter's single with one out but Gerfield bore down and struck out the next two batters.

Larry Soden, the Kenmors' ace righthander, got short stiff at the bats of the Petes when they got to him for a double, two singles and two walks in the second, good for three runs, before he gave way to Billy Goldrick.

Latchford toiled for seven innings, giving up eleven hits and eight runs before being yanked for Gerry Hill in the eighth. Hill yielded a hit and a run.

Latchford struck out seven and walked four.

Larry Mavety segned a plate decision too hotly in the sixth and was given the heave-ho. Dugald took over the catching chore.

Hit was the big gun for the Petes artillery. The first baseman blasted our four doubles. Gatfield helped his own cause with a double and two singles. De Noble hit two singles with the rest of the club good for one each.

Moe Hunter had a triple and single for the Kenmors, Ascipius and Mavety being good for a triple each and Folwell accounting for the remaining Kenmor clout, a single.

The Kenmors' new coach, Sid Fenton, while disappointed somewhat in the team's failure to hit, said there is nothing wrong with the club that practise and games won't cure.

The team opens the season here June 6th against Peterborough.

The teams:

Peterborough: Driscoll, Mahoney, Sherabs, Hill, Whitehill, DeNoble, Foley Ayotte, Stanbick, Gatfield.

Kenmors: Locke, Folwell, Asciptos, Hunter, Mavety, Dugald, Dwyer, Moore, Urch, Soden, Latchford, Hill.

Johnston Wins Golf Playoff

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Al Johnston of Montreal tapped in a seven-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the $20,000 Hot Springs Invitational golf tournament Sunday.

Bill Collins of Miami, Fla., already had dropped a six-foot putt for a par three on the 13th hole.

Johnston, 37, practically an unknown on the United States Professional Golfers Association tour, shipped from two strokes behind Collins on the 18th hole par 5s and the two tied with total of 278.

On the first extra hole, a 416-yard par four, both men had a par 4.

On the second hole, Collins hit his shot 30 feet over the green. His chip back ran six feet past the pin and he putted in. Johnston stroked his seven-footer for the victory.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. In case after case, tests showed that with this inexpensive substance piles in the majority of cases ... home without any discomfort or ... attention.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, while gratifying pain relief was reported and verified by doctors, actual reduction.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in many cases during observations over continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years standing.

All this, without the use of resection, cauterization or ... of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world famous scientific Laboratory. Bio-Dyne is now available in Ointment or Suppository form under the name Preparation H. at all drug counters in the U.S.A. and ... drug counters in Canada. Ask for Preparation H. Supplies are limited so get it at once. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Travelling Players of Halifax took major awards in the Dominion Drama Festival.

The Halifax group, one of eight to compete, was awarded the Festival Trophy for its presentation of John Osborne's three-act "Look Back in Anger. The award, including a cash prize of $1,000, was for the best presentation of a full-length play, in either English or French.

Le Trophee Louis Jouvet, for the best actor, went to Jacques of the Nova Scotia team. It was awarded equally by Evelyn Gerbery and Michael Shackleford.

Award presentations were made Saturday night, the final night of the six-day pageant which drew entries from eight Canadian centres from Halifax to Lethbridge, all winners of regional festivals earlier in the year.

The 1,463-seat Playhouse Theatre was a near-capacity crowd for the closing night's activities which followed the final entry from the Richmond Hill, Ont., Curtain Club and an "afternoon performance of Le Theatre de Maintenant de Quebec.

EARN COMPLIMENTS

The central Ontario group, although not sharing in any of the awards for its presentation of Sacha Guitry's Don't Listen, Ladies, was complimented by adjudicator John Coulter for its "warm and likeable" audience contact.

But the play, a "frankly concoction" set in modern Paris, was described by Mr. Berry, a New Yorkborn actor now living Paris himself, as ballitzy a little short of its necessary "sparkling dialogue and bubbling wit."

Le Theatre de Maintenant's presentation of Marc Camoletti's Boeing - Boeing received kinder words and drew the adjudicator's choice for Le Playhouse Festival, the trophy for the best French in the Dominion, including the major DDF award.

The Festival Plaque for the best presentation in English, also excluding the major DDF final award, went to the London Little Theatre for its presentation of I Am a Camera by John van Druten.

NAMED TOP INDIVIDUALS

Other awards to the London group included the Sharp Trophy for horse and the Nella Jefferis challenge trophies. The first for the best male performance, went to Paul Harding who played the part of Christopher Isherwood. The latter, for the best female performance, was won by Charlotte Ronson who acted as Natalia Landgoval.

Organized in 1932, the DDF has held competitions annually since 1933, except for a seven-year intermission due to the Second World War. The Canadian Association of Broadcasters was sponsor for this year's finals.

Earlier in the week, Vida H. Peene of Toronto was elected president of the DDF, succeeding Roy A. Stewart of Barrie.

It also was announced that next year's finals will be in Kitchener.

Parking meters in Canadian communities have increased to more than 70,000 since first introduced at Toronto in 1935.

An Atlantic Salmon Pool Is as Sacred as Boudoir To Some Quebec Residents

QUEBEC (CP) — To people like Napoleon Comeau, an Acadian settler who owns 40 salmon streams rush into the gulf, only a part of one—the Miscou River—is open to the public in that 800-mile stretch.

The Hautrive - Baie Comeau branch of the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Clubs has urged that these rivers be made public, Mr. Lavoie, the club's president, says, but all concessions and private leases in the area will be revoked at once.

WANTS PUBLIC FISHING

"By tolerating such a situation, the government favors a small number of privileged people at the expense of the vast majority of citizens of the province," the brief says. "The rivers are the property of the citizens of the province and should serve for their enjoyment."

The reaction of outfitters and private owners, who regard themselves as the spiritual heirs of Sache Gutty's Don't Listen, Ladies, was complimented by adjudicator John Coulter for its "warm and likeable" audience contact.

RIVERS ARE THEIR OWN

Mr. Lavoie says the Miscou River is open to the public because it is a sacred river.

Joseph Labrie's faction feels otherwise: salmon aren't everybody's sweethearts; they're everybody's property.

Mr. Labrie lives in Baie Comeau and is a descendant of Napoleon's grandfather.

He is a port on the St. Lawrence estuary about 40 salmon streams rush into the gulf, only a part of one—the Miscou River—is open to the public in that 800-mile stretch

Summer Job Picture Not Bright for Job-Seeking Students From Universities

By STUART LAKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian university students finding it difficult to land summer jobs might well cast envious glances at University of Waterloo engineering students.

Through the Ontario university's co-operative program, the 850 engineering undergraduates spend alternating four - month periods on the campus and in industry. They are hired by 280 companies and government agencies in Ontario and Quebec and are paid the going rate.

The plan has been so successful that there were 70 more jobs than applicants when the latest group began its industry phase in April.

Arts and sciences students at Waterloo follow the usual 7½-month academic year and indications are they also will have a choice of jobs.

TOUGH FOR SOME

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows the summer job picture is not quite so bright at other universities. Most report about 90 per cent of job - seeking students have been placed. The situation is toughest in the Maritimes where fewer some of the more easily placed engineering students are still seeking positions.

With the cost of a year at university now estimated at $1,500, most of the job - hunting students need the work to continue their studies. Others require jobs in their special fields for academic credits.

Placement officers from the National Employment Service have concluded their annual visits to campuses. Most of their job offers were for students in engineering, geology, commerce and economics.

The picture is also bright for students accepted for the 1,500 positions offered by the federal government, for those who will work for provincial governments and in industry, and for those using actuarial skills with insurance companies.

JOBS IN HOLLAND

Of the wide variety of work available to students, the most popular is likely to be the 200 jobs offered by The Netherlands.

Least popular are positions that pay commissions only. While many of these are available, students and placement officers tend to shy away from them because of the uncertain income.

For the unskilled the employment picture is darkened by automation and the large number of women in the work force.

Machines capable of doing the work of men continue to dry up sources of summer work. And there are indications that firms prefer to hire married women who formerly worked for them rather than take on inexperienced students for short periods.

One NES official summed it up by saying the student who looks hard enough and long enough will find a job, but if he hasn't got special skills, the chances are he'll not make as much money as he needs to pay his own way through a college year.

FEW PLACED IN EAST

Summer job prospects by provinces:

Newfoundland: About 600 students have filed applications for work. So far only 100 have been placed.

Prince Edward Island: Most students have little trouble finding jobs, many in summer resort areas. It's difficult for women, however, and they're often underpaid for what is available.

Nova Scotia: Jobs are harder to find this year than last. Dalhousie University's placement officer, George Black, says engineering students are becoming aware about the unusual scarcity of jobs for them.

New Brunswick: Student demand for employment is increasing but the number of jobs is down from a year ago.

Quebec: There is a heavy demand for third-year engineering students and also for domestic and baby help. Students in other fields who don't speak both French and English are hampered.

Ontario: University of Toronto reports that 1,800 of 3,000 job-seekers have been placed but doesn't expect to equal last year's peak of placing 82 per cent. Job prospects in the Windsor area aren't good and Assumption University students must look out of town. At Queen's in Kingston only a handful of students have yet to be placed.

Manitoba: Prospects for second- and third-year engineering students are good. Weather conditions as they affect farming will play an important role in the case of other faculties.

Saskatchewan: NES placement officers report more students seeking jobs and are confident all will be placed. Construction and clerical jobs are available for male students. Many return to the family farm for the summer.

Alberta: Prospects are described as excellent. About 1,100 of the 5,300 students at the University of Alberta are expected to find jobs through NES. By early May 80 per cent had been placed. Biggest employers are manufacturers and Rocky Mountain resorts.

British Columbia: Outlook is slightly better this year with more students being placed. An estimated 10,000 of the University of British Columbia's 13,000 students went summer work. John D. McLean, university personnel director, estimates 8,000 will get jobs. The lumber industry takes several thousand. Others go to mines and canneries.

HEADS DOWNTOWN CHURCH — Rev. Vladimir Vicenik-Vlad, 53, is scheduled on to take over the Eastern Orthodox Church of St. Constantine and St. Helen, downtown building in Montreal's financial district.

Pastor Converts Office Building Into Church

MONTREAL (CP) — A persevering might think it just another office building unless he happened to look up and see the traditional Orthodox cross on a diamond dome above the front door.

Indeed, the downtown financial district's Eastern Orthodox Church of St. Constantine and St. Helen was an office building until it was taken over a few months ago by the energetic Rev. Vladimir Vicenik-Vlad, 53.

It now is being renovated into a complex that will include the church itself, a credit union, a newspaper, the headquarters of a planned Orthodox old people's home near St. Saiveur, Que., and the pastor's living quarters.

Born in the Ukraine and a graduate in theology of the University of Prague, Father Vicenik-Vlad once was editor of an anti - Communist publication in Vienna and has written a highly successful play about life in the Soviet Union called Broken Souls.

He immigrated to Canada in 1950 after serving nine years of a 15-year sentence in Poland for allegedly entering from Czechoslovakia as a U.S. spy.

Ported first to Ottawa and then to Moose Jaw, Sask., he was called back to Montreal in 1961 to take over the new St. Constantine and St. Helen parish.

Asked why such a "cold" site was chosen for the church, Father Vicenik-Vlad shrugged: "It may not readily appear to have all the surroundings of a church, but this is extremely central for our purposes."

Trade Union Membership Fell in British Columbia, Ont. and Quebec Last Year

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade union membership fell slightly last year in the three most populated provinces — Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

Union ranks also grew thinner in Canada's two main industrial groupings — manufacturing, as well as transportation, storage and communication.

The two facts emerge from a special annual survey of union membership in Canada, made by the federal labor department and just released in the Labor Gazette, an official departmental journal.

It shows that union membership declined by 9,200 to 550,000 in Ontario, by 1,000 to 332,300 in Quebec and by 2,300 to 161,500 in British Columbia.

The Labor Gazette says the picture of unionism — in some what broad approximation — because 631 union locals, representing about 47,600 members, did not reply to the survey.

However it does give a good idea of how union membership stands, by provinces and by industries.

UP IN MANITOBA

Manitoba ranks as the fourth-largest union province in spite of the fact that it is sixth in terms of population. It had 67,500 union members in 1961, an increase with 61,300 a year earlier.

Next in line: Alberta, with 60,300 unionists, up from 60,000 in 1960; Nova Scotia, 44,300, up from 41,400; Saskatchewan, 43,000 up from 41,800; Newfoundland, 32,000, up from 31,200; New Brunswick, 28,100, down from 28,600, and Prince Edward Island 1,300, up from 1,200. Yukon and Northwest Territories to 800 from 800.

Some 34,300 union members—mainly seafarers, telegraphers and members of Actors' Equity —were in jobs that couldn't be classified by province.

While organized labor lost members in most industries traditionally employing blue-collar workers, it made gains in the so-called white-collar industries.

Union membership fell in manufacturing, transportation, storage and communication, construction, logging and fishing.

But it rose in the service industries as well as in trade, public utilities and mining.

There was no change in finance, insurance and real estate, where only 200 workers were reported as union members here.

Here is the picture by industries, with 1961 membership in brackets:

Manufacturing, 358,000 (361,400); transportation, storage and communication, 97,000 (98,400); service, 191,500 (190,900); construction, 153,900 (156,800); mining, 59,900 (61,000); logging, 55,800 (58,100); trade, 47,900 (42,000); public utilities, 32,400 (32,900); fishing, 4,600 (5,300); finance, insurance and real estate, 200 (200).

The Gazette said 9,900 unionists were not classified as to industry in the survey returns.

Altogether, trade unions in Canada represented 1,459,000 workers in 1961, a drop in numbers from the 1960 total of 1,490,200.

How other major car manufacturers help us sell more Ramblers

Soon after Rambler introduced its first sensibly-sized car our competitors saw the trend we had started and went into compact car production. Despite the increased competition, they actually gave us a boost by making you more compact-conscious.

Remarkable proof of this has been our success. In 1961, for instance, our sales increased by 50% over the previous year. And almost 100 new dealers joined us during the same period. This year sales are up 60% over last year.

With years of experience behind us, we are able to produce a vastly superior compact. For example: we pioneered Single-Unit construction; developed Deep-Dip rustproofing, specially for Canadian conditions and introduced the Ceramic-Armoured muffler, guaranteed for as long as you own the car. This year we added such new features as self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes; and a battery and coolant, both with a two year guarantee.

Rambler stands alone as the one automotive manufacturer really interested in providing what we call "maximum usefulness to the user". This, we feel, is the main reason for our success.

To prove this to yourself, take a look at the so-called compacts first. Then visit your Rambler dealer. You'll have no doubt that Rambler is Canada's best all 'round car value.

Denies 44 Calls To Gambler Gave Tipoffs

Former OPP Officer Under Stiff Grilling

TORONTO (CP) — Gambler Joseph McDermott's secret telephone line stored hunnings from other provincial police planted tipoffs on gambling club raids with a suspected member of the OPP on the outfit's gambling squad, the royal commission on crime was told Tuesday.

Squad Const. J. W. Moore had the information through a network of traced calls leading from OPP undercover agent George Scott to Const. Robert Wright, the suspect, to McDermott to the Ramsey Club at Niagara Falls in 1960.

Earlier, Wright had repeated previous denials of ever passing police information to McDermott. McDermott, with McDermott's partner Vincent Kelly, have been convicted and sentenced to 18 months for obtaining police information illegally.

Wright Tuesday also denied a charge of perjury in statements attributed to him in the 1960 diary of Const. Scott, the document, which Downen is alleged in the conviction of the three men.

Scott's diary officer accused Scott of inventing diary entries and "putting all his enemies" in the diary.

DENIES TELLING

The 31-year-old Wright denied that he told Scott, as recorded in that officer's diary:

1. That Deputy OPP Commissioner James Bartlett was getting "good" money and McDermott and that Bartlett once had received $5,000 at a party attended by McDermott and the late Jamaica Mahoney, Ontario liquor licence inspector.

2. That bribery had been employed by McDermott and Feeley to get W. J. Shrubb, now police chief of Peterborough, to quit gambling squad work in 1958.

3. That Wright participated in drafting a mysterious 1958 document—which eventually reached the anti-gambling squad by a circuitous route—to have a knockout on a rival of the McDermott-Feeley chain at Niagara Falls.

4. That Wright purported to have inside information on how the McDermott-Feeley club at Cedardale could retain its provincial charter through minor modifications at a time when the government was considering cancelling it. (The charter was eventually revoked.)

Wright also denied telling

OAS Commando Attacks Patrol Of Gendarmes

ALGIERS (AP) — Lone gunmen of the terrorist Secret Army Organization killed at least 16 persons today while a commando attacked a French gendarmerie patrol, sending passersby scurrying for cover.

The dead in individual terror attacks included at least eight Moslems and two European-ans. One other Moslem was wounded.

In the Secret Army commando clash with the gendarmes, two gendarmes were known wounded and one European passerby was slain.

The half - hour battle paralyzed the pain-filled Boulevard St. Saens, linking the heart of the city with a hilltop residential section.

The attack began with concentrated machine-gun fire on the motorized patrol of green armes. Peacemby fled for safety and gunshots rattled along the street. Within a few minutes, army helicopters appeared and hovered over the scene. Shortly afterwards the firing halted and the attackers dispersed in a maze of narrow streets.

European gunmen hunted individual Moslems who ventured into the European city throughout the morning.

An ambulances sped along avenues, carrying lines of sedans fleeing to police stations for exit visas to France. The Secret Army said women, children and men over 45 years old could leave the country.

TENSION MOUNTS

The announcement, made in a circular, heightened tension and increased wearry city and led many Europeans to believe that the terrorist group was preparing all-out armed resistance to Algeria's independence.

Meanwhile, trains reaching Algiers from the interior were unloading hundreds of settlers fleeing their homes in small towns and villages.

Find Constable Who Killed Man Doing His Duty

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury found Tuesday that Const. Henry Mickey exceeded restraint and was doing his duty when he shot and killed Roy Gee, 29, during an attempted holdup.

Gee died in hospital after he was shot twice while being pursued by the constable April 11.

Archibald Dougherty, an investment broker, testified he was driving along Woodbine lakefront with Gee in his car when Gee pulled a gun.

MacDermid said he stopped the car when he saw the constable coming and told Gee he was armed. MacDermon also said Gee had tried to shoot him but the gun was jammed.

Const. Midgley pursued Gee, who fled from the car and tried to shoot. After yelling warnings and firing two shots in the air, the constable shot and killed him.

The jury told Gee pulled the trigger of his semi-automatic shortly after that but the cartridge was jammed an eighth of an inch out of the breech.

BAR LIBERAL CANDIDATE ON TECHNICALITY

21 Ridings Hold Nominations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberal party's plans for entering a full slate of 265 candidates in the June 18 Dominion election went awry Tuesday when their choice in the British Columbia constituency of Skeena failed to comply with one of the regulations of the Canada Elections Act.

John Watt, the prospective candidate, waited until five minutes before the close of nominations at Prince Rupert, too late for him to reach the witnesses to signatures of the 25 sponsors on his nomination paper. April 29 was the first day for filing nominations.

Under the act, the signatures must be sworn to in the presence of the returning officer. Alex S. Hill, the returning officer, turned down Mr. Watt's nomination and his decision was upheld by Justice Gustongay, chief electoral officer at Ottawa.

As a result, the Skeena contest will be a three-man race among Frank Howard, New Democratic Party; Lewis G. Dooley, Social Credit, and A. B. Vance, Progressive Conservative. Mr. Howard was member for the riding in the last house.

The Skeena nomination was one of 21 held Tuesday in constituencies from Newfoundland to the Yukon where extra time is needed to deliver election supplies. Nominations for the 21 districts close June 4.

Policemen Hailed as Hero in Fire Now Charged With Setting Blaze

TORONTO (CP) — A policeman who was credited with saving two families in a home fire April 3 was charged in Toronto Tuesday with breaking and entering and theft.

Donovon, on the Metropolitan Toronto force for three years, faces 13 charges of shopbreaking, three of arson and one of theft.

His beat covers part of central west and Toronto.

Police said today the April 3 fire started in the basement. Donovan reported it to the fire department, then went upstairs and helped the occupants from the burning building.

The two other fire charges involve a $15,000 fire in a two-storey building Nov. 23, 1961, when Donovan again turned in the alarm; and to one on March 18 in a garage.

Deputy Chief George Elliott said most of the burglaries with which Downen is charged were at service stations where small amounts of money or tools were stolen.

The theft charge covers the stealing of two automobile tires and a voltage regulator taken from a service station which did not been locked.

Deputy Chief Elliott said Donovan's work had been under the observation of Sgt. William Dickson for some time. Thursday, Donovan was called in by divisional inspector Alwyn Thomas.

The deputy chief said Insp. Thomas as chastised Donovan about his work and the constable resigned on the spot. The resignation was not accepted.

Modern Touch Highlight Of Tuesday's Campaigning

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An old - fashioned political picnic with a modern touch was a highlight of Tuesday's campaigning in the federal election fight.

Liberal Leader Pearson arrived by helicopter to mingle with a picnic throng of about 3,000 at a farm outside Toronto where a Conservative rally staged the gala affair. It was complete with fried chicken, potato salad, ice cream, cherry pie, drum majorettes and riding displays by the Canadian international equestrian team.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was in Toronto, too, but had a more sedate setting for his vote-hunting solidities. He attended two receptions in suburbs, drawing standing-room-only audiences of 800 in the afternoon and about 1,000 at night.

Both leaders took advantage of the large turnouts to make short, punchy speeches and distribute campaign literature standby which has never gone out of date—the friendly handshake and personal greeting.

There were longer speeches in Halifax where T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party got 700 in a school hall he and at Melfort, Sask., where Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson talked after a two-piece system for wheat.

The Liberal leader told a luncheon meeting of party workers that the Conservatives failed to carry out "the big five" of their 1958 campaign promises. He said these were to reduce unemployment, lower taxes, cut spending, balance the budget and lower interest rates.

Almost at the same moment, Mr. Diefenbaker was telling an audience that he has answered opposition charges about unkept promises and the argument now was, "dead as a dodo."

Mr. Pearson flatly predicted a Liberal win in the June 18 voting. The prime minister said polls showing the Liberals in the lead are contrary to what the voters themselves are saying.

(Today the major leaders were to head off in opposite directions. Mr. Diefenbaker flew west to Winnipeg and Mr. Pearson headed east, to visit three Southern Ontario towns before a flight to Northern Ontario.

Mr. Douglas was to fly to Charlottetown for a noon meeting at Summerside, P.E.I., and Mr. Thompson has speaking engagements at Dauphin and Brandon in Manitoba.

Mr. Douglas said at Halifax that all Canada will have medical insurance within five years if Saskatchewan succeeds with its medical care plan, due to be introduced July 1.

He said Saskatchewan doctors have "some objections" to the plan but described their arguments as "the phoniest I've ever listened to." It was nonsense to say that the province would interfere with doctor-patient relationships.

Mr. Thompson told his Prairie meeting that a two-price plan for wheat—one for exports and another for domestic sales—is the only hope for the Canadian farmer." It would allow friendly nations to buy Canadian wheat at prices they could afford.

JET CARRYING 45 DISINTEGRATES DURING STORM

Wreckage Found Over Wide Area

CENTERVILLE, Iowa (CP) — (AP)—All 45 persons aboard a huge jet airliner were killed when the plane broke apart in a sudden storm Tuesday night and littered the area near here with pieces.

Miraculously, there was a survivor but he lived for only an hour and a half after being removed from the fuselage of the continental airlines jet — the only major piece left of the aircraft.

The survivor was Takehiko Nakano, a service engineer who had identification cards bearing addresses in Oak Park, Ill., and Los Angeles.

It was not known whether any Canadians were aboard as passenger lists were incomplete.

Mrs. Bunnell, reached by telephone, said the family heard "a big crash, but didn't know what it was" at 9:15 p.m. (10:15 p.m. CST) Tuesday night.

"We couldn't see anything so I forgot it until this morning when we heard about the missing plane," she said.

"My husband and our brother-in-law, Dean Bunnell, went out into the farm as it was breaking day and a short time later they came running back to the house. They said they found the fuselage of the plane. My husband called the sheriff."

WRECKAGE HITS SQUARE

The Bunnell farm is about seven miles south of Chinhusi, Iowa, near where big and pieces of wreckage fell in the village square.

The plane was Continental's Flight 11, en route from Chicago to Kansas City and Los Angeles with 37 passengers and a crew of eight aboard.

"We just keep finding parts of it," said Glenn Brown, assistant police chief of this community near the Missouri line.

"Parts of wings, pieces of fuselage, pieces of engines — "Just like you'd blown it to bits."

Hundreds of volunteers, using walkie-talkies, followed a path of trail of debris.

Average Family Spends More on Car Than Clothes

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Average Canadian put more money into the upkeep of the family car each year than into outfitting themselves and their children with clothes.

A special Dominion Bureau of Statistics survey of family expenditures shows that 9.3 per cent of the average Canadian family budget went for motor car, while only 9.1 is spent on clothing.

The survey, preliminary results of which were released today, was based on a sample of 1,672 families of two or more persons which Dominion censors from 15,000 population in 1959.

Car and clothing expenses were then paid with personal taxes lower down the list at 6.8 per cent.

Following is an item-by-item breakdown of the average budget showing both the percentage distribution of total expenditure and the dollar expenditure per family:

Housing was the big outlay among the one - person units, accounting for 23.4 per cent of total expenditures. Food was listed at 21.6, clothing at 8.3 and automobiles expenses at 7.0 per cent.

In this grouping, gifts and contributions were 6.1, personal taxes 7.3 and security 2.0 per cent of the total.

Reds Slow Flow Of Refugees Into Hong Kong

Diefenbaker to Admit 100 Families to Canada

CP from Reuters-AP

HONG KONG — Chinese refugees poured into Hong Kong in moderately reduced numbers today amid reports that Communist-Chinese border guards have made their first move to stop the current exodus.

Eyewitnesses said Chinese guards at Shataukok, a border township where the frontier runs through the main street, Tuesday removed a number of Chinese on the border fence and drove them away in trucks.

The Chinese had done little in recent weeks to block the flow of refugees to this overcrowded British colony.

The task was left to Hong Kong police assisted by Indian Gurkha troops and British forces.

Tuesday they rounded up 5,-000 refugees who had managed back to China in closed trains, escorting a non - stop shuttle service to the border.

NUMBER DROPS

But today the number of deported refugees was down to 3,-500, adding support to the reports that the Red Chinese are tightening up their border controls.

The deportations Wednesday brought to more than 50,000 the number of refugees returned to China in the last three weeks.

The Hong Kong Standard reported today that Communist guards and plainclothes police were patrolling the border and had been seen mingling with crowds of deported refugees on the Chinese side of the border.

The Communist guards also were reported searching the bills of the border security zone for Chinese refugees seeking to enter Hong Kong.

The report also said the refugees, who have been returned to China by the British, were being sent to "labor camps by the Chinese Communist government.

Earlier, border police sources said tempers were growing short on all sides.

The refugees, who at first fled Communist rule to escape deportation, are growing more truculent. Hong Kong's thousands of British troops are crammed into squalid quarters are increasingly jittery over the crisis. And police and troops are showing the strain from almost continuous duty in the three-week crisis.

The situation can blow up at any time," a police informer said.

CANADA TO HELP

In Toronto, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday that Canada will admit 100 families of Hong Kong refugees immediately. He said at a press conference that Canada "will also provide food and relief for the refugees."

Also in Toronto, the Canadian Council of Churches said Tuesday night that the Canadian government has asked for the importation of at least 10,000 Chinese refugees from Hong Kong for settlement in Canada. The proposal was made in a telegram to Canada's external affairs minister on international affairs by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in Greece.

Ottawa also recommended that Canada send food supplies and new financial aid to the Hong Kong government for the relief of refugees.)

The warrant was filed by a private Montreal detective agency responsible for security of ships manned by CMU crews.

Thirty Members Of Square Dance Group Attend

Among the 2,400 square dancers attending the Toronto International Square Dance Convention at the Royal York Hotel last weekend were approximately 30 members of the Quinte Twirler Square Dance Club.

Gay hoe-down music, colorful swirling skirts and a happy, friendly atmosphere of dancers from thirteen states and two Canadian provinces gathered together, made this a momentous occasion for the Belleville people. It was the first time hearing the "modern" or "Western" style square dancing within the last two years. Interesting sidelights such as fashion shows of square dance costumes and workshops for callers and dancers added variety to the programme.

The Belleville group was particularly proud of the fact that its own caller, Norm Wilcox, took part in the program and called three numbers on Saturday afternoon.

Record Turnout on Hand For Parkdale Fireworks

Excitement reigned supreme on Monday night in Parkdale, where innumerable fancy children watched the Parkdale Ratepayers' annual fireworks display for Victoria Day.

A record turnout of delighted children, parents, moms, and more than a few Grandpas and Grandmas were on hand for the grand display. Good Priest and Also Glover paced their firings with precision and skill. Bill Ashcroft, Art Gilbert of the Avonlea Hotel, assisted in the production, assisted to gun perchance for their display scheduled for Thursday, should the clouds open.

This year's record attendance abetted to the fullest by the fine weather, saw the six-acre Community Centre grounds filled with spectators on Dufferin Street, Parkdale Drive, Maple Drive and Lemoine Street were filled with spectators for the display, held an hour of steady traffic. Parkdale Constables and Provincial Police assisted.

SPECIAL THANKS

The Parkdale Ratepayers' Association records special thanks for assistance to City Parks Superintendent Melville Perks, Inspector Hubbard, Police Constables Millister and Martin for excellent traffic control, Parkdale, 1st Belleville Sea Scouts for their good work; Miss Beverley Bell for supplying and erecting a booth.

A big drawing card for many a small boy (and not a few men) was the Belleville Fire Department's display of the Quinte Twirler Square Dance Club.

Lions Club Presents Fine Hank Snow Show

The only disappointed people are those who missed the Belleville Country Music Show ever presented in this city.

Monday evening, the enthusiastic applause could be heard blocks away.

The Lions Club of Belleville are to be congratulated on giving the public a fine entertainment program.

From the introduction of the Country Hoppers, local TV, radio and recording artists, by past president Harvey Prid, to the final encore by Hank Snow the audience was simply brilliant. The show left behind the prearranged scheduled time right from the start due to encores. Hank's encores alone were of 15 minutes duration.

The Country Hoppers kicked off the program with expert fiddling by Garry Gibbs; and a song by Davy Gibbs; and a well received performance by their mascot dog, "Smokey".

Immediately following was an enthusiastically received rendition of Mule Skinner Blues by Bill McKay, M.C. of the \C.J.B.Q. Country Junction show.

The return of the Country Hoppers with a comedy routine delighted the audience.

The evening was highlighted by Hank Snow and his Rainbow Ranch Boys, ably introduced by Bill McKay.

DELIGHTFUL AUDIENCE

Hank's renditions of sentimental, boogy, and sacred songs delighted the entire audience. The laringitis, which he was suffering, in no way detracted from his abilities to please. He is a great artist. Space does not permit details of his accomplishments and versatility, but he certainly won a permanent place in the hearts of everyone present. The Rainbow Ranch Boys were all that could be desired as accompaniment.

Then come Reiwing, Hank's two charming daughters. The beautiful, part Indian, Cherokee, in her costuming and hair dress, with gold and silver slippers, a narrow beaded band on her forehead, long locks of hair braid down the left side of her head, over her shoulder and down on Ori and sobriste. Also she could sing.

The evening was made complete by dancing and some fine square dance calling by champion Warren Prid.

From the opening note to the final curtain it would appear that the audience show, from the initial advertising to the final enjoyment by the audience, must have been directed by professionals of long experience in the field of entertainment.

All were amazed to learn that this was the first effort of this type by Lion Harvey assisted by his son, Warren and Ontario Square Dance Calling Champion.

Lion Harvey was in no way secretive about his formula for success in entertainment — "Plan the entertainment to the audience ahead of the commercial interests of the promoters".

FINE P.A. SYSTEM

Credit for the success of the success of the program was in no small degree due to the excellent sound system, which was perhaps the best ever to be used in the area.

Hank Snow paid particular tribute to the Lions Club for its excellent manner in which they took care of the personal comforts of the entertainers, particularly the private behind stage dressing room, which were specially erected for them. According to Hank, little considerations, as a rule, are given to the entertainers. It is very much appreciated, as this being the last stop of their present tour they were all quite exhausted and enjoyed the comforts provided by the Lions Club.

Information states that the Lions Club intend to sponsor future country music shows in Belleville and all feel certain that if they are managed in the same capable manner, and the same effort put into by the Lions, they can only be a huge success, and the public will receive some exceedingly fine entertainment. long past due.

Band's Showing Features Inspection of Sea Cadets

TRENTON — Parents, friends and visiting dignitaries at last night's annual sea cadet inspection and display were all impressed with the quality of performance of the sea cadet band. The band, under the leadership of Sgt. Howard Kelly, has progressed to the point where it will lead off a church parade of the I.O.O.F. Trenton lodge next Sunday. A little more than a year ago, the Wednesday Auditorium, RCSCC "Trent," provided $2,200 for the purchase of new instruments of the band and auxiliary members beamed with pride last night at the way it fulfilled their food hopes.

Inspecting officer was Lt. Commander D. A. Winters, RCN.R. senior training officer for RCSCC "Catarqui," who was accompanied on his round of inspection by Lt. H. W. Cattle, Commanding Officer of RCSCC "Trent" and the assistant area officer, A. Hill.

Following the inspection, the cadets and their guests retired to the "ship" where classes in rifle drill, anchor work, first aid, signalling and other phases of sea cadet work were held.

Remand Man For One Week On Theft Count

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Earl Graham of Trenton, charged with the unlawful possession of office equipment, the property of the Quinte Plumbing, Heating and Electrical Company, was remanded on bail until June 5, to give Magistrate T. F. Wilt time to consider the evidence. Graham pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Court evidence revealed that a brief case, said to be the property of the plumbing company, had been found in Graham's Murphy Street apartment. An adding machine and typewriter, found in a neighbor's apartment, were replaced there, according to evidence, by Graham, who was followed a fire in a trailer, which was being used by the Quinte Plumbing Company as an office, after their Front St. plant was destroyed by fire on March 6.

Graham testified that he had been drinking heavily on March 23, when the equipment allegedly came into his possession.

"I honestly honestly sly where they came from," he said.

Thomas Lally, appearing for the accused, contended that Graham had been in a state of alcoholic amnesia on the night in question.

Crown Attorney John Prindle submitted that this argument was a "crutch," used in these "John Barleycorn" days getting Graham into possession of the articles in question.

E. G. Wagner, charged with obtaining groceries by means of a worthless cheque, pleaded guilty and was given a year's suspended sentence and ordered to pay $5 court costs.

Angus MacDonald, charged with pointing a rifle at another person, was remanded until May 29. Bail was set at $250 cash or $500 property.

Walter Hall, charged with stealing a coin can, containing $3, the property of the Women's Auxiliary of Trenton hospital, was remanded for two weeks.

Tenders Will Be Called for Service Centre

TRENTON — R. B. Fraser, construction engineer with the department of highways at Port Hope and provincial tenders for the preliminary grading of the site of a service centre on Highway 401, west of Trenton, had been advertised. Once the contract for the preliminary work has been awarded, tenders for the construction of a service station, restaurant and rest rooms will be called for. Preliminary work on the service centre closer to Port Hope has begun.

Mr. Fraser said that while there had been a delay in the commencement of the work he hoped that once it got underway, the centre would be constructed speedily for the benefit of the motoring public.

NEAR OBJECTIVE

Elmer Boehler 1962 campaign chairman for the Trenton branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, reports that the current fund raising drive, sponsored by the local branch has almost reached $6,000 objective. Brighton raised $1,000, and results from other centres have been good. Reports from several divisions have yet to be turned in.

FIFED ABOARD

Next week, Charlie Baker, a life-member of Trenton Legion Branch 110, will set out for the adventure of a lifetime. He will be accorded a special guest of honor and he will be piped aboard the train which will take him to Ottawa. There he will attend the official dedication of the South African War Book of Remembrance at the federal parliament buildings.

Charlie, who will be 86 his next birthday, is a veteran of the South African War and World War I.

Travelling with Charlie will be Fred Pound of Brighton, also a veteran of the two wars.

Charlie and Fred will leave the Quinte district on Saturday and return to Trenton and Brighton, on Friday.

Erroneous Report Given on Accident

TRENTON — In Tuesday's edition The Ontario Intelligencer erroneously reported the facts regarding a motor vehicle accident in Trenton in which it was stated that a car driven by William Bryden struck a parked car.

Actually Mr. Bryden was the innocent party.

The Police police confirmed today that Mr. Bryden had been northbound on Dufferin Street when a car owned by Ernest Copeland came out of a driveway and struck the Bryden vehicle. Police later picked up the driver of the other car.

Ontario Intelligencer regrets any inconvenience which the erroneous report caused Mr. Bryden.
